Drive For New National Labor Policy Begins

Rep. Smith, Of Virginia, Would Rewrite Wagner Act Of 1935

PROPOSALS TO PREVENT STRIKES INTRODUCED

Rep. Hartley, Of New Jersey, To Head House Labor Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The drive to change the labor laws began officially today.

As the 80th Congress came into being:

1. Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va) proposed a new labor policy for the nation.

2. Rep. Hartley (R-NJ), bitterly opposed by the CIO in the November elections, decided to accept chairmanship of the House Labor Committee.

3. Five House Republicans introduced identical bills to prevent strikes which affect the public health or safety—including coal strikes. They call this the A-C-3H proposal because their names are Reps. Auchincloss (NJ), Clifford Case (NJ), Hale (Me), Herter (Mass), and Heselton (Mass).

Still other labor bills were introduced in the House.

Senators will start introducing their labor proposals later.

Smith Would Change Wagne Act

Rep. Smith introduced a whopping big bill that would rewrite the Wagner Act of 1935, which unions call "Labor's Magna Carta."

The Wagner Act says the labor policy of the United States is to encourage collective bargaining and to protect workers in their freedom to organize and bargain through representatives of their own choosing.

That was the cornerstone of the Roosevelt administration's labor policy.

Smith would change the emphasis. His bill says the nation's policy is to bring about the equality of labor and industry in collective bargaining, subject to the following "duty:"

"Not to seriously interfere with the normal flow of interstate commerce, or with the continuous operation of those industries and facilities upon which the economic life and general welfare of the nation is dependent."

The bill would make it an "unfair labor practice" to interrupt a public utility or "any plant, mine, or facility, the continuous operation of which is essential to public health or safety."

Court Action Provided

Any union or company violating this clause could be taken to court. A judge could issue an injunction, and if it were disobeyed, could punish the offender for contempt of court, as John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers were ordered punished in December.

Smith, through other amendments to the Wagner Act, would withdraw collective bargaining

Panamanian Freighter Runs Aground In Fog

BOSTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Coast Guard reported tonight that the Panamanian freighter S. S. Kotor had run aground, "high and dry" 200 yards off the westerly tip of Nantucket island in a heavy fog with no loss of personnel.

A petty officer of the Nantucket Coast Guard life boat station rowed out to the stranded vessel in a dory and found the crew members safe. He reported damages as slight.

Coast guardsmen said they would await a high tide at 2 a. m. Saturday before attempting to float the ship. They added they believed it would be "a difficult job."

Sage Of Baltimore Swaps Essay Rights For Canadian Brew

BALTIMORE, Jan. 3. (AP)—H. L. Mencken, author, newspaperman and connoisseur of the end product of malt and hops, has in his safe deposit box an iron-clad contract guaranteeing him two cases of Canadian ale monthly for the rest of his life.

Under the contract completed by Cinema (Canada) Pictures, an Ontario brewery and Mencken, the film company gets rights to Mencken's burlesque essay "History of the Bathtub," and the brewery is to ship him the ale.

The Sage of Baltimore says he got the best of the bargain.

"That essay was first printed about 30 years ago in a newspaper (the old New York Mail); it's public domain, and they didn't have to offer me anything," he explained.

Post Of Democratic Floor Leader In House Remains Unfilled

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 3 (AP) — Maryland welcomed a new governor today in William Preston Lane, Jr., with one major administrative problem still clouding complete organization of the 1947 General Assembly.

Lane, 56-year-old Hagerstown publisher, attorney and businessman took the oath of office at 12:06 p. m., in the short but historic ceremony in the Senate chamber.

Almost as he spoke the words which made him governor, discussion ran through the House that Delegate Anthony F. Didomenico (D-Balto 2nd), 41-year-old attorney, had been selected for the vital post of Democratic majority floor leader in the House.

There was no official comment from the new Governor or any other source, but it was generally agreed that the young Baltimore lawyer would be named to break a deadlock which has existed since the 1947 session opened Wednesday night.

The selection, obviously, would not please all House Democrats and one prominent candidate for the leadership, who declined use of his name, forecast that the administration might have trouble in holding some members in line.

Adjourn Until Tuesday

Since both houses adjourned until Tuesday afternoon, no official announcement of Didomenico's appointment could be made over the weekend.

Gov. Lane, who was sworn in by Chief Judge Ogle Marbury of the Court of Appeals, succeeded Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, who resigned as of noon today to be in Washington to take his oath as a member of the United States Senate.

After Lane took the oath he made a brief statement and told the joint meeting of House and Senate:

"The honor brings me a sense of humility, the responsibilities I do not fear, because I am confident that by co-operation and understanding between us we can surmount the difficulties that we face.

"I ask for and I know there will be co-operation and mutual understanding between us. My door will always be open."

Lane was elected yesteray by the Assembly to serve out the last five days of O'Conor's term—the first time a Legislature has chosen a governor since William Pinkney Whyte resigned in 1874 to go to the Senate and was succeeded by James B. Groome for two years.

110 More Bills Offered

After his brief talk and congratulations, Lane went to his office and later joined his family for their first luncheon in the executive mansion. He said he expected to remain in Annapolis over the weekend, settling down in office and working on

Nine Men On Polar Flight Are Missing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — The Navy disclosed tonight that nine naval air explorers are missing in the desolate region of the South Polar Ice Belt, four days overdue on a scouting flight from the Navy's sea-borne Antarctic expedition.

First reports said only eight men were aboard the missing plane, a two-engined patrol bomber, but this was later found to be erroneous.

Garbled radio communication blacked out reports on a widespread and developing search for the lost aircraft. A faint clicking, too low to be deciphered, was the only contact late today between the Navy's receiving station here and the expedition's flagship far down at the bottom of the world.

First messages reaching the Navy here said the missing plane took off from the seaplane tender USS Pine Island at 5:45 a. m. (E. S. T.) December 30 and was due to return at 3:45 p. m. the same day. The plane is a two-engined PBM Mariner seaplane.

Capt. Henry Howard Caldwell, Norfolk, Va., commander of the Pine Island, was reported among the men aboard the plane. He is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Knutson's Bill Cutting Taxes Causes Storm

Measure Calling For 20 Per Cent Slash Runs Into Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Republicans offered as House Bill No. 1 of the new Congress today a measure to cut individual income taxes a total of $3,350,000,000.

For most taxpayers it would mean a 20 per cent cut.

Controversy broke out immediately. Some Republicans as well as Democrats criticized the measure. The opposition cried for government economy, budget balancing and debt reduction, ahead of tax slashing.

The bill was offered by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the tax-drafting House Ways and Means Committee. It proposes a slash by 20 per cent in the tax load of all individual income less than $300,000 annually, effective January 1, 1947.

76.5 Per Cent Maximum

But, declaring that "in general, incomes above $300,000 are unearned," Knutson wrote into the measure a stipulation that on income above that amount the reduction would be held to 10.5 per cent.

Additionally, the bill sets out:

1. The income of no persons, however high it might be, shall be taxed over 76.5 per cent. The present law permits taking away as much as 85.5 per cent of an income by taxes.

2. On April 1 all tax withholdings from pay envelopes and salary checks shall be reduced to meet the tax reduction. Each individual can figure roughly his own cut in withholdings by deducting 20 per cent from what is now being withheld. If the bill becomes law he will get a refund on overpayments of withholdings from January 1 to April 1.

3. An added advantage to taxpayers over 65 years old is granted, with each person in that age group being allowed an additional exemption of $500, making a total $1,000 of income exempt from taxes.

Would Raise Exemption

Rep. Engle (R-Mich), following right behind Knutson, introduced a bill proposing to raise the income tax exemption of single persons from $500 to $1,000 and of married couples from $1,000 to $2,000.

"If we're going to have any tax reduction," Engle told reporters, "let's give it to the people who need it to eat."

There was no immediate sign that Knutson's late revision of the measure had lessened the opposition by Democrats and some other Republicans.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) told newsmen: "Before we reduce taxes we must reduce government expenditures, eliminating many thousands of federal employes, remove duplicating federal activities and make other economies. We must balance the budget and pay something on the debt. Then, when we can, cut taxes."

West Va. Slayer Dies On Gallows

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 3—(AP)—Twenty-one-year-old Billy Gordon, maintaining the silent calm he had displayed since entering the state penitentiary here, was hanged tonight for the shotgun slaying of a Bluefield housewife who had befriended him.

Gordon, pale and slightly nervous but displaying no sign of deep emotion, replied clearly "No sir, I haven't," when Warden M. E. Ketchum asked if he had anything to say.

The trap was sprung at 8:53 p. m. (EST), and 14 minutes later, at 9:07 p. m., he was pronounced dead by Dr. R. A. Ashworth and Dr. S. F. Yoho, prison physicians.

Gordon, a former sailor from Columbia, S. C., was sentenced from Mercer county for the murder of Mrs. Josephine Carr, 38, mother of a Navy buddy of Gordon, last April 1.

Dewey Carr, husband of the slain woman, was among the 40 persons who witnessed the execution, described as one of the briefest in recent years. It was the 80th in the penitentiary's history.

PRAYER OPENS CONGRESS— Led by Rev. James Shera Montgomery, House chaplain, members of the House of Representatives bow their heads in prayer as the first session of the 80th Congress opened at noon yesterday. The House session lasted two hours and 22 minutes and only the whoops and yells of jubilant Republicans electing Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, speaker after their 15 years in eclipse disturbed the calm.

Palestine Jews Urged To Help Quell Violence

British Troop Casualties Increased To Eight Wounded, One Killed

JERUSALEM, Jan. 3. (AP)—Fervant pleas from the Jewish Community Council imploring Palestine Jews to help quell the latest outbreak of Holy Land violence were met today with new blows from the underground forces which increased British troop casualties to eight wounded and one killed in the past 24 hours.

The underground forces launched one of their biggest attacks against British military installations last night. In a quick answer to the challenge, British troops arrested 61 Jews in searches of three Tel Aviv sections as they screened a total of 3,251 persons. Searches continued in two other quarters of the modern all-Jewish metropolis.

It was officially announced that, because of the "terrorist activity and the threat to kidnap British soldiers," all troops had been ordered for their personal safety to carry arms at all times and to walk at least in pairs when they were outside of barracks.

In addition to the British soldiers a score of civilians including Jews and Arabs, were injured as a result of last night's outbreak, in which the underground used homemade flame throwers, grenades, mines and automatic weapons in attacks in at least 12 places.

(In London the Palestine High Commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, and Field Marshal Lord Montgomery conferred with Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones. British government sources said they talked about methods of smashing the underground activities.)

Leaflets distributed by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, intimated that the attacks would be continued against British military installations.

The emergency committee of Vaad Leumi, the Jewish Community Council, plastered housewalls in Jerusalems with its pleas, condemning violence in the strongest terms, and urging Palestine Jews to do their utmost to end these "irresponsible acts."

Despite the pleas three British soldiers were injured today when their jeep was blown up near Kfar Sirkin, about nine miles east of Tel Aviv. Last night's major troop casualties were suffered in similar incidents in the Haifa area, with three soldiers and an officers killed when their bren gun carrier struck a mine and overturned.

Missing Coed Walks Into Home Unharmed; Ex-Convict Is Nabbed

Girl Denies Accompanying "Old Fool" Who "Wanted To Marry Me" Of Own Volition

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—Robert H. Hemming, 42-year-old ex-convict who was the object of a wide police hunt after disappearing Wednesday with a 20-year-old Ohio State University coed, was arrested tonight in a downtown Cleveland hotel a few hours after the girl returned to her parents' home here.

Police Chief Frank D. Carey, of Upper Arlington, left with Patrolmen Albert Morton and Joseph Greene for Cleveland to return Hemming here.

The pretty coed, red-haired Mary Virginia Kimberly, walked in the back door of her suburban home late today, apparently unharmed, and was given treatment by a physician and put to bed. She had been missing from her home since New Year's Day.

Cleveland Detectives George Buckingham and John W. Masterson said Hemming offered no resistance when they arrested him at his hotel room and readily admitted his identity, although he had registered as "Richard Sherman" and given a non-existent street address in neighboring Lakewood.

"Escaped" From Hemming

The detectives said Hemming told them he put Miss Kimberly on a train for Columbus earlier in the day. In Columbus, the college senior told her father, Prof. E. E. Kimberly, of Ohio State University Electrical Engineering Department, that she had escaped from Hemming in Cleveland about noon.

She denied that she had gone with Hemming of "her own volition."

"The old fool just wanted to marry me," the nervous girl was quoted by her father.

The father said his daughter took a train from Cleveland and a cab from Columbus' Union Station.

"She was in much better shape than I imagined she would be," Prof. Kimberly declared.

U.S. Will Take Hand In Portal Pay Case

[By The Associated Press]

The government won permission Friday to intervene in the efforts of workers to collect several billion dollars in retroactive portal-to-portal pay as the flood of such suits continued unabated.

Claims exceeding more than $180,000,000 were filed during the day, boosting to at least $2,896,307,000 the amount sought from employers throughout the country.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard, of Detroit, whose ruling in the Mt. Clemens, Mich., Pottery Company case touched off the avalanche of portal pay suits, granted a motion in Detroit permitting the Justice Department to intervene in the case.

Assistant United States Attorney Morris Zwerdling said the government was interested in a "fair in-

Move Delays New Senate's Organization

CONTINUOUS SESSION THREATENED BY TAFT

36 Senators Unable To Take Oath; Barkley Offers Compromise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — Balked in their efforts to seat Sen. Bilbo (D-Miss), southerners struck back today with a filibuster which prevented the organization of the new Senate.

After hours of tumultuous debate and parliamentary skirmishing, the chamber recessed early this evening until noon, EST., tomorrow.

No final decision had been reached on whether the Mississippi Senator, accused of intimidating negroes from voting and of violating the law in his dealings with war contractors, should be barred or not.

But for the time being at least, he was prevented from taking the oath.

Raising the banner of states' rights, a group of southerners began a talkfest which delayed the swearing in of 36 new and re-elected senators and the formal Republican accession to power which the November voters decreed.

A threat to hold the Senate in continuous session unless southern senators abandon their filibustering effort to get Bilbo seated was made by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) tonight.

Explaining in a radio broadcast why the Republicans had been unable to complete organization of the Senate today, Taft said:

"The filibustering senators insisted that the Senate should not be organized at all unless Sen. Bilbo was sworn in.

"I hope that Bilbo's supporters may recede from this position tomorrow.

"Otherwise it will probably be necessary to hold the Senate in continuous session until organization is effected."

Barkley Offers Compromise

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), in the forefront of the movement to bar Bilbo, told a reporter that Republicans are "determined to break this filibuster."

After tomorrow's session, he said, advocates of seating Bilbo, will be given "time to think it over Sunday."

"If they still are filibustering Monday," he said, "we are going to keep the Senate in session night and day until they give up."

Sen. Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic leader, told reporters after the Senate quit for the day that he is offering the Republicans a compromise under which Bilbo would be seated for the time being and his case called up for Senate action January 17.

The Barkley proposal would include a provision setting out that the Senate should decide Bilbo's fate by a majority vote. But Senator Taft (R-Ohio), an anti-Bilbo leader, told reporters he doubts that the Senate could bind itself in that matter. He expressed belief a two-thirds vote would be needed to oust Bilbo once he was seated, even temporarily.

The Ohio Senator said the Repub-

Former Kamikaze Pilot Is Offered Scholarship By Dead GI's Parents

TOKYO, Jan. 3 (AP) — A former Kamikaze pilot who "naturally wanted to kill as many Americans as possible" during the war, is going to America — some day — for a college education offered by the parents of a United States Army private who was killed on Luzon.

The scholarship at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., was set up by Mr. and Mrs. Robert McC. Johnstone, Downing Town, Pa., with the $10,000 government insurance paid for the death of their son, Robert.

The Johnstones said the scholarship was suggested by Robert himself before he was killed in 1945, in the hope that it would cause better understanding between Japanese and Americans.

The award was made to Robert Yukimmasa Nishiyama, husky, mild-mannered 22-year-old former naval flier who was given his first name by a Christian father. He will go to Pennsylvania whenever the ban on Japanese travel is lifted.

In an interview today, Nishiyama said, "I want to try my best to repay Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone for the loss of their son; I can do this only by giving my small bit toward establishing good will between our two countries.

"I was surprised that the Americans were so nice as to offer such a scholarship and more surprised when I got a quick answer acknowledging the application I made last February."

Nishiyama, who is married to a 1940 graduate of Stanford University, said he hoped to take his wife and their 4-month-old daughter to America with him. His wife's parents live in Berkeley, Calif.

Speaking excellent English with a slight accent, Nishiyama said, "I want to forget my time in the navy. As a midshipman in the naval air force I naturally wanted to kill as many Americans as possible. I couldn't stand by when my country was in danger."

Nevertheless, he said that after volunteering for the Kamikaze suicide air corps in August, 1944, he was relieved that the war ended before his first — and last — mission, scheduled for October, 1945.

Bus Passengers Spend Hour Of Terror As Crazed Brothers Beat Driver, Fire Bullets Into Floor

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—An hour of terror on a speeding Greyhound bus, in which two brothers went berserk, beat the driver and fired 14 shots among the 23 passengers was described here today.

Women prayed and men cringed as the vehicle roared through rain and mist in the darkness of midnight with a drink-crazed man directing the driver.

To enforce his demands for more speed or less speed, the shouting, laughing figure temporarily in command held a jagged whisky bottle to the driver's throat and banged him on the head with a pistol.

The nightmare ended when passengers overpowered the men at Wheelersburg, a Portsmouth suburb, about 1 a. m. today.

"Boy, I was scared to death all the time," Driver C. L. Stillwell, 36, Charleston, W. Va., declared tonight as he recounted the 30-mile trip along the Ohio river from Ironton, O. to Wheelersburg.

Stillwell was weak from loss of blood as he rested in a hospital, but otherwise was in good condition. Lawrence Steele, Cincinnati, a passenger, was treated for a broken nose.

In jail here, were Hobart Griffith, 26, an ex-soldier released from a veterans' hospital a month ago, and Ray Griffith, 20. From Wheelwright, Ky., the Griffith brothers had been rooming at Huntington, W. Va., where they were employed They were en route to Cincinnati.

Hobart, described by Deputy Sheriff Burl Justice as the man who beat the driver with a pistol, was charged with shooting with intent to kill. Ray was charged with assault.

The brothers were attacked by a crowd of Wheelersburg citizens, aroused by the passengers' harrowing accounts, and sheriff's deputies had to rescue them and rush them to jail.

The pair boarded the bus at Huntington over the objection of Stillwell, who said they had been drinkink. The excitement began after the bus left Ironton when Stillwell remonstrated with the men because of their language.

Hobart, said Deputy Justice, fired shots through the floor of the bus and into the driver's seat. Then he took command of the bus and operated the accelerator while the driver stove desperately to steer.

"I don't know how we got through the sharp S-curve underpass at Hanging Rock," Stillwell said. "The underpass is on a steep curve and we were doing 40 miles an hour."

While the shooting was in progress Mrs. Phyllis Reed, Richmond, Ind., covered her two-year-son William with her body to protect him.

The climax came, Officer Justice said, when Hobart announced he was going to shoot all the war veterans and then drive the bus and the others into the Ohio river.

"You're first," Justice said Hobart told the driver, "but I don't want to shoot you sitting down. You must stand up."

Stillwell had to stop the bus to stand up. Then the passengers jumped Griffith and his brother.

UDA Launches Drive To Round Up "Liberals" In Progressive Front

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—With blessings from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a suggestion from Chester Bowles to shun third party politics, the Union for Democratic Action tonight launched a drive to round up "American Liberals" in a progressive front.

Bowles told a dinner meeting of the UDA "not to harbor any illusions about a third party" but to keep clear of Communist infiltration and try to capture the Democratic party —"with all its faults" in 1948.

Tomorrow UDA opens an all-day closed meeting at the Willard Hotel here to draft a "progressive" program for the nation, built around itself as the core.

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that a liberal leadership will "have a tremendous job because it will have the job of waking a sleeping people."

She told the audience of 400—many of them New Deal followers of her late husband—that "we must make up our minds as progressives what is the way the United States must walk."

"Then we must see that it is a way that takes into account the needs of the rest of the world. Then x x x we can ask both the right and the left to walk our way.

"I have not the slightest fear that we can be overcome by either Communism or Fascism if we really know what we want and say it in words simply enough for everybody to understand."

Wilson Wyatt, squeezed out one month ago as housing expediter, received an ovation second only to that accorded Mrs. Roosevelt, and made his first public utterance since his return to private life.

"The American people are confused and puzzled," he said. "They are looking for dynamic, living liberal democracy."

Wyatt sharply criticized what he called the government's "trickle" policy on housing as being something that he thought "went out with Herbert Hoover."

"The trickle policy," he said, "is one which builds houses for the wealthiest citizens, which creates vacancies for the next lower economic class, and so on until the veteran finds a home up some side street in an obsolent and decadent neighborhood."

Post Of Democratic Floor Leader In House Remains Unfilled

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 3 (AP) — Maryland welcomed a new governor today in William Preston Lane, Jr., with one major administrative problem still clouding complete organization of the 1947 General Assembly.

Lane, 56-year-old Hagerstown publisher, attorney and businessman took the oath of office at 12:06 p. m., in the short but historic ceremony in the Senate chamber.

Almost as he spoke the words which made him governor, discussion ran through the House that Delegate Anthony F. Didomenico (D-Balto 2nd), 41-year-old attorney, had been selected for the vital post of Democratic majority floor leader in the House.

There was no official comment from the new Governor or any other source, but it was generally agreed that the young Baltimore lawyer would be named to break a deadlock which has existed since the 1947 session opened Wednesday night.

The selection, obviously, would not please all House Democrats and one prominent candidate for the leadership, who declined use of his name, forecast that the administration might have trouble in holding some members in line.

Adjourn Until Tuesday

Since both houses adjourned until Tuesday afternoon, no official announcement of Didomenico's appointment could be made over the weekend.

Gov. Lane, who was sworn in by Chief Judge Ogle Marbury of the Court of Appeals, succeeded Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, who resigned as of noon today to be in Washington to take his oath as a member of the United States Senate.

After Lane took the oath he made a brief statement and told the joint meeting of House and Senate:

"The honor brings me a sense of humility, the responsibilities I do not fear, because I am confident that by co-operation and understanding between us we can surmount the difficulties that we face.

"I ask for and I know there will be co-operation and mutual understanding between us. My door will always be open."

Lane was elected yesteray by the Assembly to serve out the last five days of O'Conor's term—the first time a Legislature has chosen a governor since William Pinkney Whyte resigned in 1874 to go to the Senate and was succeeded by James B. Groome for two years.

110 More Bills Offered

After his brief talk and congratulations, Lane went to his office and later joined his family for their first luncheon in the executive mansion. He said he expected to remain in Annapolis over the weekend, settling down in office and working on

Knutson's Bill Cutting Taxes Causes Storm

Measure Calling For 20 Per Cent Slash Runs Into Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Republicans offered as House Bill No. 1 of the new Congress today a measure to cut individual income taxes a total of $3,350,000,000.

For most taxpayers it would mean a 20 per cent cut.

Controversy broke out immediately. Some Republicans as well as Democrats criticized the measure. The opposition cried for government economy, budget balancing and debt reduction, ahead of tax slashing.

The bill was offered by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the tax-drafting House Ways and Means Committee. It proposes a slash by 20 per cent in the tax load of all individual income less than $300,000 annually, effective January 1, 1947.

76.5 Per Cent Maximum

But, declaring that "in general, incomes above $300,000 are unearned," Knutson wrote into the measure a stipulation that on income above that amount the reduction would be held to 10.5 per cent.

Additionally, the bill sets out:

1. The income of no persons, however high it might be, shall be taxed over 76.5 per cent. The present law permits taking away as much as 85.5 per cent of an income by taxes.

2. On April 1 all tax withholdings from pay envelopes and salary checks shall be reduced to meet the tax reduction. Each individual can figure roughly his own cut in withholdings by deducting 20 per cent from what is now being withheld. If the bill becomes law he will get a refund on overpayments of withholdings from January 1 to April 1.

3. An added advantage to taxpayers over 65 years old is granted, with each person in that age group being allowed an additional exemption of $500, making a total $1,000 of income exempt from taxes.

Would Raise Exemption

Rep. Engle (R-Mich), following right behind Knutson, introduced a bill proposing to raise the income tax exemption of single persons from $500 to $1,000 and of married couples from $1,000 to $2,000.

"If we're going to have any tax reduction," Engle told reporters, "let's give it to the people who need it to eat."

There was no immediate sign that Knutson's late revision of the measure had lessened the opposition by Democrats and some other Republicans.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) told newsmen: "Before we reduce taxes we must reduce government expenditures, eliminating many thousands of federal employes, remove duplicating federal activities and make other economies. We must balance the budget and pay something on the debt. Then, when we can, cut taxes."

West Va. Slayer Dies On Gallows

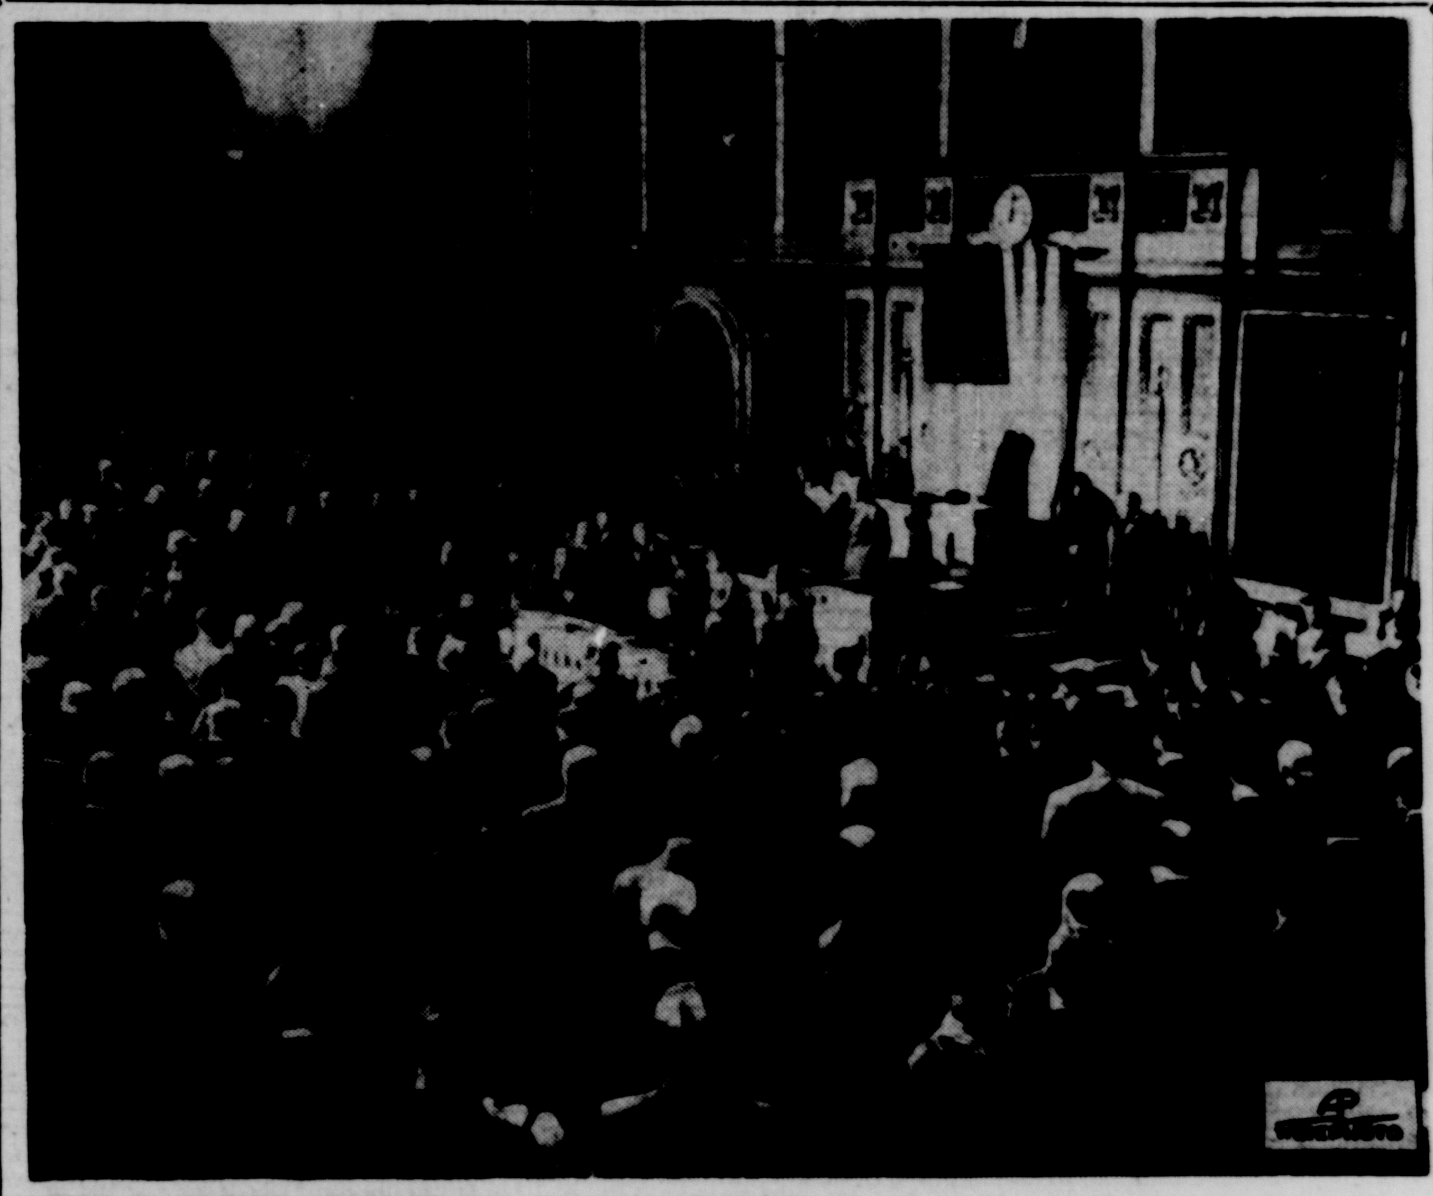
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 3—(AP)—Twenty-one-year-old Billy Gordon, maintaining the silent calm he had displayed since entering the state penitentiary here, was hanged tonight for the shotgun slaying of a Bluefield housewife who had befriended him.

Gordon, pale and slightly nervous but displaying no sign of deep emotion, replied clearly "No sir, I haven't," when Warden M. E. Ketchum asked if he had anything to say.

The trap was sprung at 8:53 p. m. (EST), and 14 minutes later, at 9:07 p. m., he was pronounced dead by Dr. R. A. Ashworth and Dr. S. F. Yoho, prison physicians.

Gordon, a former sailor from Columbia, S. C., was sentenced from Mercer county for the murder of Mrs. Josephine Carr, 38, mother of a Navy buddy of Gordon, last April 1.

Dewey Carr, husband of the slain woman, was among the 40 persons who witnessed the execution, described as one of the briefest in recent years. It was the 80th in the penitentiary's history.



PRAYER OPENS CONGRESS— Led by Rev. James Shera Montgomery, House chaplain, members of the House of Representatives bow their heads in prayer as the first session of the 80th Congress opened at noon yesterday. The House session lasted two hours and 22 minutes and only the whoops and yells of jubilant Republicans electing Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, speaker after their 15 years in eclipse disturbed the calm.

Palestine Jews Urged To Help Quell Violence

British Troop Casualties Increased To Eight Wounded, One Killed

JERUSALEM, Jan. 3. (AP)—Fervant pleas from the Jewish Community Council imploring Palestine Jews to help quell the latest outbreak of Holy Land violence were met today with new blows from the underground forces which increased British troop casualties to eight wounded and one killed in the past 24 hours.

The underground forces launched one of their biggest attacks against British military installations last night. In a quick answer to the challenge, British troops arrested 61 Jews in searches of three Tel Aviv sections as they screened a total of 3,251 persons. Searches continued in two other quarters of the modern all-Jewish metropolis.

It was officially announced that, because of the "terrorist activity and the threat to kidnap British soldiers," all troops had been ordered for their personal safety to carry arms at all times and to walk at least in pairs when they were outside of barracks.

In addition to the British soldiers a score of civilians including Jews and Arabs, were injured as a result of last night's outbreak, in which the underground used home-made flame throwers, grenades, mines and automatic weapons in attacks in at least 12 places.

(In London the Palestine High Commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, and Field Marshal Lord Montgomery conferred with Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones. British government sources said they talked about methods of smashing the underground activities.)

Leaflets distributed by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, intimated that the attacks would be continued against British military installations.

The emergency committee of Vaad Leumi, the Jewish Community Council, plastered housewalls in Jerusalems with its pleas, condemning violence in the strongest terms, and urging Palestine Jews to do their utmost to end these "irresponsible acts."

Despite the pleas three British soldiers were injured today when their jeep was blown up near Kfar Sirkin, about nine miles east of Tel Aviv. Last night's major troop casualties were suffered in similar incidents in the Haifa area, with three soldiers and an officers killed when their bren gun carrier struck a mine and overturned.

U.S. Will Take Hand In Portal Pay Case

[By The Associated Press]

The government won permission Friday to intervene in the efforts of workers to collect several billion dollars in retroactive portal-to-portal pay as the flood of such suits continued unabated.

Claims exceeding more than $180,000,000 were filed during the day, boosting to at least $2,896,307,000 the amount sought from employers throughout the country.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard, of Detroit, whose ruling in the Mt. Clemens, Mich., Pottery Company case touched off the avalanche of portal pay suits, granted a motion in Detroit permitting the Justice Department to intervene in the case.

Assistant United States Attorney Morris Zwerdling said the government was interested in a "fair in-

Girl Denies Accompanying "Old Fool" Who "Wanted To Marry Me" Of Own Volition

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—Robert H. Hemming, 42-year-old ex-convict who was the object of a wide police hunt after disappearing Wednesday with a 20-year-old Ohio State University coed, was arrested tonight in a downtown Cleveland hotel a few hours after the girl returned to her parents' home here.

Police Chief Frank D. Carey, of Upper Arlington, left with Patrolmen Albert Morton and Joseph Greene for Cleveland to return Hemming here.

The pretty coed, red-haired Mary Virginia Kimberly, walked in the back door of her suburban home late today, apparently unharmed, and was given treatment by a physician and put to bed. She had been missing from her home since New Year's Day.

Cleveland Detectives George Buckingham and John W. Masterson said Hemming offered no resistance when they arrested him at his hotel room and readily admitted his identity, although he had registered as "Richard Sherman" and given a non-existent street address in neighboring Lakewood.

"Escaped" From Hemming

The detectives said Hemming told them he put Miss Kimberly on a train for Columbus earlier in the day. In Columbus, the college senior told her father, Prof. E. E. Kimberly, of Ohio State University Electrical Engineering Department, that she had escaped from Hemming in Cleveland about noon.

She denied that she had gone with Hemming of "her own volition."

"The old fool just wanted to marry me," the nervous girl was quoted by her father.

The father said his daughter took a train from Cleveland and a cab from Columbus' Union Station.

"She was in much better shape than I imagined she would be," Prof. Kimberly declared.

Move Delays New Senate's Organization

36 Senators Unable To Take Oath; Barkley Offers Compromise

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — Balked in their efforts to seat Sen. Bilbo (D-Miss), southerners struck back today with a filibuster which prevented the organization of the new Senate.

After hours of tumultuous debate and parliamentary skirmishing, the chamber recessed early this evening until noon, EST., tomorrow.

No final decision had been reached on whether the Mississippi Senator, accused of intimidating negroes from voting and of violating the law in his dealings with war contractors, should be barred or not.

But for the time being at least, he was prevented from taking the oath.

Raising the banner of states' rights, a group of southerners began a talkfest which delayed the swearing in of 36 new and re-elected senators and the formal Republican accession to power which the November voters decreed.

A threat to hold the Senate in continuous session unless southern senators abandon their filibustering effort to get Bilbo seated was made by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) tonight.

Explaining in a radio broadcast why the Republicans had been unable to complete organization of the Senate today, Taft said:

"The filibustering senators insisted that the Senate should not be organized at all unless Sen. Bilbo was sworn in.

"I hope that Bilbo's supporters may recede from this position tomorrow.

Barkley Offers Compromise

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), in the forefront of the movement to bar Bilbo, told a reporter that Republicans are "determined to break this filibuster."

After tomorrow's session, he said, advocates of seating Bilbo, will be given "time to think it over Sunday."

"If they still are filibustering Monday," he said, "we are going to keep the Senate in session night and day until they give up."

Sen. Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic leader, told reporters after the Senate quit for the day that he is offering the Republicans a compromise under which Bilbo would be seated for the time being and his case called up for Senate action January 17.

The Barkley proposal would include a provision setting out that the Senate should decide Bilbo's fate by a majority vote. But Senator Taft (R-Ohio), an anti-Bilbo leader, told reporters he doubts that the Senate could bind itself in that matter. He expressed belief a two-thirds vote would be needed to oust Bilbo once he was seated, even temporarily.

The Ohio Senator said the Repub-

Bus Passengers Spend Hour Of Terror As Crazed Brothers Beat Driver, Fire Bullets Into Floor

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 3 (AP)—An hour of terror on a speeding Greyhound bus, in which two brothers went berserk, beat the driver and fired 14 shots among the 23 passengers was described here today.

Women prayed and men cringed as the vehicle roared through rain and mist in the darkness of midnight with a drink-crazed man directing the driver.

To enforce his demands for more speed or less speed, the shouting, laughing figure temporarily in command held a jagged whisky bottle to the driver's throat and banged him on the head with a pistol.

The nightmare ended when passengers overpowered the men at Wheelersburg, a Portsmouth suburb, about 1 a. m. today.

"Boy, I was scared to death all the time," Driver C. L. Stillwell, 36, Charleston, W. Va., declared tonight as he recounted the 30-mile trip along the Ohio river from Ironton, O. to Wheelersburg.

Stillwell was weak from loss of blood as he rested in a hospital, but otherwise was in good condition. Lawrence Steele, Cincinnati, a passenger, was treated for a broken nose.

In jail here, were Hobart Griffith, 26, an ex-soldier released from a veterans' hospital a month ago, and Ray Griffith, 20. From Wheelwright, Ky., the Griffith brothers had been rooming at Huntington, W. Va., where they were employed They were en route to Cincinnati.

Hobart, described by Deputy Sheriff Burl Justice as the man who beat the driver with a pistol, was charged with shooting with intent to kill. Ray was charged with assault.

The brothers were attacked by a crowd of Wheelersburg citizens, aroused by the passengers' harrowing accounts, and sheriff's deputies had to rescue them and rush them to jail.

The pair boarded the bus at Huntington over the objection of Stillwell, who said they had been drinkink. The excitement began after the bus left Ironton when Stillwell remonstrated with the men because of their language.

Hobart, said Deputy Justice, fired shots through the floor of the bus and into the driver's seat. Then he took command of the bus and operated the accelerator while the driver stove desperately to steer.

"I don't know how we got through the sharp S-curve underpass at Hanging Rock," Stillwell said. "The underpass is on a steep curve and we were doing 40 miles an hour."

While the shooting was in progress Mrs. Phyllis Reed, Richmond, Ind., covered her two-year-son William with her body to protect him.

The climax came, Officer Justice said, when Hobart announced he was going to shoot all the war veterans and then drive the bus and the others into the Ohio river.

"You're first," Justice said Hobart told the driver, "but I don't want to shoot you sitting down. You must stand up."

Stillwell had to stop the bus to stand up. Then the passengers jumped Griffith and his brother.

UDA Launches Drive To Round Up "Liberals" In Progressive Front

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—With blessings from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a suggestion from Chester Bowles to shun third party politics, the Union for Democratic Action tonight launched a drive to round up "American Liberals" in a progressive front.

Bowles told a dinner meeting of the UDA "not to harbor any illusions about a third party" but to keep clear of Communist infiltration and try to capture the Democratic party—"with all its faults" in 1948.

Tomorrow UDA opens an all-day closed meeting at the Willard Hotel here to draft a "progressive" program for the nation, built around itself as the core.

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that a liberal leadership will "have a tremendous job because it will have the job of waking a sleeping people."

She told the audience of 400—many of them New Deal followers of her late husband—that "we must make up our minds as progressives what is the way the United States must walk."

"Then we must see that it is a way that takes into account the needs of the rest of the world. Then x x x we can ask both the right and the left to walk our way.

"I have not the slightest fear that we can be overcome by either Communism or Fascism if we really know what we want and say it in words simply enough for everybody to understand."

Wilson Wyatt, squeezed out one month ago as housing expediter, received an ovation second only to that accorded Mrs. Roosevelt, and made his first public utterance since his return to private life.

"The American people are confused and puzzled," he said. "They are looking for dynamic, living liberal democracy."

Wyatt sharply criticized what he called the government's "trickle" policy on housing as being something that he thought "went out with Herbert Hoover."

"The trickle policy," he said, "is one which builds houses for the wealthiest citizens, which creates vacancies for the next lower economic class, and so on until the veteran finds a home up some side street in an obsolent and decadent neighborhood."

Advice To The Lovelorn

Man, 33, In State Of Depression, Does Not Want To Live Any Longer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please let me know how to build up hopes for myself.

I am a man of 33, with a wife and seven children, and I am tired of this world. It is too hard to live in.

My father died when I was nine years old, and I went to work when I was 11. As I look at things now, I wonder why I should live and suffer any longer, and raise my family to suffer, too. Things are getting harder every day. I have no one to help me along, for this is my own battle and I feel I have lost, it so I surrender. The saying, "Death ends all suffering," looks like the only help for me and my family.

Like all poor men, I made the mistake of trying to raise a family. When people find out that you have a big family to support, and you have to work for them, then they want you to work for less money. Yes, people laugh at poor men, even when the poor man's sons fight and die for them. Is death not the best hope?

"E. V."

In your state of depression and despair, "E. V.," it would seem mockery for anyone to tell you that surrender is never the right answer to any battle of life, no matter how hopeless is may sometimes seem. You would not believe it if you were told that there is always some way out if you can hold on until you can find it yourself, or someone can help you find it.

But did you know that there is someone who would really try to help you find that way out? If you will write a letter, giving your name and address to Dr. H. M. Warren, National Save-A-Life League, 505 Fifth avenue, New York 17, N. Y., he will see that someone in your vicinity gets in touch with you who will do his best to help you solve the problems that have become too much for you. Won't you do this?

Interest Is Waning

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After going with a boy for three weeks, he told me he loved me. I didn't believe him, and I told him so.

Now, about six weeks later, I find I do love him and he claims he really loves me. He said that at first he only went out with me to forget a girl he liked very much and that when he told me he loved me, he didn't mean it. But now he is sure, and he wants me to believe him.

I don't see him as much as I used to, but when I do he tells me he still feels the same. It seems to me, though, that this past week he has been losing interest. How can I be sure he does love me?

"VETERAN'S SWEETHEART."

I think you should have stayed with your first answer to this boy and gone right on not believing him when he said he loved you. And if it seems that he's losing whatever interest he had in you, you're undoubtedly quite right. You wouldn't get a feeling like that if it weren't true.

You don't give your age, but you should be old enough to know that you two have only been playing at love. As for wanting to know how you can be sure he loves you, here's my answer: I'm sure he doesn't.

Stop Dreaming, Brother!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man, 26, just discharged from the service, and I can't get a girl friend. I have no luck with the girls. I want to get married and have my own home, but I don't seem to succeed.

I dream of love and think about it almost all day. I was in love once, but she married another fellow.

A. D. T."

Instead of doing so much dreaming, "A. D. T.," I'd suggest that you try a little direct action. Make some definite plans about how to meet girls and then carry them out. There are plenty of good reputable ways in which you can get acquainted with young women in your own age group, and an unmarried veteran in his twenties is just what most of them are looking for.

My advice to you would be to start by joining your local YMCA. Every YMCA has a variety of clubs and activities for young men, and most such organizations arrange parties and dances where men and girls can meet each other.

Look around the place where you work, too, and if there's a girl who attracts you, invite her out; then give her such a good time she'll look forward to a second invitation. Don't try to rush one girl, though. Take as many out as you can find opportunity to do, until you meet one with whom you are especially congenial.

You probably let yourself get discouraged when your first girl married someone else. But keep looking! There are plenty of nice girls dying to meet eligible young men.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Man, 33, In State Of Depression, Does Not Want To Live Any Longer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please let me know how to build up hopes for myself.

I am a man of 33, with a wife and seven children, and I am tired of this world. It is too hard to live in.

My father died when I was nine years old, and I went to work when I was 11. As I look at things now, I wonder why I should live and suffer any longer, and raise my family to suffer, too. Things are getting harder every day. I have no one to help me along, for this is my own battle and I feel I have lost, it so I surrender. The saying, "Death ends all suffering," looks like the only help for me and my family.

Like all poor men, I made the mistake of trying to raise a family. When people find out that you have a big family to support, and you have to work for them, then they want you to work for less money. Yes, people laugh at poor men, even when the poor man's sons fight and die for them. Is death not the best hope?

"E. V."

In your state of depression and despair, "E. V.," it would seem mockery for anyone to tell you that surrender is never the right answer to any battle of life, no matter how hopeless is may sometimes seem. You would not believe it if you were told that there is always some way out if you can hold on until you can find it yourself, or someone can help you find it.

But did you know that there is someone who would really try to help you find that way out? If you will write a letter, giving your name and address to Dr. H. M. Warren, National Save-A-Life League, 505 Fifth avenue, New York 17, N. Y., he will see that someone in your vicinity gets in touch with you who will do his best to help you solve the problems that have become too much for you. Won't you do this?

Interest Is Waning

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After going with a boy for three weeks, he told me he loved me. I didn't believe him, and I told him so.

Now, about six weeks later, I find I do love him and he claims he really loves me. He said that at first he only went out with me to forget a girl he liked very much and that when he told me he loved me, he didn't mean it. But now he is sure, and he wants me to believe him.

I don't see him as much as I used to, but when I do he tells me he still feels the same. It seems to me, though, that this past week he has been losing interest. How can I be sure he does love me?

"VETERAN'S SWEETHEART."

I think you should have stayed with your first answer to this boy and gone right on not believing him when he said he loved you. And if it seems that he's losing whatever interest he had in you, you're undoubtedly quite right. You wouldn't get a feeling like that if it weren't true.

You don't give your age, but you should be old enough to know that you two have only been playing at love. As for wanting to know how you can be sure he loves you, here's my answer: I'm sure he doesn't.

Stop Dreaming, Brother!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man, 26, just discharged from the service, and I can't get a girl friend. I have no luck with the girls. I want to get married and have my own home, but I don't seem to succeed.

I dream of love and think about it almost all day. I was in love once, but she married another fellow.

A. D. T."

Instead of doing so much dreaming, "A. D. T.," I'd suggest that you try a little direct action. Make some definite plans about how to meet girls and then carry them out. There are plenty of good reputable ways in which you can get acquainted with young women in your own age group, and an unmarried veteran in his twenties is just what most of them are looking for.

My advice to you would be to start by joining your local YMCA. Every YMCA has a variety of clubs and activities for young men, and most such organizations arrange parties and dances where men and girls can meet each other.

Look around the place where you work, too, and if there's a girl who attracts you, invite her out; then give her such a good time she'll look forward to a second invitation. Don't try to rush one girl, though. Take as many out as you can find opportunity to do, until you meet one with whom you are especially congenial.

You probably let yourself get discouraged when your first girl married someone else. But keep looking! There are plenty of nice girls dying to meet eligible young men.

Huge Assortment Of Problems Confronting 80th Congress

A huge assortment of problems awaits action by the Eightieth Congress, including tax reduction, reduction of government expenditures. High on the list also is the labor problem, which may be moved into top position by events of the next few weeks.

The House now is composed of 246 Republicans, 188 Democrats, and Communist spokesman from New York City by the name of Marcantonio. The Senate has 51 Republicans and 45 Democrats. This is the first time in sixteen years that the Republicans have had control of the House, the first time in fourteen years that they have controlled the Senate.

Whether tax cuts, labor legislation or reduction in government spending shall take precedence in legislation to be enacted is not important as it is that a thorough job be made when a bill is passed.

The Republicans are not, of course, immune to dissension. The new majorities are made up of men of different shades of opinion, although the differences are neither as bitter nor as acute as those which divide the Democrats of the conservative and radical wings. No congressional majority ever has or ever will work in complete harmony and unison. But the spadework which Republican leaders have done holds the promise that Congress will get to work promptly and efficiently on its legislative chores.

Indications are that there will be cooperation between the Congress and the Presidency instead of the tension ordinarily expected when one political party controls the legislative branch of the Government and the other holds Executive power. This began to make itself felt along about election day when President Truman apparently stopped listening to the yammering of Henry Wallace, Senator Pepper and other self-appointed spokesmen for the ghost of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Since then Mr. Truman apparently decided to be his own kind of President by discontinuing measuring his acts by what the bleeding hearts declare Mr. Roosevelt would have done. In consequence, Mr. Truman and the country, too, have been getting along better. The November balloting demonstrated that the people were fed up with bureaucratic controls. Mr. Truman didn't wait for the new Republican Congress to start to clean up the mess. He promptly liquidated OPA, stopped wage-fixing and abolished other controls that were not working.

That the people had wearied of strikes and of the New Deal practice of buying off union leaders by yielding to whatever they demanded was another mandate that emerged from the ballot box. The President stood firm against John L. Lewis, and doughty John suffered the worst setback of his long, swashbuckling career. The voters had shown, by their ballots, apprehension of the continuing concentration of powers in the Government.

So now, by officially declaring the end of hostilities, the President voluntarily has relinquished 51 war powers, including the power of Government seizure of strike-bound industries. Of course, that puts it up to the Republican Congress to decide what shall be done to minimize strikes and maintain production.

President Truman's proclamation automatically abolishes, six months hence, $1,500,000,000 worth of wartime excise taxes, leaving the Republicans that much less to play with in their promise to ease the burden of taxpayers. By this Mr. Truman has removed himself from a defensive position when he greets the new Congress which convened yesterday, and he has placed responsibility for developing a legislative and fiscal program squarely on the shoulders of the Republicans who won the election. In other words he had put on a race to beat Republicans to the punch, and has done what Republicans had strived to have done many times during the closing days of the 79th Congress.

The Republican Congress has a clear mandate from the electorate as to the course legislation is to take. There need be no compromising, no fumbling, and this certainly is no time for pussyfooting.

As the presidential aspirants identify themselves by protesting that they hadn't given it a thought, their words are chosen to leave a gaping loophole for the abandonment of coyness on a second's notice.

Flock of buzzards has taken up quarters on the roof of a Washington building. Henceforth the threat, "I'll feed you to the buzzards," may have literal meaning in the capital.

Russia Continues To Create Suspicion

It may or may not be significant but it is at least interesting that within a period of 24 hours Soviet Russia made an insistent demand for immediate disarmament of nations and was bluntly accused by a House committee of rearming itself with the products of German plants in the Russian-controlled zone. Somehow or other the two incidents do not fit into any pattern which intelligent peoples can accept.

The American charges, it may be noted, do not come from one individual Representative who might be sounding off for political effect. They are the measured words to be found in the unanimously approved report of a special committee on postwar economic policy and planning. That so serious an indictment would have been laid without factual evidence to support it is simply incredible, especially at a time when every care is being taken by responsible government officials to say or do something which will make more difficult the task of achieving international cooperation for worldwide peace.

It must be concluded, then, that the House committee has indeed uncovered flagrant violations by Russia of the Potsdam agreement. Americans will feel, as the committee feels, that this nation should not yield to the Soviet, without adequate guarantees, the "most secret processes in the field of radar, electronics, communications, chemistry, etc.," which are basic in the superiority of American defense.

So long as Russia uses German factories to turn out munitions for herself, instead of goods badly needed by the German people, she will remain under the suspicion that her pleas for universal disarmament are both meaningless and insincere.

Under the Soviet's unique plan of free enterprise, that seventeen-pound gold nugget found in Russia will go to the state.

Women's spring hats may be smaller, as a fashion note indicates, but can they be funnier?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HEALING LEG ULCERS

THE majority of individuals with varicose ulcers can be helped with proper management. As a rule, more than a simple salve is required for, unless the cause is eliminated, relief is seldom permanent.

The blood carried into the extremities by the arteries returns to the heart thru numerous venous channels. Since man spends much of his time in a standing or sitting position the vital fluid must travel upward against gravity. This is possible because the vessels contain a series of valves along their course which open and shut in a manner similar to the lock gates of a canal. Should enlargement or varicosities appear, the valves no longer hold. Unless the job can be performed satisfactorily by other passageways the back flow will interfere with the nutrition of the tissues.

The area that suffers most is the lower third of the leg, including the ankle. Since the region is in an exposed position and has little protective padding over its bony prominences, injuries are common. The stage is set for an ulcer because the tissues are in no condition to withstand bacterial invasion. As a result, infection sets in and the spot becomes red and puffy. Soon a watery secretion is discharged and a border begins to form which continues to fan out as the germs extend farther and deeper. Now and then pain is so intense that the patient has difficulty in walking and is unable to sleep.

This means that the sore is more than a simple infection. Unless the varicosity is alleviated in one way or another there is no hope for a lasting cure. Both lesions, therefore, demand attention. If the victim goes to bed and keeps the leg elevated on a pillow edema will disappear because the blood is no longer forced to flow uphill. Healing is encouraged if, in addition, warm moist dressings or suitable antiseptic salves or ointments such as penicillin, streptomycin, tyrothricin, or one of the sulfonamides are applied. Unfortunately recurrences are likely if the veins are not eradicated thru surgery or injections.

But many are unable to take time off and desire to continue their daily activities. In the circumstances an elastic bandage must be worn or an Unna paste boot. Sometimes a rubber sponge is placed over the ulceration, which further compresses the area. But, again repair is only temporary. The quickest and best method is to obliterate the affected structures in combination with local treatment. Surgery necessitates a day or two in the hospital; by the end of six weeks the leg is back to normal.

All ulcerative lesions on the lower extremities are not due to varicose veins. Occasionally they complicate milkleg, in which a deep vessel has been obstructer thru inflammation (thrombophlebitis). In others a tumor is responsible or the infection is caused by tuberculosis or syphilis. Ringworm may be to blame and in a few the arteries are at fault, particularly in older individuals with arteriosclerosis. Because the tissues receive too little blood the circulation is so poor that healing is delayed.

BIG HANDED

D. M. writes: Just recently, my hands look much larger. I am 58 years old and have temperate habits. Is there any reason to be alarmed?

REPLY

The chances are that it is harmless but if you wish to find the cause, examination by your family doctor is required. Puffiness of the hands can result from circulatory disturbances or overuse of the parts. Now and then the pituitary gland is at fault but the appearance of this disorder is unusual in one your age.

ONE TEST

H. A. writes: Can a doctor tell if a person has a brain tmor by examining the eyes?

REPLY

This is an important part of the examination but other findings are usually present which aid in making the diagnosis.

ENLARGED LIVER

E. T. writes: What causes the liver to enlarge?

REPLY

Inflammation of the organ as well as congestion resulting from heart failure. Now and then the disorder is noted in cirrhosis and blood affections such as leukemia.

NOT PARTICULARLY

B. C. J. writes: Is a blood pressure of 150 too high for a woman of 45?

REPLY

It is within the upper limits of normal.

OUTSTANDING EVENTS

Now that 1946 is past business and 1947 is a going concern, we can take account of the outstanding events and personalities of the last twelve months.

Longest event of the year—the half hour between Fibber McGee and Red Skelton.

Best book of the year—"So This Is Peace." Not much in literature but it's just dandy for corking bottles.

Candidate for academy award for the year — definitely not Crosby. Barry Fitzgerald is on vacation.

Best supporting player—any child actor who's holding up the family bank account.

Best dialogue—Harry Cohn, who, I understand, is writing a dictionary.

Best sock performances—George Raft.

Most dramatic moment of the year—when Gary Cooper looked into the heroine's eyes and said "Yup."

Most phony publicity stunt of the year—that Butch Jenkins was being groomed to play Dr. Gillespie.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Joe Martin Had Chance To Run For President But Chose To Be Speaker; Martin Voted For Roosevelt's New Deal; Has Chance To Clean Up Congress

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson today awards the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Joseph W. Martin, new Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 — When Joseph William Martin, Jr., was 21 years old he faced a three-way decision between a career or politics, newspapering or professional baseball. He had been star shortstop on the North Attleboro semi-pro team, and had begun a career on the North Attleboro Chronicle. In the end, however, he chose politics. When this decision was announced to his father, the elder Martin advised:

"You'll be better off Joe, if you stick to newspapering. Politics is dirty business."

Joe Martin, however, spurned parental advice, stuck to politics and today becomes the first Republican Speaker of the House of Representatives since the fabulous, almost forgotten days of Nick Longworth.

As such, Joe Martin will be a popular, unspectacular, commonsense leader of the Republican majority. Joe has his feet firmly grounded in the basic caution of his party, but his eyes are not riveted wholly on the past. He does not believe in making a fetish out of tradition merely for tradition's sake; he recognizes the necessity of making concessions to changing times.

When Roosevelt was riding the crest of New Deal reforms, Joe rode the wave too. Once when joshed about his liberal voting record, Martin half-jokingly replied:

"The world moves and I move with it."

Joe is no militant, either in temperament or experience. Nor is he a conservative. Joe is a quiet, friendly, small businessman who believes in honesty and decency in public as well as in private life. He abhors greed, crookedness and public suffering.

No Dictator, Martin

That was why he has championed labor's right to organize, supported social security, voted for the FEPC and many Roosevelt reforms. Once when Martin was approached by Wall Street moguls with a proposal to weaken the Securities and Exchange Commission on the pretext of helping business, he replied that he wouldn't touch their proposition with "a 10-foot pole."

During the pre-Pearl Harbor days when many Republicans were undercutting Roosevelt's preparedness policies, Martin swung his weight vigorously behind the President. He voted for national defense, against isolation, and when the question of lend-lease came before a secret GOP caucus, he advised:

"Read the testimony. Listen carefully to the discussion. Go home and think it over. Use your judgment, but vote like Americans."

The idea of suggestion rather than dictation has been Martin's strategy as a leader. Unlike Senator Taft and some Old Guard members of the Senate, he does not crack the whip. Perhaps he will have to be tougher now that his party is in the majority, but during his eight years as minority leader, Joe has never laid down the law as to how colleagues should vote.

Coolidge's Friend

It was Calvin Coolidge who gave Joe Martin his first real lift in politics. At the age of 23, Joe had been elected to the Massachusetts Senate where he met Coolidge, then Chairman of the Rules Committee. Coolidge made Martin secretary of his committee and the two became

In 1924 when Coolidge ran for re-election, Martin climbed on his band-wagon and was easily elected to Congress. He has been returned to the same seat ever since.

In two Presidential elections, Martin played important backstage roles. One was in the Landon campaign, whom he helped nominate—but could not elect. The other was in the Willkie campaign, when Martin tried to weld together conflicting wings of the Republican party as National Chairman.

In 1940, shortly before Willkie was nominated, several friends urged Martin to run for President himself, and one wealthy Pittsburgh backer offered to put $85,000 behind him.

"There are no strings attached to this," Martin was told. "My friends and I just think you are the best White House timber in the field."

"I have no ambitions in that direction," Martin replied. "I am perfectly satisfied to remain in the House. My one ambition is to be Speaker."

Friendly Enemies

Four years ago, that ambition was almost fulfilled. Rolling up an unexpected vote in the 1942 off-year election, it looked for a moment as if the GOP would control the House of Representatives. In the end, the Democrats won out by a few votes, however, and when it came time to swear in the Speaker, Joe went into the office of Sam Rayburn to escort him to the Speaker's rostrum.

"Sam," said Joe, "I've got bad news for you. I hope you can hold up under the shock. You've been re-elected Speaker."

Actually, Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin have a lot in common. Both are bachelors, both are good friends, both have somewhat the same middle-of-the-road, square-shooter point of view.

Like most bachelors, also, the new Speaker is very fond of children and keeps trinkets in his office to give to friends for their youngsters.

"I can't go without it and my train leaves in 20 minutes," he explained.

Milne rushed the package to the train just in time.

"Say, what's in this, anyhow?." he asked. "Sure must be important. I haven't seen you so agitated about anything since the election."

"It's very important," said the Speaker-elect. "It's a doll for my little grandniece."

Martin's Big Opportunity

Back in the days when Martin was 21 and his father advised him not to go into politics because "politics is dirty business," Joe replied:

"That's why I'm getting into it, dad. It needs to be cleaned up and you can't do that by holding your nose and standing on the sidelines."

Today, the man who made that observation is anything but on the sidelines. He is right in the thick of things, a leader who can, if he wishes, do great things to clean the rotten apples out of the Congressional barrel and lift the badly lowered prestige of Congress. With his abhorrence of greed and crookedness, Joe Martin can do much to purge the pocketbook Congressmen out of our legislative temples—if he really leads.

Amity Between Parties Appears To Be Assured

By MARK SULLIVAN

President Truman's termination of war powers he possessed, with other actions of his, go far to explain a current phenomenon. In the November election his party was defeated in a rancorous contest, and two months later unexpected conditions exist. Good-will for Mr. Truman has increased. There is amity between the defeated party and the victorious one. Instead of the tension commonly expected when one party controls Congress and the other holds the Presidency, there is in fact cooperation. On the part of the public, instead of anxiety there is justification for ease of mind. Instead of feared contention between Congress and the President, there is assurance of orderly government, of government as the Constitution intended.

It is not merely that Mr. Truman, by voluntarily giving up powers he possessed, shows that he has no lust for power for power's sake. It is not merely that after the election he showed himself a good loser, always an engaging quality. In that spirit he not merely accepts the verdict of the election, he takes the initiative in a broad policy which the election called for. He acts on the principle that, in peacetime, government should be carried on, not through executive decrees but under laws passed by Congress; that powers which Congress conferred on the executive for the emergency of war should not be unreasonably continued after the war is over. Instead of leaving it to Congress to take back the powers it granted, Mr. Truman hands them back. His action was, in his own words, a move to "bring our economy and our government back to a peacetime basis."

Effect Of This Spirit

The effect of this spirit, on Congress and in Washington generally, can be understood by recalling what preceded it, during a period of several years. Following the election of Roosevelt in 1932, the spirit of Congress was one of willing acceptance of dominance by the President; for the Congresses of the first five years of the New Deal there was a colloquial word, "rubber-stamp."

That spirit ended, abruptly and decisively, in February, 1937, with Roosevelt's calling upon Congress to change the Supreme Court, by giving him authority to appoint six additional Justices. Although Roosevelt was at the height of his prestige—he had been elected the preceding November with majorities in every state except two—Congress refused to change the Court, and entered into a settled state of mind which felt that Roosevelt wanted too much power. From 1937 on, no important New Deal proposal was adopted by Congress, and after a few years Roosevelt refrained from sending to Congress some proposals which zealous New Dealers urged upon him.

As the war approached, Congress, in the spirit of emergency, gave to Roosevelt powers that were called for, first by preparedness and later by war itself. Presently the old feeling about Roosevelt revived. Some war powers were used in ways that Congress had not anticipated. And there arose in Congress an apprehension, whether justified or not, that some war powers might be continued longer than the war, might become a permanent addition to Executive power. In the later measures conferring war powers, Congress inserted provisions in which it retained for itself power to end the measures if the President should not do so. Some of Roosevelt's later requests for war powers, Congress refused, notedly the proposal for control of manpower. All that, and the spirit of Congress which underlay it, is now ended by Mr. Truman's attitude.

Return to Constitutional Government

The spirit of return to Constitu-

of powers, pervades Washington. In addition to President Truman's restoration to Congress of powers conferred upon him for the war, there was this week a step toward recognition of the prerogative of both Congress and the courts.

Congress passed, in 1935, the Wagner Act assuring to employees the right to organize unions. The Executive agency for enforcing the Wagner Act, the National Labor Relations Board, interpreted the word "employee" to include foremen. In a decision which held that foremen in some coal mines had the right not only to organize a union, but to affiliate as a union with one of the large labor organizations, the United Mine Workers. This interpretation of the word "employees" was strongly disapproved on two occasions by different members of the three-man Board itself.

This week the Board acting, it said, "in the interest of early court adjudication," put its decision up to a Federal court. At the same time the Board paid deference to Congress, saying, in a spirit of self-limitation "we are administrators, not legislators," implying that it is

Some Tender Points Confront Those Who Would Vote To Unseat Bilbo

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Denying a seat to Senator Bilbo may fit in with the emotional circumstances that have aroused so much antipathy against him, but before the issue is disposed of some very tender points will have been aired and the final vote may turn on questions that have very little to do with the present agitation.

For, if a Senator can be unseated because a certain group of senators do not like his views or prejudices, the precedent can become important for the unseating of other senators on the same grounds. The majority party could thus by whim or caprice deprive elected members of the minority of their seats. The rules of the Senate were never intended to permit that kind of thing.

In the Bilbo case the only real grounds for discussing an unseating relate to whether the Mississippian did or did not violate the laws of the land in accepting favors from war contractors. If such a case can be proved against him to the satisfaction of a majority of the Senate, his seat can be denied him. Then if another election is held in Mississippi to fill the vacancy and the people of that state elect Bilbo again, it would be difficult for the Senate to reject him a second time because the sovereign voters of the state will have known all the charges and will still have sent him back.

Not All Deprived of Seat

There are instances in which members of Congress have been indicted and have been convicted but have not been deprived of their seats until they actually began to serve a sentence. Subsequently in another election, when returned to Congress, certain members who staged a comeback have been seated. Once the wife of a convicted member was elected in his place.

The chances are that the case against Bilbo will not be specifically related to the incitement of race prejudice though it is apparent the Republicans and northern Democrats are aware of the political benefit which accrues to them by arguing about that point in order to get Bilbo out of the Senate.

The final vote in the Senate may have to be confined to the question of law violation. Southern Senators, for instance, would never vote to unseat anyone just because he had earned the wrath of particular groups.

To expel a Senator requires a two-thirds vote but to deny him a seat as he applies for admission requires only a majority vote. If the southern Senators voted as a bloc in defense of Bilbo, a two-thirds vote could not be mobilized against him.

When a Senator stands up to be sworn in he can be asked to step aside and then his case can be considered and debated in due time and a majority vote governs. Pervious instances of challenge usually have occurred at the very outset when a Senator asked for entry. Sometimes a Senator is permitted to take his seat and participate in proceedings pending the outcome of his case. Some have sat for months before a final vote. In one instance, a Senator resigned as he recognized that a majority were determined to unseat him.

Senator Bilbo's attorneys may argue that other Senators accepted small favors from constituents who were benefitted by the official acts of the same Senators. But the fact that in the other cases the Senate did not take cognizance of the charges and unseat the member or members in question will have no bearing, because these matters took place in previous Congresses. Each Congress elected for two years is a separate entity.

Similar Charges Against Others

Undoubtedly there have been charges similar to those which now are placed before the Senate about Bilbo. Somewhat the same type of innuendo was levelled against Representative May, Democrat, in the last Congress but no effort was made to unseat him because he protested his innocence and no action was taken against him by the Department of Justice with respect to alleged law violations. He was later supported in his unsuccessful fight for re-election by Senator Barkley, Democratic leader.

Senator Bilbo's supporters may contend that if he violated the law the Department of Justice would first have to prosecute and secure a conviction before the alleged crime could be the basis for an unseating charge. The Senate, on the other hand, need not wait for legal proof or the filing of charges by the Department of Justice. It can unseat an elected applicant because it doesn't like the color of his hair. That is the literal prerogative of the Senate but members hesitate a long while before casting their ballots to unseat a senator on vague grounds because they know that once a precedent is made, it can be referred to again. While the precedent is not binding on a future case, it does mean that opportunities for political reprisal against opponents are thereby widened.

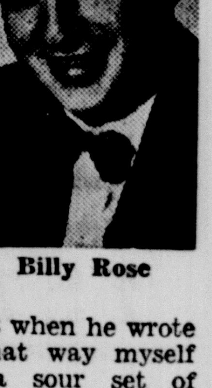
PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose



Billy Rose

One of the hottest talents in the theatre is a young playwright named Irvin Shaw. His last play, "The Assassins," was pelted off the boards by the critics. In a bitter preface to the published version of this play, Mr. Shaw picks up his shopgun and lets Broadway have it. He denounces it as:

"A murderous twilight of hidden pitfalls, slippery and lunatic enemies . . . their claws out, quick to strike."

I know how he felt when he wrote it. I have felt that way myself—especially after a sour set of notices. But I think our gifted friend is describing only one side of the coin. I think he knows there are nice guys in this grift as well as dirty fighters, and that, by and large, the percentage is about the same as in steel puddling or making cookie jars.

I'd like to tune up my mandolin and tell Mr. Shaw a little Broadway story. Certainly, I'm not chump enough to think one yarn is a complete rebuttal to his charges. But as the great Durante once said "I got a million of 'em."

Next month one of the big record companies is bringing out a Jeanette MacDonald album of children's songs based on the Cinderella story. The music was composed by Billy Provost.

It's not likely you've heard of Provost. He's no different than a hundred other kids who polish the benches in music publishers' outer offices. He used to play piano for orchestras around town, but in recent years he's been playing Professor at cocktail bars where they serve up Kern and Gershwin with the Martinis.

The reason he stopped playing with bands was a good one—he was going deaf. He could still hear brass instruments, but he couldn't quite make it when he had to accompany the girl who sings the vocal chorus. He tells me it felt like the end of everything when the tinkly world started fading into a silent picture, and that it was no consolation to realize the same thing had happened to Beethoven.

When I met him in the spring of 1946, he hadn't bought a new suit in four years. A once-in-a-while job and a wife and two youngsters had something to do with that.

In the afternoons, before he put on his tux and went to work, he'd entertain his kids by making up little tunes to go with their favorite fairy tales. He submitted some of these songs to the recording outfits, but no one got very excited about them.

A few weeks ago his break came. Jeanette MacDonald suggested to Victor that they let her wax a musical version of Cinderella for children. An executive remembered the music box tunes Billy had sent him. Billy got the job.

Jeanette met the composer at the recording session. He played his tunes for her. She cleared her throat, tried them on for size, and fell in love with them. She noticed the way he cupped his hand behind his ear and leaned forward when she spoke. After she had hit the final high note, she went to the telephone and called Jules Lempert, the surgeon. You've probably read of this fabulous medicine man, who developed the technique of building a new "hearing window" into a deaf ear.

The next day, Dr. Lempert x-rayed, probed, and tapped on Billy's skull with little rubber hammers. Billy thought it was nice of MacDonald to take him to Lempert, but it seemed to him like a waste of time. Where could a saloon pianist get the kind of sugar it would take to make Lempert pick up his scalpel? He knew that when only one man in the world can do a certain job, he doesn't work cut-rate.

Billy finally got up enough spunk to ask the doctor what the operation would cost. Lempert smiled. "This one's on the house," he said. "Miss MacDonald tells me you write lovely melodies. We think it's only fair for you to be able to hear them."

If Irwin Shaw can tear himself away from his typewriter, it might be a good idea for him to drop in some night at the Cafe Rouge in the Pennsylvania Hotel. Let him order up a cocktail and listen to the piano man. It won't be many minutes before he sees a waiter come over to the kid at the keyboard and whisper the name of a tune some customer has requested. Yes, I said whisper.

Shaw might want to request a song himself. I'd suggest he ask Billy Provost to play the gay little waltz from "Cinderella," the tune that got him his hearing back on the street that Shaw calls:

"A murderous twilight of slippery and lunatic enemies, their claws out, quick to strike."

Huge Assortment Of Problems Confronting 80th Congress

A huge assortment of problems awaits action by the Eightieth Congress, including tax reduction, reduction of government expenditures. High on the list also is the labor problem, which may be moved into top position by events of the next few weeks.

The House now is composed of 246 Republicans, 188 Democrats, and Communist spokesman from New York City by the name of Marcantonio. The Senate has 51 Republicans and 45 Democrats. This is the first time in sixteen years that the Republicans have had control of the House, the first time in fourteen years that they have controlled the Senate.

Whether tax cuts, labor legislation or reduction in government spending shall take precedence in legislation to be enacted is not important as it is that a thorough job be made when a bill is passed.

The Republicans are not, of course, immune to dissension. The new majorities are made up of men of different shades of opinion, although the differences are neither as bitter nor as acute as those which divide the Democrats of the conservative and radical wings. No congressional majority ever has or ever will work in complete harmony and unison. But the spadework which Republican leaders have done holds the promise that Congress will get to work promptly and efficiently on its legislative chores.

Indications are that there will be cooperation between the Congress and the Presidency instead of the tension ordinarily expected when one political party controls the legislative branch of the Government and the other holds Executive power. This began to make itself felt along about election day when President Truman apparently stopped listening to the yammering of Henry Wallace, Senator Pepper and other self-appointed spokesmen for the ghost of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Since then Mr. Truman apparently decided to be his own kind of President by discontinuing measuring his acts by what the bleeding hearts declare Mr. Roosevelt would have done. In consequence, Mr. Truman and the country, too, have been getting along better. The November balloting demonstrated that the people were fed up with bureaucratic controls. Mr. Truman didn't wait for the new Republican Congress to start to clean up the mess. He promptly liquidated OPA, stopped wage-fixing and abolished other controls that were not working.

That the people had wearied of strikes and of the New Deal practice of buying off union leaders by yielding to whatever they demanded was another mandate that emerged from the ballot box. The President stood firm against John L. Lewis, and doughty John suffered the worst setback of his long, swashbuckling career. The voters had shown, by their ballots, apprehension of the continuing concentration of powers in the Government.

So now, by officially declaring the end of hostilities, the President voluntarily has relinquished 51 war powers, including the power of Government seizure of strike-bound industries. Of course, that puts it up to the Republican Congress to decide what shall be done to minimize strikes and maintain production.

President Truman's proclamation automatically abolishes, six months hence, $1,500,000,000 worth of wartime excise taxes, leaving the Republicans that much less to play with in their promise to ease the burden of taxpayers. By this Mr. Truman has removed himself from a defensive position when he greets the new Congress which convened yesterday, and he has placed responsibility for developing a legislative and fiscal program squarely on the shoulders of the Republicans who won the election. In other words he had put on a race to beat Republicans to the punch, and has done what Republicans had strived to have done many times during the closing days of the 79th Congress.

The Republican Congress has a clear mandate from the electorate as to the course legislation is to take. There need be no compromising, no fumbling, and this certainly is no time for pussyfooting.

As the presidential aspirants identify themselves by protesting that they hadn't given it a thought, their words are chosen to leave a gaping loophole for the abandonment of coyness on a second's notice.

Flock of buzzards has taken up quarters on the roof of a Washington building. Henceforth the threat, "I'll feed you to the buzzards," may have literal meaning in the capital.

Russia Continues To Create Suspicion

It may or may not be significant but it is at least interesting that within a period of 24 hours Soviet Russia made an insistent demand for immediate disarmament of nations and was bluntly accused by a House committee of rearming itself with the products of German plants in the Russian-controlled zone. Somehow or other the two incidents do not fit into any pattern which intelligent peoples can accept.

The American charges, it may be noted, do not come from one individual Representative who might be sounding off for political effect. They are the measured words to be found in the unanimously approved report of a special committee on postwar economic policy and planning. That so serious an indictment would have been laid without factual evidence to support it is simply incredible, especially at a time when every care is being taken by responsible government officials to say or do something which will make more difficult the task of achieving international cooperation for worldwide peace.

It must be concluded, then, that the House committee has indeed uncovered flagrant violations by Russia of the Potsdam agreement. Americans will feel, as the committee feels, that this nation should not yield to the Soviet, without adequate guarantees, the "most secret processes in the field of radar, electronics, communications, chemistry, etc.," which are basic in the superiority of American defense.

So long as Russia uses German factories to turn out munitions for herself, instead of goods badly needed by the German people, she will remain under the suspicion that her pleas for universal disarmament are both meaningless and insincere.

Under the Soviet's unique plan of free enterprise, that seventeen-pound gold nugget found in Russia will go to the state.

Women's spring hats may be smaller, as a fashion note indicates, but can they be funnier?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HEALING LEG ULCERS

THE majority of individuals with varicose ulcers can be helped with proper management. As a rule, more than a simple salve is required for, unless the cause is eliminated, relief is seldom permanent.

The blood carried into the extremities by the arteries returns to the heart thru numerous venous channels. Since man spends much of his time in a standing or sitting position the vital fluid must travel upward against gravity. This is possible because the vessels contain a series of valves along their course which open and shut in a manner similar to the lock gates of a canal. Should enlargement or varicosities appear, the valves no longer hold. Unless the job can be performed satisfactorily by other passageways the back flow will interfere with the nutrition of the tissues.

The area that suffers most is the lower third of the leg, including the ankle. Since the region is in an exposed position and has little protective padding over its bony prominences, injuries are common. The stage is set for an ulcer because the tissues are in no condition to withstand bacterial invasion. As a result, infection sets in and the spot becomes red and puffy. Soon a watery secretion is discharged and a border begins to form which continues to fan out as the germs extend farther and deeper. Now and then pain is so intense that the patient has difficulty in walking and is unable to sleep.

This means that the sore is more than a simple infection. Unless the varicosity is alleviated in one way or another there is no hope for a lasting cure. Both lesions, therefore, demand attention. If the victim goes to bed and keeps the leg elevated on a pillow edema will disappear because the blood is no longer forced to flow uphill. Healing is encouraged if, in addition, warm moist dressings or suitable antiseptic salves or ointments such as penicillin, streptomycin, tyrothricin, or one of the sulfonamides are applied. Unfortunately recurrences are likely if the veins are not eradicated thru surgery or injections.

But many are unable to take time off and desire to continue their daily activities. In the circumstances an elastic bandage must be worn or an Unna paste boot. Sometimes a rubber sponge is placed over the ulceration, which further compresses the area. But, again repair is only temporary. The quickest and best method is to obliterate the affected structures in combination with local treatment. Surgery necessitates a day or two in the hospital; by the end of six weeks the leg is back to normal.

All ulcerative lesions on the lower extremities are not due to varicose veins. Occasionally they complicate milkleg, in which a deep vessel has been obstructer thru inflammation (thrombophlebitis). In others a tumor is responsible or the infection is caused by tuberculosis or syphilis. Ringworm may be to blame and in a few the arteries are at fault, particularly in older individuals with arteriosclerosis. Because the tissues receive too little blood the circulation is so poor that healing is delayed.

BIG HANDED

D. M. writes: Just recently, my hands look much larger. I am 58 years old and have temperate habits. Is there any reason to be alarmed?

REPLY

The chances are that it is harmless but if you wish to find the cause, examination by your family doctor is required. Puffiness of the hands can result from circulatory disturbances or overuse of the parts. Now and then the pituitary gland is at fault but the appearance of this disorder is unusual in one your age.

This is an important part of the examination but other findings are usually present which aid in making the diagnosis.

ENLARGED LIVER

REPLY

Inflammation of the organ as well as congestion resulting from heart failure. Now and then the disorder is noted in cirrhosis and blood affections such as leukemia.

OUTSTANDING EVENTS

Now that 1946 is past business and 1947 is a going concern, we can take account of the outstanding events and personalities of the last twelve months.

Longest event of the year—the half hour between Fibber McGee and Red Skelton.

Best book of the year—"So This Is Peace." Not much in literature but it's just dandy for corking bottles.

Candidate for academy award for the year — definitely not Crosby. Barry Fitzgerald is on vacation.

Best supporting player—any child actor who's holding up the family bank account.

Best sock performances—George Raft.

Most dramatic moment of the year—when Gary Cooper looked into the heroine's eyes and said "Yup."

Most phony publicity stunt of the year—that Butch Jenkins was being groomed to play Dr. Gillespie.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Joe Martin Had Chance To Run For President But Chose To Be Speaker; Martin Voted For Roosevelt's New Deal; Has Chance To Clean Up Congress

Says DREW PEARSON

Editor's Note—Drew Pearson today awards the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Joseph W. Martin, new Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 — When Joseph William Martin, Jr., was 21 years old he faced a three-way decision between a career or politics, newspapering or professional baseball. He had been star shortstop on the North Attleboro semi-pro team, and had begun a career on the North Attleboro Chronicle. In the end, however, he chose politics. When this decision was announced to his father, the elder Martin advised:

"You'll be better off Joe, if you stick to newspapering. Politics is dirty business."

Joe Martin, however, spurned parental advice, stuck to politics and today becomes the first Republican Speaker of the House of Representatives since the fabulous, almost forgotten days of Nick Longworth.

As such, Joe Martin will be a popular, unspectacular, common-sense leader of the Republican majority. Joe has his feet firmly grounded in the basic caution of his party, but his eyes are not riveted wholly on the past. He does not believe in making a fetish out of tradition merely for tradition's sake; he recognizes the necessity of making concessions to changing times.

When Roosevelt was riding the crest of New Deal reforms, Joe rode the wave too. Once when joshed about his liberal voting record, Martin half-jokingly replied:

"The world moves and I move with it."

Joe is no militant, either in temperament or experience. Nor is he a conservative. Joe is a quiet, friendly, small businessman who believes in honesty and decency in public as well as in private life. He abhors greed, crookedness and public suffering.

No Dictator, Martin

That was why he has championed labor's right to organize, supported social security, voted for the FEPC and many Roosevelt reforms. Once when Martin was approached by Wall Street moguls with a proposal to weaken the Securities and Exchange Commission on the pretext of helping business, he replied that he wouldn't touch their proposition with "a 10-foot pole."

During the pre-Pearl Harbor days when many Republicans were undercutting Roosevelt's preparedness policies, Martin swung his weight vigorously behind the President. He voted for national defense, against isolation, and when the question of lend-lease came before a secret GOP caucus, he advised:

"Read the testimony. Listen carefully to the discussion. Go home and think it over. Use your judgment, but vote like Americans."

The idea of suggestion rather than dictation has been Martin's strategy as a leader. Unlike Senator Taft and some Old Guard members of the Senate, he does not crack the whip. Perhaps he will have to be tougher now that his party is in the majority, but during his eight years as minority leader, Joe has never laid down the law as to how colleagues should vote.

Coolidge's Friend

It was Calvin Coolidge who gave Joe Martin his first real lift in politics. At the age of 23, Joe had been elected to the Massachusetts Senate where he met Coolidge, then Chairman of the Rules Committee. Coolidge made Martin secretary of his committee and the two became lifelong friends.

In 1924 when Coolidge ran for re-election, Martin climbed on his band-wagon and was easily elected to Congress. He has been returned to the same seat ever since.

In two Presidential elections, Martin played important backstage roles. One was in the Landon campaign, whom he helped nominate—but could not elect. The other was in the Willkie campaign, when Martin tried to weld together conflicting wings of the Republican party as National Chairman.

In 1940, shortly before Willkie was nominated, several friends urged Martin to run for President himself, and one wealthy Pittsburgh backer offered to put $85,000 behind him.

"There are no strings attached to this," Martin was told. "My friends and I just think you are the best White House timber in the field."

"I have no ambitions in that direction," Martin replied. "I am perfectly satisfied to remain in the House. My one ambition is to be Speaker."

Friendly Enemies

Four years ago, that ambition was almost fulfilled. Rolling up an unexpected vote in the 1942 off-year election, it looked for a moment as if the GOP would control the House of Representatives. In the end, the Democrats won out by a few votes, however, and when it came time to swear in the Speaker, Joe went into the office of Sam Rayburn to escort him to the Speaker's rostrum.

"Sam," said Joe, "I've got bad news for you. I hope you can hold up under the shock. You've been re-elected Speaker."

Actually, Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin have a lot in common. Both are bachelors, both are good friends, both have somewhat the same middle-of-the-road, square-shooter point of view.

Like most bachelors, also, the new Speaker is very fond of children and keeps trinkets in his office to give to friends for their youngsters.

Homeward-bound one Christmas vacation, Martin phoned his office from Washington's Union Station and asked his secretary, Jim Milne, to hurry over with a package he had left in his desk.

"I can't go without it and my train leaves in 20 minutes," he explained.

Milne rushed the package to the train just in time.

"Say, what's in this, anyhow?." he asked. "Sure must be important. I haven't seen you so agitated about anything since the election."

"It's very important," said the Speaker-elect. "It's a doll for my little grandniece."

Martin's Big Opportunity

Back in the days when Martin was 21 and his father advised him not to go into politics because "politics is dirty business," Joe replied:

"That's why I'm getting into it, dad. It needs to be cleaned up and you can't do that by holding your nose and standing on the sidelines."

Today, the man who made that observation is anything but on the sidelines. He is right in the thick of things, a leader who can, if he wishes, do great things to clean the rotten apples out of the Congressional barrel and lift the badly lowered prestige of Congress. With his abhorrence of greed and crookedness, Joe Martin can do much to purge the pocketbook Congressmen out of our legislative temples—if he really leads.

Amity Between Parties Appears To Be Assured

By MARK SULLIVAN

President Truman's termination of war powers he possessed, with other actions of his, go far to explain a current phenomenon. In the November election his party was defeated in a rancorous contest, and two months later unexpected conditions exist. Good-will for Mr. Truman has increased. There is amity between the defeated party and the victorious one. Instead of the tension commonly expected when one party controls Congress and the other holds the Presidency, there is in fact cooperation. On the part of the public, instead of anxiety there is justification for ease of mind. Instead of feared contention between Congress and the President, there is assurance of orderly government, of government as the Constitution intended.

It is not merely that Mr. Truman, by voluntarily giving up powers he possessed, shows that he has no lust for power for power's sake. It is not merely that after the election he showed himself a good loser, always an engaging quality. In that spirit he not merely accepts the verdict of the election, he takes the initiative in a broad policy which the election called for. He acts on the principle that, in peacetime, government should be carried on, not through executive decrees but under laws passed by Congress; that powers which Congress conferred on the executive for the emergency of war should not be unreasonably continued after the war is over. Instead of leaving it to Congress to take back the powers it granted, Mr. Truman hands them back. His action was, in his own words, a move to "bring our economy and our government back to a peacetime basis."

Effect Of This Spirit

The effect of this spirit, on Congress and in Washington generally, can be understood by recalling what preceded it, during a period of several years. Following the election of Roosevelt in 1932, the spirit of Congress was one of willing acceptance of dominance by the President; for the Congresses of the first five years of the New Deal there was a colloquial word, "rubber-stamp."

That spirit ended, abruptly and decisively, in February, 1937, with Roosevelt's calling upon Congress to change the Supreme Court, by giving him authority to appoint six additional Justices. Although Roosevelt was at the height of his prestige—he had been elected the preceding November with majorities in every state except two—Congress refused to change the Court, and entered into a settled state of mind which felt that Roosevelt wanted too much power. From 1937 on, no important New Deal proposal was adopted by Congress, and after a few years Roosevelt refrained from sending to Congress some proposals which zealous New Dealers urged upon him.

As the war approached, Congress, in the spirit of emergency, gave to Roosevelt powers that were called for, first by preparedness and later by war itself. Presently the old feeling about Roosevelt revived. Some war powers were used in ways that Congress had not anticipated. And there arose in Congress an apprehension, whether justified or not, that some war powers might be continued longer than the war, might become a permanent addition to Executive power. In the later measures conferring war powers, Congress inserted provisions in which it retained for itself power to end the measures if the President should not do so. Some of Roosevelt's later requests for war powers, Congress refused, notedly the proposal for control of manpower. All that, and the spirit of Congress which underlay it, is now ended by Mr. Truman's attitude.

Return to Constitutional Government

The spirit of return to Constitutional government, with its division of powers, pervades Washington. In addition to President Truman's restoration to Congress of powers conferred upon him for the war, there was this week a step toward recognition of the prerogative of both Congress and the courts.

Congress passed, in 1935, the Wagner Act assuring to employees the right to organize unions. The Executive agency for enforcing the Wagner Act, the National Labor Relations Board, interpreted the word "employee" to include foremen. In a decision which held that foremen in some coal mines had the right not only to organize a union, but to affiliate as a union with one of the large labor organizations, the United Mine Workers. This interpretation of the word "employees" was strongly disapproved on two occasions by different members of the three-man Board itself.

This week the Board acting, it said, "in the interest of early court adjudication," put its decision up to a Federal court. At the same time the Board paid deference to Congress, saying, in a spirit of self-limitation "we are administrators, not legislators," implying that it is for Congress, if it chooses, to amend the Wagner Act.

Some Tender Points Confront Those Who Would Vote To Unseat Bilbo

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Denying a seat to Senator Bilbo may fit in with the emotional circumstances that have aroused so much antipathy against him, but before the issue is disposed of some very tender points will have been aired and the final vote may turn on questions that have very little to do with the present agitation.

For, if a Senator can be unseated because a certain group of senators do not like his views or prejudices, the precedent can become important for the unseating of other senators on the same grounds. The majority party could thus by whim or caprice deprive elected members of the minority of their seats. The rules of the Senate were never intended to permit that kind of thing.

In the Bilbo case the only real grounds for discussing an unseating relate to whether the Mississippian did or did not violate the laws of the land in accepting favors from war contractors. If such a case can be proved against him to the satisfaction of a majority of the Senate, his seat can be denied him. Then if another election is held in Mississippi to fill the vacancy and the people of that state elect Bilbo again, it would be difficult for the Senate to reject him a second time because the sovereign voters of the state will have known all the charges and will still have sent him back.

Not All Deprived of Seat

There are instances in which members of Congress have been indicted and have been convicted but have not been deprived of their seats until they actually began to serve a sentence. Subsequently in another election, when returned to Congress, certain members who staged a comeback have been seated. Once the wife of a convicted member was elected in his place.

The chances are that the case against Bilbo will not be specifically related to the incitement of race prejudice though it is apparent the Republicans and northern Democrats are aware of the political benefit which accrues to them by arguing about that point in order to get Bilbo out of the Senate.

The final vote in the Senate may have to be confined to the question of law violation. Southern Senators, for instance, would never vote to unseat anyone just because he had earned the wrath of particular groups.

To expel a Senator requires a two-thirds vote but to deny him a seat as he applies for admission requires only a majority vote. If the southern Senators voted as a bloc in defense of Bilbo, a two-thirds vote could not be mobilized against him.

When a Senator stands up to be sworn in he can be asked to step aside and then his case can be considered and debated in due time and a majority vote governs. Pervious instances of challenge usually have occurred at the very outset when a Senator asked for entry. Sometimes a Senator is permitted to take his seat and participate in proceedings pending the outcome of his case. Some have sat for months before a final vote. In one instance, a Senator resigned as he recognized that a majority were determined to unseat him.

Senator Bilbo's attorneys may argue that other Senators accepted small favors from constituents who were benefitted by the official acts of the same Senators. But the fact that in the other cases the Senate did not take cognizance of the charges and unseat the member or members in question will have no bearing, because these matters took place in previous Congresses. Each Congress elected for two years is a separate entity.

Similar Charges Against Others

Undoubtedly there have been charges similar to those which now are placed before the Senate about Bilbo. Somewhat the same type of innuendo was levelled against Representative May, Democrat, in the last Congress but no effort was made to unseat him because he protested his innocence and no action was taken against him by the Department of Justice with respect to alleged law violations. He was later supported in his unsuccessful fight for re-election by Senator Barkley, Democratic leader.

Senator Bilbo's supporters may contend that if he violated the law the Department of Justice would first have to prosecute and secure a conviction before the alleged crime could be the basis for an unseating charge. The Senate, on the other hand, need not wait for legal proof or the filing of charges by the Department of Justice. It can unseat an elected applicant because it doesn't like the color of his hair. That is the literal prerogative of the Senate but members hesitate a long while before casting their ballots to unseat a senator on vague grounds because they know that once a precedent is made, it can be referred to again. While the precedent is not binding on a future case, it does mean that opportunities for political reprisal against opponents are thereby widened.

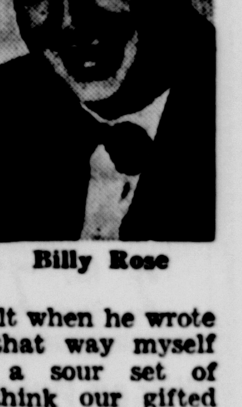
PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

One of the hottest talents in the theatre is a young playwright named Irvin Shaw. His last play, "The Assassins," was pelted off the boards by the critics. In a bitter preface to the published version of this play, Mr. Shaw picks up his shopgun and lets Broadway have it. He denounces it as:



Billy Rose

"A murderous twilight of hidden pitfalls, slippery and lunatic enemies . . . their claws out, quick to strike."

I know how he felt when he wrote it. I have felt that way myself—especially after a sour set of notices. But I think our gifted friend is describing only one side of the coin. I think he knows there are nice guys in this grift as well as dirty fighters, and that, by and large, the percentage is about the same as in steel puddling or making cookie jars.

I'd like to tune up my mandolin and tell Mr. Shaw a little Broadway story. Certainly, I'm not chump enough to think one yarn is a complete rebuttal to his charges. But as the great Durante once said "I got a million of 'em."

Next month one of the big record companies is bringing out a Jeanette MacDonald album of children's songs based on the Cinderella story. The music was composed by Billy Provost.

It's not likely you've heard of Provost. He's no different than a hundred other kids who polish the benches in music publishers' outer offices. He used to play piano for orchestras around town, but in recent years he's been playing Professor at cocktail bars where they serve up Kern and Gershwin with the Martinis.

The reason he stopped playing with bands was a good one—he was going deaf. He could still hear brass instruments, but he couldn't quite make it when he had to accompany the girl who sings the vocal chorus. He tells me it felt like the end of everything when the tinkly world started fading into a silent picture, and that it was no consolation to realize the same thing had happened to Beethoven.

When I met him in the spring of 1946, he hadn't bought a new suit in four years. A once-in-a-while job and a wife and two youngsters had something to do with that.

In the afternoons, before he put on his tux and went to work, he'd entertain his kids by making up little tunes to go with their favorite fairy tales. He submitted some of these songs to the recording outfits, but no one got very excited about them.

A few weeks ago his break came. Jeanette MacDonald suggested to Victor that they let her wax a musical version of Cinderella for children. An executive remembered the music box tunes Billy had sent him. Billy got the job.

Jeanette met the composer at the recording session. He played his tunes for her. She cleared her throat, tried them on for size, and fell in love with them. She noticed the way he cupped his hand behind his ear and leaned forward when she spoke. After she had hit the final high note, she went to the telephone and called Jules Lempert, the surgeon. You've probably read of this fabulous medicine man, who developed the technique of building a new "hearing window" into a deaf ear.

The next day, Dr. Lempert x-rayed, probed, and tapped on Billy's skull with little rubber hammers. Billy thought it was nice of MacDonald to take him to Lempert, but it seemed to him like a waste of time. Where could a saloon pianist get the kind of sugar it would take to make Lempert pick up his scalpel? He knew that when only one man in the world can do a certain job, he doesn't work cut-rate.

Billy finally got up enough spunk to ask the doctor what the operation would cost. Lempert smiled. "This one's on the house," he said. "Miss MacDonald tells me you write lovely melodies. We think it's only fair for you to be able to hear them."

If Irwin Shaw can tear himself away from his typewriter, it might be a good idea for him to drop in some night at the Cafe Rouge in the Pennsylvania Hotel. Let him order up a cocktail and listen to the piano man. It won't be many minutes before he sees a waiter come over to the kid at the keyboard and whisper the name of a tune some customer has requested. Yes, I said whisper.

Shaw might want to request a song himself. I'd suggest he ask Billy Provost to play the gay little waltz from "Cinderella," the tune that got him his hearing back on the street that Shaw calls:

"A murderous twilight of slippery and lunatic enemies, their claws out, quick to strike."

Sweeney Files Contest For Seat Held By Kilgore

Wheeling, W. Va., Republican Assails "Political Parasites"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP)—Tom Sweeney, Wheeling, W. Va., defeated Republican candidate for the Senate a contest for the seat now held by Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa).

Sweeney said in a statement his action was prompted "by the many persons in both parties who deplore the fraudulent election tactics which have become common practice in many counties of the state." He said many person had advised him of such instances that came to their personal attention and requested investigation of them.

Kilgore's Re-election Certified

Kilgore's re-election to a second Senate term by a majority of 3,534 votes was certified after recounts asked by Sweeney in a number of Southern West Virginia counties failed to change the results materially.

Sweeney, a 43-year-old Wheeling, W. Va., insurance executive who also was Kilgore's opponent in the 1940 general election, filed his recount requests in South West Virginia counties where the Beckley, W. Va., Democrat ran strongest.

After they were completed or abandoned, Sweeney declared that investigation into alleged irregularities would be continued, but he made no definite announcement that he would file a contest until today's statement was issued.

Chooses "Hard Road"

"The question of clean elections is above individual," Sweeney said. "I hope it will be understood that I harbor no personal animosity toward by opponent. My charges are against the political parasites, regardless of party, who are permitted to victimize the honest voters of West Virignia.

"It is easy to ignore corruption and just accept the results of it as inevitable. One chooses a hard road when he determines to fight it. In bringing to the attention of the people conditions which permit thousands of illegal votes to be cast in each election, I am aware that I face severe obstacles. If my efforts lead to a study and revision of our election laws, resulting in more fair and honest elections in the future I shall feel rewarded."

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Haunting Past

Anyone who has traveled upon a great ship at sea, knows of the water-tight compartments that can be closed instantly in time of danger. They are the ship's greatest protection. Likewise, we humans have similar compartments that can close out the past, opening up before us a clear vision ahead, with new hopes, new views, new attempts, and new worlds to conquer.

Each of us may close out the haunting past at will! We cannot undo what has already been done. Spilled milk is gone. But there are always more cows to milk! We live and grow by creating, learning, and casting off our "outgrown shell" of yesterday.

There is no story so interesting and instructive as the story of a life. Step by step, experience after experience, is unfolded, and the life enlarges toward its final destination. The past recedes. Confidence spreads and the mind widens its area. The haunting past is shut out. The troubles, disappointments, and failures are replaced with faith, greater courage, and higher resolves. These latter are the tight compartments that shut out the former.

All of our yesterdays are dead days. Their lesson alone remains. Today is alive and teems with possibilities. We cannot go ahead needlessly handicapped—yet that is what happens to us when we allow things of the past to haunt us. Dr. William Osler has said: "Let the limit of your horizon be a twenty-four hour circle."

There are the shadows of all our yesterdays that cluster about us, but there are no tomorrows—today! The best of all that we are should be lived today. The fruits of our mature experiences should be picked today. Sitting down to breakfast in a Jacksonville hotel some years ago, with a friend, a gentleman asked if he might sit with us. We welcomed him. He was in his early eighties—and an inspiring man he was. Coming back to me again and again was one statement that he made. "Boys," he said, "I grow happier and happier each day of my life!"

Congress Makes Its Debut In Television; Halleck Wins Honor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Congress made its bow in television today.

The opening session of the House of Representatives was placed on the air for two hours.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, the House Republican leader, won this honor: He was the first member of Congress ever to walk before a television camera set up for broadcasting sound pictures from the House.

The program left the air as soon as the new speaker, Rep. Martin (R-Mass), made his opening address, and the members were sworn. The representatives had a rule that the program couldn't continue after the House officially was in session.

his inaugural address next Wednesday.

January 8 begins the term for which Lane was elected in last November's election.

Aside from the ceremony for Lane, the day's legislative business consisted in receiving of a total of 110 bills drafted by the Legislative Council. This made a total of 160 in two days, with about 45 more to come from the council.

Nothing will be done on the measures until committees have been appointed. A House committee headed by Delegate John C. Clark (D-Harford) was reported to have completed a recommendation for cutting the 40 House committees in half and distributing legislative work more equitably among committee.

Far-Reaching Measure

The most far-reaching measure introduced into the Senate was that embodying a recommendation of the Sherbow Commission that the General Assembly meet annually.

Under the measure—which wound entail a constitutional amendment to be voted on in the November, 1948, election—the meetings in even years would be limited to 45 days to deal with the budget.

The Sherbow Commission recommended the change in order to provide more accurate estimates of state income and forecasts of requirements.

Another Senate bill would revise various rules governing paying unemployment compensation. It provides for a new means of computing such benefits and would tighten eligibility rules.

New marriage age limits would be legalized under another Senate measure. Sixteen would be the minimum marrying age for girls and 18 for boys. Females between 16 and 18 or males under 21 would not be permitted to marry without consent of parents or guardians. Exceptions would be made in cases of preganancy.

Introduced in the House were several important measures. One of these would set up a water pollution control commission to supervise cleaning up of state waters. The body would have powers to coordinate activities of the various agencies now dealing with water pollution as well as initiate investigations and prosecutions.

Judiciary Revision Bill

An important revision of the state judiciary system is embodied in another House bill. This would abolish the Orphans Courts and transfer their powers to the Circuit Courts of the several counties and to Baltimore City Circuit Courts No. 1 and 2.

It would require a constitutional amendment which would be acted on at the 1948 general election.

Another House bill would set up a Department of Vocational Licensing, which would have supervisory and appellate powers over various of the state vocational boards. It would supervise licensing of barbers, electricians, engineers, undertakers, beauty culturists, horseshoers, motion picture operators and plumbers.

Many of the House bills had to do with revisions of state fish and game laws and some with educational aid to state schools.

rights from supervisory employes, require unions to register and make financial reports, open the way for damage suits for breach of contract, make it illegal to force any employer to hire more workers than needed, and outlaw the closed shop requirement that only union members may be employed.

Rep. Hartley, if custom is followed, will become chairman of the House Labor Committee—even as Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) becomes chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

Report Of Plane Crash Is Checked

LA GRANDE, Ore., Jan. 3 (AP)—A figure busily sweeping away a snow-written appeal for help dimmed belief in a plane crash today, but state police started for the isolated mountain site nevertheless.

A person who tramped a series of conflicting messages in deep snow while planes hovered overhead this morning was observed later today frantically sweeping the lettering out of sight with a broom.

The first mysterious lettering spotted at a time when a search was still underway for a marine transport plane missing since December 10 with 32 aboard last heard of 200 miles northwest of here, said "herookplain," with an arrow pointing southward. A figure, visible in a mountain clearing seven or eight miles from here, waved frantically beside it.

A message was dropped by a second plane to the man who came running out of a cabin at the edge of a clearing where the letters were tramped. It told him to cross out certain letters to indicate whether a plane was down, whether help was needed and whether all aboard were dead.

The man trampled over the letters H, E and R, which indicated, if the request was followed correctly by him, that someone was injured, that a plane was down and that help was needed.

Kimberly added that Mary Virginia, shortly after her unheralded arrival at 4:30 p. m., told him Hemming had stolen a car in Elyria, O., after abandoning the gaily-painted Ford he was driving.

Kimberly was the first to see his daughter as she entered the kitchen of her home. She rushed into his arms, crying with relief, he said. Mrs. Kimberly was away, but she arrived shortly and tucked the daughter into bed.

"We have placed Mary Virginia under a physician's care," the professor said, "and have not questioned her about whether she was drugged or the circumstances of the affair."

(Kimberly was maintained his daughter was drugged and abducted.)

The 1937 Ford in which the couple were last seen was found near Richville, east of Elyria, O.

Hemming, son of a prominent Upper Arlington family and father of a girl friend of Miss Kimberly, called for the girl Wednesday afternoon under pretext of taking her to arrange a party in honor of his daughter, Sara.

Late Buying Of Steels And Motors Sparks Selective Market Recovery

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — Late buying of steels and motors apparently sparked a selective recovery in today's stock market although many leaders finished well on the downside.

Dealings, fairly active on an opening retreat, soon reverted to sluggishness as extreme losses running to two or more points were reduced.

Schenley hit a new low for the past year but retrieved most of its loss to end off one-fourth at 50⅜. Youngstown Sheet added 1½ at 67, United States Steel 1⅛ at 71⅝, General Motors 1¾ at 54, Chrysler 1¼ at 90¾, Philip Morris 1½ at 38¼ and Woolworth 1¼ at 48¼.

Ahead were Pennsylvania Railroad, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison Eastern Union "A", American Can, Westinghouse and International Nickel.

Dow Chemical and Park and Tilford yielded five and 5¼ points at 175 and 51¾ respectively. Santa Fe was off 1¼ at 97, Eastman Kodak two at 225 and United States Gypsum 2¼ at 91¼. Other stumblers were Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Chesapeake and Ohio, Kennecott, North American, du Pont, Texas Company and Publicker.

In the Curb modest improvement was retained by United States Foil "B", Aireon, Electric Bond and Share and Cities Service. Turnover here was 220,000 shares versus 230,000 yesterday.

Trade in American Telephone 2¾ per cent debentures dominated the bond market.

United States governments tended downward in the over-the-counter-market, with the Victory Loan December 2½'s of '67-'72 off 2-32 at 102 26-32 bid.

licans would discuss the Barkley proposals and other angles of the Bilbo case at a conference tomorrow morning.

Two Test Votes

Anti-Bilbo forces demonstrated their strength in two test votes — one went 38 to 20, the other 39 to 19 —but Bilbo's supporters picked up the debate each time and went right on.

Sharp words flew in the Senate chamber and in the office where the southerners organized for the defense of Bilbo.

"Simply rotten, putrid politics on the part of the Republican leadership," was the way Sen. Ellender (D-La) described to reporters the GOP decision to challenge Bilbo's right to take the oath.

But it was a Democrat, Sen. Taylor, of Idaho, who offered the first motion against seating Bilbo, and he used even more pointed language himself.

Charging that Bilbo tried to intimidate negroes from voting in last summer's Mississippi primary, Taylor said that Bilbo made his campaign speeches "in an atmosphere redolent of the odors of hate, of burning flesh, of tar, of feathers and gunpowder," and "has taken the solemn, midnight pledge of membership" in the Ku Klux Klan.

Bilbo was the subject of two separate Senate investigations. The Campaign Investigating Committee looked into the intimidation charge, and the Democratic majority of the committee urged his seating. A majority of the Senate War Investigating Committee, which looked into his final dealings with war contractors, issued a report asserting he had used his office improperly for his personal gain.

One New Member Sworn In

Both charges figure in Taylor's motion.

Hours after noon, when the session convened, the Senate found itself with only one new member sworn in out of 37 elected or re-elected, and with Leslie L. Biffle, the outgoing Democratic secretary of the Senate, still presiding.

With no vice president or president pro tempore, the rules provided that Biffle call the Senate to order. Within minutes he found himself the center of a mass of motions and resolutions aimed either at denying Bilbo the oath or permitting him to be sworn without prejudice to future action by the Senate.

He instructed the clerk to call the roll of senators-elect in alphabetical order, and former Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, took the oath as a republican member.

The next name was Bilbo's. When the reading clerk pronounced it, the chamber rattled with shouted demands for recognition.

Widespread Winter Storms Unabated

[By The Associated Press]

Snow, sleet and rain pelted vast sections of the country Friday as the most severe and widespread storms of the winter continued unabated.

The heavy precipitation slowed traffic in more than a score of states, Kentucky faced the threat of floods and a sub-zero cold wave began overspreading the Midwest.

A wide snow belt, which reached a depth of 24 inches at Alpena, Mich., stretched from New Mexico to Western Pennsylvania. A freezing rain glazed highways in Northwestern Ohio, Northern Pennsylvania and Western New York.

Miners' Journal Links U.N. With Wall Street

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP) — The United Mine Workers Journal asserted today that the United Nations "is closely linked" with Wall street and business interests seeking to "shackle American labor."

Commenting that there are still millions of prisoners of war being used as "slave labor" and that the United Nations has done nothing to stop it, John L. Lewis's publication said:

"The United Nations is not only a shield for slavers abroad, it is closely linked here with Wall street and the big business gangs who seek to shackle American labor.

"The cat was let out of the bag when John D. Rockefeller, Jr., offerer to give $8,500,000 to buy five blocks in New York City to be used as the site of the United Nation's capitol and home offices."

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 3 (AP) —A would-be bandit with a toy gun was shot and killed tonight as he was making his getaway from a Bluefield gas station with $42.97 in cash, Deputy Sheriff L. H. Cook reported.

Cook identified the victim from a driver's license found on his person as Orville Edgar Webb, 21, Welch. Webb died on the elevator of a Bluefield hospital.

Cook said the youth was slain with single shot that struck him in the shoulder as he fled from the station in midtown.

Sweeney Files Contest For Seat Held By Kilgore

Wheeling, W. Va., Republican Assails "Political Parasites"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. (AP)—Tom Sweeney, Wheeling, W. Va., defeated Republican candidate for the Senate a contest for the seat now held by Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa).

Sweeney said in a statement his action was prompted "by the many persons in both parties who deplore the fraudulent election tactics which have become common practice in many counties of the state." He said many person had advised him of such instances that came to their personal attention and requested investigation of them.

Kilgore's Re-election Certified

Kilgore's re-election to a second Senate term by a majority of 3,534 votes was certified after recounts asked by Sweeney in a number of Southern West Virginia counties failed to change the results materially.

Sweeney, a 43-year-old Wheeling, W. Va., insurance executive who also was Kilgore's opponent in the 1940 general election, filed his recount requests in South West Virginia counties where the Beckley, W. Va., Democrat ran strongest.

After they were completed or abandoned, Sweeney declared that investigation into alleged irregularities would be continued, but he made no definite announcement that he would file a contest until today's statement was issued.

Chooses "Hard Road"

"The question of clean elections is above individual," Sweeney said. "I hope it will be understood that I harbor no personal animosity toward by opponent. My charges are against the political parasites, regardless of party, who are permitted to victimize the honest voters of West Virignia.

"It is easy to ignore corruption and just accept the results of it as inevitable. One chooses a hard road when he determines to fight it. In bringing to the attention of the people conditions which permit thousands of illegal votes to be cast in each election, I am aware that I face severe obstacles. If my efforts lead to a study and revision of our election laws, resulting in more fair and honest elections in the future I shall feel rewarded."

Today's Talk

The Haunting Past

Anyone who has traveled upon a great ship at sea, knows of the water-tight compartments that can be closed instantly in time of danger. They are the ship's greatest protection. Likewise, we humans have similar compartments that can close out the past, opening up before us a clear vision ahead, with new hopes, new views, new attempts, and new worlds to conquer.

Each of us may close out the haunting past at will! We cannot undo what has already been done. Spilled milk is gone. But there are always more cows to milk! We live and grow by creating, learning, and casting off our "outgrown shell" of yesterday.

There is no story so interesting and instructive as the story of a life. Step by step, experience after experience, is unfolded, and the life enlarges toward its final destination. The past recedes. Confidence spreads and the mind widens its area. The haunting past is shut out. The troubles, disappointments, and failures are replaced with faith, greater courage, and higher resolves. These latter are the tight compartments that shut out the former.

All of our yesterdays are dead days. Their lesson alone remains. Today is alive and teems with possibilities. We cannot go ahead needlessly handicapped—yet that is what happens to us when we allow things of the past to haunt us. Dr. William Osler has said: "Let the limit of your horizon be a twenty-four hour circle."

There are the shadows of all our yesterdays that cluster about us, but there are no tomorrows—today! The best of all that we are should be lived today. The fruits of our mature experiences should be picked today. Sitting down to breakfast in a Jacksonville hotel some years ago, with a friend, a gentleman asked if he might sit with us. We welcomed him. He was in his early eighties—and an inspiring man he was. Coming back to me again and again was one statement that he made. "Boys," he said, "I grow happier and happier each day of my life!"

Congress Makes Its Debut In Television; Halleck Wins Honor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Congress made its bow in television today.

The opening session of the House of Representatives was placed on the air for two hours.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, the House Republican leader, won this honor: He was the first member of Congress ever to walk before a television camera set up for broadcasting sound pictures from the House.

The program left the air as soon as the new speaker, Rep. Martin (R-Mass), made his opening address, and the members were sworn. The representatives had a rule that the program couldn't continue after the House officially was in session.

his inaugural address next Wednesday.

January 8 begins the term for which Lane was elected in last November's election.

Aside from the ceremony for Lane, the day's legislative business consisted in receiving of a total of 110 bills drafted by the Legislative Council. This made a total of 160 in two days, with about 45 more to come from the council.

Nothing will be done on the measures until committees have been appointed. A House committee headed by Delegate John C. Clark (D-Harford) was reported to have completed a recommendation for cutting the 40 House committees in half and distributing legislative work more equitably among committee.

Far-Reaching Measure

The most far-reaching measure introduced into the Senate was that embodying a recommendation of the Sherbow Commission that the General Assembly meet annually.

Under the measure—which wound entail a constitutional amendment to be voted on in the November, 1948, election—the meetings in even years would be limited to 45 days to deal with the budget.

The Sherbow Commission recommended the change in order to provide more accurate estimates of state income and forecasts of requirements.

Another Senate bill would revise various rules governing paying unemployment compensation. It provides for a new means of computing such benefits and would tighten eligibility rules.

New marriage age limits would be legalized under another Senate measure. Sixteen would be the minimum marrying age for girls and 18 for boys. Females between 16 and 18 or males under 21 would not be permitted to marry without consent of parents or guardians. Exceptions would be made in cases of preganancy.

Introduced in the House were several important measures. One of these would set up a water pollution control commission to supervise cleaning up of state waters. The body would have powers to coordinate activities of the various agencies now dealing with water pollution as well as initiate investigations and prosecutions.

Judiciary Revision Bill

An important revision of the state judiciary system is embodied in another House bill. This would abolish the Orphans Courts and transfer their powers to the Circuit Courts of the several counties and to Baltimore City Circuit Courts No. 1 and 2.

It would require a constitutional amendment which would be acted on at the 1948 general election.

Another House bill would set up a Department of Vocational Licensing, which would have supervisory and appellate powers over various of the state vocational boards. It would supervise licensing of barbers, electricians, engineers, undertakers, beauty culturists, horseshoers, motion picture operators and plumbers.

Many of the House bills had to do with revisions of state fish and game laws and some with educational aid to state schools.

rights from supervisory employes, require unions to register and make financial reports, open the way to damage suits for breach of contract, make it illegal to force any employer to hire more workers than needed, and outlaw the closed shop requirement that only union members may be employed.

Rep. Hartley, if custom is followed, will become chairman of the House Labor Committee—even as Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) becomes chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

Report Of Plane Crash Is Checked

LA GRANDE, Ore., Jan. 3 (AP)—A figure busily sweeping away a snow-written appeal for help dimmed belief in a plane crash today, but state police started for the isolated mountain site nevertheless.

A person who tramped a series of conflicting messages in deep snow while planes hovered overhead this morning was observed later today frantically sweeping the lettering out of sight with a broom.

The first mysterious lettering, spotted at a time when a search was still underway for a marine transport plane missing since December 10 with 32 aboard last heard of 200 miles northwest of here, said "herookplain," with an arrow pointing southward. A figure, visible in a mountain clearing seven or eight miles from here, waved frantically beside it.

A message was dropped by a second plane to the man who came running out of a cabin at the edge of a clearing where the letters were tramped. It told him to cross out certain letters to indicate whether a plane was down, whether help was needed and whether all aboard were dead.

The man trampled over the letters H, E and R, which indicated, if the request was followed correctly by him, that someone was injured, that a plane was down and that help was needed.

Kimberly added that Mary Virginia, shortly after her unheralded arrival at 4:30 p. m., told him Hemming had stolen a car in Elyria, O., after abandoning the gaily-painted Ford he was driving.

Under Physician's Care

Kimberly was the first to see his daughter as she entered the kitchen of her home. She rushed into his arms, crying with relief, he said. Mrs. Kimberly was away, but she arrived shortly and tucked the daughter into bed.

"We have placed Mary Virginia under a physician's care," the professor said, "and have not questioned her about whether she was drugged or the circumstances of the affair."

(Kimberly was maintained his daughter was drugged and abducted.)

The 1937 Ford in which the couple were last seen was found near Richville, east of Elyria, O.

Hemming, son of a prominent Upper Arlington family and father of a girl friend of Miss Kimberly, called for the girl Wednesday afternoon under pretext of taking her to arrange a party in honor of his daughter, Sara.

Late Buying Of Steels And Motors Sparks Selective Market Recovery

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — Late buying of steels and motors apparently sparked a selective recovery in today's stock market although many leaders finished well on the downside.

Dealings, fairly active on an opening retreat, soon reverted to sluggishness as extreme losses running to two or more points were reduced.

Schenley hit a new low for the past year but retrieved most of its loss to end off one-fourth at 50¾. Youngstown Sheet added 1⅛ at 67. United States Steel 1⅛ at 71⅝, General Motors 1¾ at 54, Chrysler 1¼ at 90¾, Philip Morris 1½ at 38¼ and Woolworth 1¼ at 48¼.

Ahead were Pennsylvania Railroad, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison Eastern Union "A", American Can, Westinghouse and International Nickel.

Dow Chemical and Park and Tilford yielded five and 5¼ points at 175 and 51¾ respectively. Santa Fe was off 1¼ at 97, Eastman Kodak two at 225 and United States Gypsum 2¼ at 91¼. Other stumblers were Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Chesapeake and Ohio, Kennecott, North American, du Pont, Texas Company and Publicker.

In the Curb modest improvement was retained by United States Foil "B", Aireon, Electric Bond and Share and Cities Service. Turnover here was 220,000 shares versus 230,000 yesterday.

Trade in American Telephone 2¾ per cent debentures dominated the bond market.

United States governments tended downward in the over-the-counter market, with the Victory Loan December 2½'s of '67-'72 off 2-32 at 102 26-32 bid.

licans would discuss the Barkley proposals and other angles of the Bilbo case at a conference tomorrow morning.

Two Test Votes

Anti-Bilbo forces demonstrated their strength in two test votes — one went 38 to 20, the other 39 to 19 —but Bilbo's supporters picked up the debate each time and went right on.

Sharp words flew in the Senate chamber and in the office where the southerners organized for the defense of Bilbo.

"Simply rotten, putrid politics on the part of the Republican leadership," was the way Sen. Ellender (D-La) described to reporters the GOP decision to challenge Bilbo's right to take the oath.

But it was a Democrat, Sen. Taylor, of Idaho, who offered the first motion against seating Bilbo, and he used even more pointed language himself.

Charging that Bilbo tried to intimidate negroes from voting in last summer's Mississippi primary, Taylor said that Bilbo made his campaign speeches "in an atmosphere redolent of the odors of hate, of burning flesh, of tar, of feathers and gunpowder," and "has taken the solemn, midnight pledge of membership" in the Ku Klux Klan.

Bilbo was the subject of two separate Senate investigations. The Campaign Investigating Committee looked into the intimidation charge, and the Democatic majority of the committee urged his seating. A majority of the Senate War Investigating Committee, which looked into his final dealings with war contractors, issued a report asserting he had used his office improperly for his personal gain.

One New Member Sworn In

Both charges figure in Taylor's motion.

Hours after noon, when the session convened, the Senate found itself with only one new member sworn in out of 37 elected or reelected, and with Leslie L. Biffle, the outgoing Democratic secretary of the Senate, still presiding.

With no vice president or president pro tempore, the rules provided that Biffle call the Senate to order. Within minutes he found himself the center of a mass of motions and resolutions aimed either at denying Bilbo the oath or permitting him to be sworn without prejudice to future action by the Senate.

He instructed the clerk to call the roll of senators-elect in alphabetical order, and former Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, took the oath as a republican member.

The next name was Bilbo's. When the reading clerk pronounced it, the chamber rattled with shouted demands for recognition.

Life IS LIKE A LADDER

Perhaps you've never thought of it quite this way. But life is like a ladder. Each careful step takes us higher and higher. And every serious mistake means a fall.

We help our children up those first few rungs. We steady the ladder, we help them to gain a firm footing, we show them how to climb higher.

But, then, the day comes when our youngsters are on their own. Mother and Dad can only watch and hope. They cannot guide each step . . . nor can they prevent a fall.

Wise parents equip their children with a religious faith that can go with them up life's ladder. Then, when Mother and Dad can no longer guide their footsteps, they will know the way alone. And should they falter—as most of us do—they will have within them the power to take a firm hold, and go on, higher and higher.

The Church teaches all men to climb! It prepares our children to climb alone!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3—It was a very happy new year for both Gene Autry and Columbia. Gene has just signed a two year contract to distribute four pictures a year through Columbia.

Joan Crawford

This means he leaves Republic, the studio he battled in court for his freedom. It also means that Harry Cohn gets the top western money maker.

If you ever had any doubts that Gene is not popular, all you have to do is print something not 100 percent complimentary and letters start pouring in from all over the country from boys who protest any criticism of their idol.

Columbia gets a percentage of all Autry's pictures and the contract starts either the first of May, or the first of October, depending when he finishes his last Republic western.

This new affiliation was announced at a cocktail party New Year's Day.

Ann Miller, who recently separated from Reese Lewellyn Milner, scion of the Lewellyn Iron Works, is resuming her movie career. She'll start in "Petty Girl" for Columbia, and that's interesting because she gave up her Columbia contract when she married Milner at his request.

The Petty Girl is the erstwhile sweetheart of Esquire Magazine and the one responsible for getting it banned in the mails. None of this of course, will seep into the movie, which will be very clean. Al Blumenthal of the department store family will produce Ann's return movie.

Far be it from me to say that Loraine Day's much publicized romance with Leo Durocher has any bearing on the changeroo in her next movie role—but changerooed it is!

Loraine, who has always played goody good girls on the screen, bursts forth as a defiant, half cast hell raisin' beauty in "Tycoon," which is the first on her new five year deal with RKO.

John Wayne is the man in her movie life, a story set in the aristocratic circles of South America. And just by way of keeping it even more colorful, it will be in technicolor with Dick Wallace directing.

Chatter in Hollywood: Several friends of the late Lupe Velez checked up on the disposition of the funds of her estate to see that they were being spent according to Lupe's stipulation.

Certainly her brother, Emigdio, is living up to the terms of the will which would please poor little Lupe very much.

The brother has followed her requests to the letter. That is, he has bought a nice home in Mexico City for his four children and has put the remainder of the money in trust for their education.

Sydney Greenstreet is finally set, sealed and delivered for the role of Evan Evans in Clark Gable's "The Hucksters," and believe you me, M-G-M had to pay a plenty for Sydney.

I'm told he gets $20,000 a week or some such fantastic sum, and all I hope for Sydney this new year is that the picture will go on and on. No, I can't wish that, either, because I have many friends at M-G-M.

But, anyway, he plays the character which is said to be patterned after a famous sponsor of a radio show who has since passed on.

I am very happy that Peter Rathvon, head of R-K-O, was able to persuade Dore Schary to accept his offer to take over the production reins of R-K-O. Remember I told you exclusively that Mr. Rathvon was negotiating with Schary who was a Selznick producer.

I think it's a fine thing for R-K-O. Schary knows the business, he is a good producer and he has had wide experience, together Rathvon and Schary will do big things.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Stanley Barbee, Coca-Cola king, and Yvonne Rosson, ex-wife of Hal Rosson, will be married January 9. . . . Joyce Coleman, former model, and Michael Harvey, Paramount actor, are starting the new year alone—they are divorcing. . . . The beautiful diamond pin Hazel Brook Gibbons wore to the New Year's parties was designed by her husband, Cedric Gibbons and executed by Harry Winston, the famous jeweler who cut the Hope Diamond. . . . Eddie Hillman was one of the first to respond to Walter Winchell's request for a certain type of blood for a sick person in Florida. . . . The Tex Feldmans gave one of the gayest of the holiday parties. Guests came all done up in their best clothes and many went on to the "Duel In The Sun" premiere. . . . Little Jeanne Crain, wearing braces on her teeth during the time she is awaiting motherhood, was so happy and flattered when Cary Grant told her she was his favorite actress since he saw her in "Margie.". . . Martha O'Driscoll, with many feathers on her hat, came with Greg Bautzer, Joan Crawford—please don't read. . . . Blonde Peggy Knudsen, an eyefull, was escorted by Phil Reed, who does get around since he and Barbara Hutton parted company. . . . Kitty and Mervyn Leroy, Judge J. F. T. O'Connor, Kay Williams Spreckles, in a gorgeous white-beaded decollette gown, and many others accepted Tex's generous hospitality. . . . David Selznick gave a beeg party at the Mocambo for his pets after his premiere. Some of the $2,000,000 spent on publicity went into sweaters for the cigarette girls and for the orchestra, carrying the words "Duel In The Sun.". . . Jimmy Beck, who left Hollywood for New York, is very much in the social swim, he and his pretty Mary. They gave a party honoring the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and all of the many titled personages visiting in New York at the moment were there. Jimmy is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's favorite pianist, and at a party she gave, he obliged with a piano solo. . . . Arthur Murray will be best man at the wedding of Arthur Madsen, manager of his Washington Studio. Madsen is marrying Lois Mann, former Warner starlet.

THERE IS NO REST

Daily they come by the dozens and scores. Fan letters. Wheezes . . . whines . . . . snorts . . . . . sneers . . . . and 537 other assorted bellyaches from discontented folk who sigh for the good old days. . . . who wonder when "there will be peace and rest so they can settle down."

All of which I can answer in just five words—

That day will never come.

No healthy, growing life has any margin for a time of settling down.

Only the stagnant and the dead can "settle down."

Fresh, vital life depends on change.

And change is never comfortable to lazy souls or minds.

Change always carries challenge, and challenge always means a jolt to some warped notion. . . . some pet habit. . . . . some old rut in which our sluggish feet have learned to tread.

One might as well wait for our human life to turn back 50,000 years as to hope that the peace we thought we knew as children will come back.

The truth is, all our younger years played leap frog just as they do now. But we forget. Our memories are sentimental memories. All are purged of hurt and fear. We seal our thoughts against the past's reality and like half-witted children think the day ahead should be as happy as the days when we wheeled dolls or played cops-and-robbers.

Stop wasting time and energy in hoping for some calm that will just fit your sluggish, fearful mind. Cut out the wishful thinking for the "good old days" that never really were. Accept the days ahead as eagerly as once you looked ahead when you were young.

And you need fear no conflict or dismay. Life always is a battle, but its wounds are few for those who dare to face it with a forward gaze.

Attendance Urged At Training Course For Foodhandlers

Mayor Post, H. W. Smith Endorse Program Of Health Department

Pointing out that Cumberland was given a rating of only 77 per cent in restaurant sanitation in a recent United States Public Health Service survey here, Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday urged all food handlers and operators of eating places to attend a training course to be held in the City Hall auditorium January 7, 8, 9 and 10.

The classes will consist of lectures on bacteria, proper methods of sanitation, storing and serving food, and common diseases which can be spread through improper food handling. They will be held under the auspices of the Cumberland Health Department.

Urges Attendance

"According to USPHS reports, more than 14,000 persons became ill in food-borne disease outbreaks in areas checked in 1944," the mayor's statement continued. "It is estimated that the total number of cases was from 10 to 20 times greater. These germs are spread by the improper preparation, handling, storing and servicing of food, and by untrained help.

"The USPHS has recommended training courses for employers and employes to attain a higher level of food sanitation. Our sanitary regulations depend upon the cooperation of employes and management. We hope that all persons connected with the preparation and handling of foods will avail themselves of the opportunity for acquiring expert information in these classes."

"Grade A" Rating Important

In another statement released yesterday regarding the training course for foodhandlers, H. W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, pointed out that in recent months, persons writing to him for names of hotels and local restaurants in anticipation of visits to Cumberland, have been asking for the names of "Grade A" restaurants because they know that places so rated conform to the regulations of the USPHS designed to protect them from food poisoning and infection.

"While attending the training courses next week, the operators, managers and employes of eating and drinking places can learn in a few hours the requirements of the United States Public Health Service which must be met if the places of business are to display the red 'Grade A' sign," Smith said.

"The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce unqualifiedly endorses this particular program and hopes that employers and workers in eating and drinking establishments will make a special effort to attend these classes which are certain to help the attainment of the ratings, and establish confidence on the part of the public in Cumberland's restaurants and bars," Smith concluded.

Trend For Shorter Stays In Hospital Noted Here

Overall statistics at Memorial Hospital show a definite trend for shorter stays on the part of bed-rest periods, comparable to the general trend for shorter hospital stays nationally, according to Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent.

Unless there are complications or danger of complications, the average maternity case at Memorial Hospital now runs about seven or eight days, as compared to 12 or 14 days a few years ago, the superintendent said.

He pointed out that bed-rest periods of all types of surgical cases have been cut 10 per cent, with the average stay now being 10 days.

Factors cutting down the length of bed-rest periods include the crowded condition of hospitals during the war years and the fact that the armed services, particularly the Army, came through with considerable experimental work that is now having an effect nationally with many former Army physicians back on the job at hundreds of hospitals.

A former first lieutenant and fighter pilot in the Marine Corps has re-enlisted at the local recruiting station for three years as a staff sergeant and is now stationed at the Marine Corps Air Base, Cherry Point, N. C., according to Staff Sgt. Murrel W. Brainerd, local recruiter.

He is John Michael Moran, 23, son of Mrs. Mary Moran, 318 Maryland avenue, Westernport. Moran participated in air strikes against Okinawa, Guam, Saipan and Tinian, and later served in Japan with the occupation forces.

Two youths enlisted for three years each. They are Albert Carl Smith, 17, son of Mrs. Lawrence O. Turner, 13 Offutt street, and William Russell Kline, 18, son of Mrs. Nora V. Kline, Wiley Ford, W. Va. Both have reported to boot camp at Parris Island, S. C.

Damage Actions Filed In Court

Two suits by titling have been filed in Circuit Court, one by Joseph P. Codire against Grace M. Fisher and the Cumberland Theater Company and a second by Mary Lou Kesler, a minor through her mother, Dorothy M. Kesler, against Joseph C. Stewart.

Harvey E. Funk, LaVale, and William E. Lewis, Long, have filed actions against James R. Smith, Oldtown Road, as the result of an accident last fall at the intersection of Oldtown Road and Brookfield avenue.

The plaintiffs charge they were riding a motorcycle when Smith turned his machine across the right of way causing a collision.

Ruhl Secures Permits For Photography Studio

Two building permits were secured in the city engineer's office Thursday by George A. Ruhl to reconstruct the front of a two-story brick building at 60-62 North Centre street and to build a two-story concrete block addition at the rear of the building for use as a photographic studio.

Combined cost of the work is estimated at $2,300. The addition, which will measure 21 by 22 feet, will have a concrete foundation and built-up slag covered roof.

E. L. Keefer, 923 Fairmont avenue, filed an appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals when his application for a permit to use a room in a two-story frame building at 901 Maryland avenue as a shoe repair shop was denied on the ground that the building is located in a Residential B zoning district. The room was formerly used as a confectionery but has been vacant for about two years. The building is owned by R. H. Matthews, 915 Bedford street.

Another appeal has been filed by Mrs. J. Donald Stillwagon to use part of the first floor at 215 South Lee street for a gift and art shop. Her application for an occupancy permit was denied because the building is located in a Residential B district. The property is owned by J. Donald Stillwagon, 330 North Mechanic street.

Heller Predicts Year's Weather By Onion Study

Using the "salt and onion" method of predicting weather according to custom in his family since 1830, Charles F. Heller, maintenance superintendent at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, yesterday predicted a "very wet" month for April. It is done this way:

Five minutes before the New Year Heller splits an onion and places some in each of 12 containers along with salt. He takes another look on arising New Year's Day. A heavy water content in the April cup means lots of rain for April, etc.

The complete forecast for the year follows:

January, wet; February, wet; March, moist; April, very wet; May, dry; June, dry; July, moist; August, wet, September, moist; October, moist; November, dry; and December, wet.

Asked to comment on the Heller method, Sage Weathervane, Sunday Times Weather Man, declared: "Such a procedure does not dignify the merit of a comment."

Attendance Urged At Training Course For Foodhandlers

Mayor Post, H. W. Smith Endorse Program Of Health Department

Pointing out that Cumberland was given a rating of only 77 per cent in restaurant sanitation in a recent United States Public Health Service survey here, Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday urged all food handlers and operators of eating places to attend a training course to be held in the City Hall auditorium January 7, 8, 9 and 10.

The classes will consist of lectures on bacteria, proper methods of sanitation, storing and serving food, and common diseases which can be spread through improper food handling. They will be held under the auspices of the Cumberland Health Department.

Urges Attendance

"According to USPHS reports, more than 14,000 persons became ill in food-borne disease outbreaks in areas checked in 1944," the mayor's statement continued. "It is estimated that the total number of cases was from 10 to 20 times greater. These germs are spread by the improper preparation, handling, storing and servicing of food, and by untrained help.

"The USPHS has recommended training courses for employers and employes to attain a higher level of food sanitation. Our sanitary regulations depend upon the cooperation of employes and management. We hope that all persons connected with the preparation and handling of foods will avail themselves of the opportunity for acquiring expert information in these classes."

"Grade A" Rating Important

In another statement released yesterday regarding the training course for foodhandlers, H. W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, pointed out that in recent months, persons writing to him for names of hotels and local restaurants in anticipation of visits to Cumberland, have been asking for the names of "Grade A" restaurants because they know that places so rated conform to the regulations of the USPHS designed to protect them from food poisoning and infection.

"While attending the training courses next week, the operators, managers and employes of eating and drinking places can learn in a few hours the requirements of the United States Public Health Service which must be met if the places of business are to display the red 'Grade A' sign," Smith said.

"The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce unqualifiedly endorses this particular program and hopes that employers and workers in eating and drinking establishments will make a special effort to attend these classes which are certain to help the attainment of the ratings, and establish confidence on the part of the public in Cumberland's restaurants and bars," Smith concluded.

After pawning the watch at a local pawn shop for $10, Dorsey said he gave the pawn ticket to a youth, Lloyd Brant, 17, this city.

Trend For Shorter Stays In Hospital Noted Here

Overall statistics at Memorial Hospital show a definite trend for shorter stays on the part of bed-rest periods, comparable to the general trend for shorter hospital stays nationally, according to Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent.

Unless there are complications or danger of complications, the average maternity case at Memorial Hospital now runs about seven or eight days, as compared to 12 or 14 days a few years ago, the superintendent said.

He pointed out that bed-rest periods of all types of surgical cases have been cut 10 per cent, with the average stay now being 10 days.

Factors cutting down the length of bed-rest periods include the crowded condition of hospitals during the war years and the fact that the armed services, particularly the Army, came through with considerable experimental work that is now having an effect nationally with many former Army physicians back on the job at hundreds of hospitals.

Warrant Issued For Ex-Sailor In Currie's Death

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 3—Authorities have issued a warrant here charging William Charles Hall, 19, of St. Louis, with the slaying of Frederick Currie, seaman first class, of Grosse Point, Mich., on December 23, near here. Virginia authorities have broadcast descriptions of Hall throughout eastern and midwestern states.

Hall, an ex-sailor, is being charged by Deputy Sheriff Robert DeHaven, of Frederick county, Va., with murder. DeHaven apppeared before Magistrate W. Earle Edwards to swear out the warrant.

Officers said that Hall has been identified from photographs as having been with Currie in this area prior to his death but so far has escaped arrest. A second suspect, still unidentified, is also wanted by police in connection with the slaying.

According to authorities Currie died of strangulation by a rope at a place unknown and his body then was left along the highway near here. The description of Hall reports him of slender, medium build, five feet, seven inches tall and weighing 139 pounds. He has light brown hair, blue eyes and a light complexion.

A pocketbook containing "bad conduct discharge" papers and other articles alleged to belong to Hall was beside the body of Currie found at the foot of an embankment along U. S. Route 50.

Those installed were W. Earle Cobey, president; William Landefield, vice president; Fred Flurshutz, treasurer; William J. Edwards, secretary, and Cobey, Landefield and John J. Robinson, new directors. Holdover directors are Hale, Flurshutz, Ralph E. Lashley, Rev. Walter M. Michael, George L. Buchanan, Charles F. Helmrich, Charles J. Simpson and Carl F. Schmutz.

Ruhl Secures Permits For Photography Studio

Two building permits were secured in the city engineer's office Thursday by George A. Ruhl to reconstruct the front of a two-story brick building at 60-62 North Centre street and to build a two-story concrete block addition at the rear of the building for use as a photographic studio.

Combined cost of the work is estimated at $2,300. The addition, which will measure 21 by 22 feet, will have a concrete foundation and built-up slag covered roof.

E. L. Keefer, 923 Fairmont avenue, filed an appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals when his application for a permit to use a room in a two-story frame building at 901 Maryland avenue as a shoe repair shop was denied on the ground that the building is located in a Residential B zoning district. The room was formerly used as a confectionery but has been vacant for about two years. The building is owned by R. H. Matthews, 915 Bedford street.

Another appeal has been filed by Mrs. J. Donald Stillwagon to use part of the first floor at 215 South Lee street for a gift and art shop. Heller Predicts Year's Weather By Onion Study

Using the "salt and onion" method of predicting weather according to custom in his family since 1830, Charles F. Heller, maintenance superintendent at the Cumberland Municipal Airport, yesterday predicted a "very wet" month for April. It is done this way:

Five minutes before the New Year Heller splits an onion and places some in each of 12 containers along with salt. He takes another look on arising New Year's Day. A heavy water content in the April cup means lots of rain for April, etc.

The complete forecast for the year follows:

January, wet; February, wet; March, moist; April, very wet; May, dry; June, dry; July, moist; August, wet, September, moist; October, moist; November, dry; and December, wet.

Asked to comment on the Heller method, Sage Weathervane, Sunday Times Weather Man, declared: "Such a procedure does not dignify the merit of a comment."

Fort Hill Wins, Keyser Defeats Allegany

Sentinels Beat Martinsburg Hi By 36-30 Score

Locals Outlast Scrappy Bulldogs To Mark Up Fourth Triumph

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

The Fort Hill Sentinels outlasted a scrappy team of set shot artists from Martinsburg, W. Va. last night to chalk up their fourth victory of the season by a 36-30 count before 500 spectators at Fort Hill gymnasium.

The first period was fast and furious with the score being knotted four times and the lead changing hands five times. Charles Manor opened the scoring after a minute of play with a basket to send Martinsburg's Bulldogs into the lead 2-0. Clinton Cage tied the score with a fielder but Jackie Laidlow caged a charity toss to send the Bulldogs in front again. Mel Dean's foul toss and Jim Manges' basket put the Hilltoppers in front once more but Martinsburg struck back as Harold Morris bucketed a one handed fielder and a lay-up basket to make the count 7-5, Martinsburg. Elmer Freeland's two foul conversions, sandwiched around Cage's basket gave Fort Hill a 9-7 lead but Laidlow and Charlie Robertson came through with baskets with a minute remaining to give Martinsburg an 11-9 quarter time lead.

Hold 5-Point Lead

Manges' set shot and Freeland's foul conversion set Fort Hill ahead again at 12-11 as the second period began. David Fowler hit the basket for Martinsburg on a long shot but Fort Hill started rolling as Freeland, Dean and Cage connected for baskets to give the home team an 18-13 lead with four minutes to go. Laidlow's basket followed by Freeland's two free tosses kept the Sentinels margin at five points (20-15) but Laidlow slipped in another fielder with a minute to go to make the half-time count 20-17, Fort Hill.

Manges' charity throw and Dean's basket raised Fort Hill's lead to 23-17 in the first three minutes of the third stanza. Laidlow and Freeland traded baskets and then Robertson and Morris converted from the foul line to make the score 25-21, Fort Hill, as the third period closed.

Score Tied At 26-All

Robertson caged a fielder in the first 20 seconds of the final period and Manor followed with a free throw to move the Bulldogs within one point of Fort Hill (25-14). Freeland made a free toss but a minute later Laidlow stole the ball from a Fort Hill player and dribbled the length of the court to score a basket and knot the count at 26-all. Seconds later Freeland duplicated Laidlow's feat, scoring on a lay-up shot and converting the free throw he was awarded when making the basket. Only two minutes of the quarter had elapsed and Fort Hill led 29-26.

Robertson pulled Martinsburg up within one point of the Sentinels once more with a basket, but Cage got one and "Bub" Frye two charity conversions after the automatic time out to give the Scarlet and White quint a 32-28 lead. Fowler's shot from the side with 1:30 to go cut the Sentinel lead to two points (32-30) but Frye's fielder from the corner with a minute remaining and Dean's lay-up goal thirty seconds later ended the scoring and sent the Bulldogs home with their first defeat in their initial start of the season.

Jiminez, Curcio And Colan Score In Garden Bouts

Alvarez, Washington And Thomas Beaten In 10-Round Scraps

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — It was "road show" night in Madison Square Garden tonight, with Promoter Mike Jacobs bringing in three ten-round return bouts from his "minor league farm", and the victories went to Mexico Julio Jiminez, Jersey Joe Curcio and Johnny Colan of New York.

Jiminez, a 138-pound moustachioed Mexican, outpointed Roman Alvarez, a native of Oklahoma who does his fighting out of Brooklyn, in the featured fuss, after Curcio did the same to Bee Bee Washington of Washington and Colan came home with a decision over John Thomas of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the third revival of a series that has been going on so long now the fight fans are calling it the new "Tobacco Road." Alvarez scaled 140½.

A crowd of 12,987 contributed to a gross gate of $60,937 to see the three scraps, all of which were uncovered previously in the St. Nicholas Arena.

The Jiminez-Alvarez party turned out to be a battle of cream-puff punchers, and considerably tamer than the last time they thumped each other, when Alvarez finished in front to hand the Mexican his lone defeat in nine starts since he came north from south of the border.

Tonight, Alvarez got off in front again, taking two of the first three rounds and cutting Jiminez's right eye with a hook in the third.

But the Mexican — turned into a switch hitter from the fourth round on, and, alternating from southpaw to orthodox stance and swinging his swats from the floor, piled up enough points to win.

Southpaw Joe Curcio of Newark, N. J., won a split decision over the highly-touted Bee Bee Washington of Washington, D. C.

Cage Tourneys Planned For Maryland Schools

Three Allegany County Schools Are Eligible For Class A, B, C And D Basketball Tests

The Health and Physical Education Association of Maryland Schools will sponsor tournaments in four classifications to determine basketball championships at the conclusion of the 1946-47 season, according to Arthur G. Ramey, executive board member of the association for Region No. 1, comprising Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick counties.

Plans for the tournaments were outlined at a meeting held this week in Baltimore by the executive board, namely, William Brish, of Chestertown, superintendent of schools of Kent County, and association president; Herbert Steiner, director of physical education and recreation of Baltimore county, vice-president; Thomas G. Ferguson, Baltimore, secretary-treasurer; Donald Minnegan, State Teachers' College, Towson; Paul Barnhart, Bladensburg, and Ramey.

Plan Used In Soccer

Under a set-up similar to that used to determine soccer championships during the past season, schools of the state are placed in four different classes, according to enrollment in the three upper high school grades. Class "A" schools are those with 500 or more enrollment, Class "B," from 300 to 500, Class "C," from 150 to 200 and Class "D," under 150 enrollment.

Allegany county has three Class "A" schools, namely, Beall, of Frostburg, and Fort Hill and Allegany, of Cumberland. Only one, however, would be eligible to compete in the district games. Other Class "A" schools in District No. 1 are Hagerstown High and Frederick High.

There are no Class "B" schools in Allegany county but Bruce, of Westernport, and Central, of Lonaconing, are listed under Class "C" and the one with the best record would represent this county in tournment play. Barton High School is the lone Class "D" school and will qualify without a struggle.

The state is divided into five districts and all district games must be completed by March 15. Three of the districts are on the western short and two on the eastern shore. A meeting will be held in Baltimore March 8, to make the draw for inter-district games. Western Shore games must be completed by March 22 while state title games must be terminated by March 29.

Ramey plans to call a meeting about March 1, at a place yet to be determined, to make preparations for District No. 1 games. Each of the four Western Maryland counties will be represented at this session.

Best Floors Sought

The association proposes to stage tournament games on standard sized floors only. The foremost floors in the district are Frederick High School, Fort Hill High School and Beall High School.

Both boys and girls championships will be decided this year.

Penna And Ward Lead Los Angeles Open Tournament

Pro And Amateur Post 69s For One Stroke Edge In Opening Round

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3 (AP)—Professionals and amateurs divided top honors today in the first round of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament, with former national amateur king Bud Ward and professional Tony Penna of Toledo tied for the lead with two-under par scores of 69.

The crack Spokane amateur and Penna turned in identical nine-hole cards of 35-34—69 for the par 35-36—71 Riviera Country Club course as an estimated 5,900 spectators turned out for the opening of the 21st annual mid-winter event.

Darkness overtook the closing threesomes, and the last one off the tee, National Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum, Dick Metz and National Public Links Champion Smiley Quick, all playing over par, will finish the 18th hole tomorrow.

Three Trail By Stroke

One stroke back of the two leaders were Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ben Hogan, the tournament favorite, and Ed (Pork-Chops) Oliver, all of whom shot 35-35-70.

Mangrum, gunning for his first major hometown title, and Chicago's Dick Metz were three over par at the end of 17 holes, and Los Angeles' Quick, after a bad first nine, was seven strokes over regulation figures at the same point.

Still in the running for the next 18 holes tomorrow, at even par, were five players; Amateur Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles; Detroit's Chick Harbert; George Fazio, Los Angeles; Eddie Joseph of Oakland, and Ted Rhodes, Negro entry from Nashville, and New York.

Two British stars, Dai Rees, of London, with 34-39—73, and Charles Ward, Birmingham, with 36-38—74, trailed today but hoped to get into the forefront.

Get Off To Bad Starts

Two gallery favorites, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret, got off to bad starts. Snead, 1945 winner, finishing with 38-36—74, and Texas' Demaret with 38-37—75. The latter won the event in 1939.

Ward, playing virtually unnoticed, as two over on the first three holes, but steadied, turned the corner all even and picked up two birdies on the way in. Penna, also playing in comparative obscurity, bogied the second hole, birdied No. three and ten, went one over on thirteen and birdied the next two.

The course has an even 7,000 yardage.

Niland And Mann Head Local Fight Card On Monday

Police Boys Club Show Set For State Armory At 8 O'Clock

Matchmaker John Henry Stitcher, of the Cumberland Police Boys Club, announced last night that he will present an all local amateur fistic program on Monday night at 8 o'clock at the state armory.

Efforts to bring a Johnstown or Lewistown, Pa., team here failed and Stitcher immediately started working on a home talent show.

Bill Mann, the hard-hitting welterweight of the Rocket Athletic Club, has been paired with Joe Niland, the lanky American Legion 147-pounder, who has won six out of eight matches in the past year, for the main go.

Jake Koelker, the Tiger A. C., 135-pounder, is slated to swap punches with Melvin "Keed" Washington, in another three-rounder.

Paul Lepley, the crowd-pleasing 135-pounder of the Tiger Athletic Club, will be given another opportunity to slug it out with Jack Jones, the South End Athletic Club belter, who suffered a bad cut near his eye and lost the first engagement when claret began spouting from the gash like a geyser. "Red" Mauk, Jones' manager is still debating the question: "Was Jack hit or was there a collision?"

Matchmaker Stitcher expects a number of new faces to appear on Monday's card in addition to the always ready group such as Jack Klosterman, Bobby Goss, Jimmie Catanese, Pat Murphy, Jim Klosterman, Edgar Tucker, Bill Frazier, Jimmie Deetz, Maurice Darr and Francis "Bud" Richards.

Monday's fistic program will be the eighth of the season here and the third to be sponsored by the Police Boys' Club.

Cobb Sets 400 MPH As His Speed Goal

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 3 (AP)—John Cobb fixed 400 miles per hour today as his goal for a new assault on the world's land speed record and said he'd try again in the same car he used to set the present mark.

The London fur broker conferred with Gus P. Backman, executive secretary of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce, on plans for a new speed run on the Bonneville Salt Flats, 120 miles west of Salt Lake City.

The trial has been set tentatively for next August.

Cobb set the present record of 369.74 miles per hour for a measured kilometer on the salt flats in August, 1939.

Illinois Players Agree UCLA Line Was Poor

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 3 (AP) —Left Tackle John Genis of the University of Illinois football team, homeward bound from victory in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, said here today that "in the 22 minutes I was in the game I never was touched."

"The UCLA line was basically poor," Genis said. "The Bruins were standing up most of the time."

See's Field Goal Decides Thriller At Keyser, 38-36

Winners Hoop 12 Out Of 18 Foul Shots; 1,000 See Close Battle

KEYSER, W. Va., Jan. 3—Keyser packed its scoring punch into the first and final quarters tonight to edge Allegany High School, of Cumberland, 38 to 36, before a capacity crowd of 1,000 persons.

It was the first game of the annual series between the teams and the victory was Keyser's fifth straight of the season. The setback was Allegany's second in four starts.

Keyser started off with a bang and ran up a 14-4 lead in the first period. Allegany found the range in the second quarter and trailed by only four points at the halfway mark, 20-16. The Campers continued their spurt and when the third quarter ended they held a six-point advantage at 31-25. Regaining its first quarter shooting accuracy, Keyser rang up 13 markers to Allegany's five in the final stanza.

The score was tied three times during the game at 24, 31 and finally at 36 with seconds left to play. Then Kenny See whose three goals enabled the Golden Tornado to pass AHS at 33-31, connected for the fielder that broke the deadlock and settled the issue.

A final checkup showed that superior foul pitching won the game for the locals. Outscored 14 to 13 in fielders, the Clarkmen converted 12 of 18 charity tosses while the Blue and White hooped 8 of 16 free shots. In the first half, Keyser meshed eight of nine shots at the 15-foot line.

Twenty-eight personal fouls were plastered on the teams—13 on Keyser and 15 on the Cumberland team. No players were ejected but Blamer and Cline, of Keyser, and Shaw and Powers, of AHS, were charged with four personal fouls each.

See exploded for 14 points, including six fielders, to head the Keyser attack while Fred Blamer and Tommy Powers shared runner-up honors with nine tallies each.

Fort Hill Wins, Keyser Defeats Allegany

Sentinels Beat Martinsburg Hi By 36-30 Score

Locals Outlast Scrappy Bulldogs To Mark Up Fourth Triumph

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

The Fort Hill Sentinels outlasted a scrappy team of set shot artists from Martinsburg, W. Va. last night to chalk up their fourth victory of the season by a 36-30 count before 500 spectators at Fort Hill gymnasium.

The first period was fast and furious with the score being knotted four times and the lead changing hands five times. Charles Manor opened the scoring after a minute of play with a basket to send Martinsburg's Bulldogs into the lead 2-0. Clinton Cage tied the score with a fielder but Jackie Laidlow caged a charity toss to send the Bulldogs in front again. Mel Dean's foul toss and Jim Manges' basket put the Hilltoppers in front once more but Martinsburg struck back as Harold Morris bucketed a one handed fielder and a lay-up basket to make the count 7-5, Martinsburg. Elmer Freeland's two foul conversions, sandwiched around Cage's basket gave Fort Hill a 9-7 lead but Laidlow and Charlie Robertson came through with baskets with a minute remaining to give Martinsburg an 11-9 quarter time lead.

Hold 5-Point Lead

Manges' set shot and Freeland's foul conversion set Fort Hill ahead again at 12-11 as the second period began. David Fowler hit the basket for Martinsburg on a long shot but Fort Hill started rolling as Freeland, Dean and Cage connected for baskets to give the home team an 18-13 lead with four minutes to go. Laidlow's basket followed by Freeland's two free tosses kept the Sentinels margin at five points (20-15) but Laidlow slipped in another fielder with a minute to go to make the half-time count 20-17, Fort Hill.

Manges' charity throw and Dean's basket raised Fort Hill's lead to 23-17 in the first three minutes of the third stanza. Laidlow and Freeland traded baskets and then Robertson and Morris converted from the foul line to make the score 25-21, Fort Hill, as the third period closed.

Score Tied At 26-All

Robertson caged a fielder in the first 20 seconds of the final period and Manor followed with a free throw to move the Bulldogs within one point of Fort Hill (25-14). Freeland made a free toss but a minute later Laidlow stole the ball from a Fort Hill player and dribbled the length of the court to score a basket and knot the count at 26-all. Seconds later Freeland duplicated Laidlow's feat, scoring on a lay-up shot and converting the free throw he was awarded when making the basket. Only two minutes of the quarter had elapsed and Fort Hill led 29-26.

Robertson pulled Martinsburg up within one point of the Sentinels once more with a basket, but Cage got one and "Bub" Frye two charity conversions after the automatic time out to give the Scarlet and White quint a 32-28 lead. Fowler's shot from the side with 1:30 to go cut the Sentinel lead to two points (32-30) but Frye's fielder from the corner with a minute remaining and Dean's lay-up goal thirty seconds later ended the scoring and sent the Bulldogs home with their first defeat in their initial start of the season.

Jiminez, Curcio And Colan Score In Garden Bouts

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (AP) — It was "road show" night in Madison Square Garden tonight, with Promoter Mike Jacobs bringing in three ten-round return bouts from his "minor league farm", and the victories went to Mexico Julio Jiminez, Jersey Joe Curcio and Johnny Colan of New York.

Jiminez, a 138-pound moustachioed Mexican, outpointed Roman Alvarez, a native of Oklahoma who does his fighting out of Brooklyn, in the featured fuss, after Curcio did the same to Bee Bee Washington of Washington and Colan came home with a decision over John Thomas of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the third revival of a series that has been going on so long now the fight fans are calling it the new "Tobacco Road." Alvarez scaled 140½.

A crowd of 12,987 contributed to a gross gate of $60,937 to see the three scraps, all of which were uncovered previously in the St. Nicholas Arena.

The Jiminez-Alvarez party turned out to be a battle of cream-puff punchers, and considerably tamer than the last time they thumped each other, when Alvarez finished in front to hand the Mexican his lone defeat in nine starts since he came north from south of the border.

Tonight, Alvarez got off in front again, taking two of the first three rounds and cutting Jiminez's right eye with a hook in the third.

But the Mexican — turned into a switch hitter from the fourth round on, and, alternating from southpaw to orthodox stance and swinging his swats from the floor, piled up enough points to win.

Southpaw Joe Curcio of Newark, N. J., won a split decision over the highly-touted Bee Bee Washington of Washington, D. C.

Plan Used In Soccer

Under a set-up similar to that used to determine soccer championships during the past season, schools of the state are placed in four different classes, according to enrollment in the three upper high school grades. Class "A" schools are those with 500 or more enrollment, Class "B," from 300 to 500, Class "C," from 150 to 200 and Class "D," under 150 enrollment.

Allegany county has three Class "A" schools, namely, Beall, of Frostburg, and Fort Hill and Allegany, of Cumberland. Only one, however, would be eligible to compete in the district games. Other Class "A" schools in District No. 1 are Hagerstown High and Frederick High.

There are no Class "B" schools in Allegany county but Bruce, of Westernport, and Central, of Lonaconing, are listed under Class "C" and the one with the best record would represent this county in tournment play. Barton High School is the lone Class "D" school and will qualify without a struggle.

The state is divided into five districts and all district games must be completed by March 15. Three of the districts are on the western short and two on the eastern shore. A meeting will be held in Baltimore March 8, to make the draw for inter-district games. Western Shore games must be completed by March 22 while state title games must be terminated by March 29.

Ramey plans to call a meeting about March 1, at a place yet to be determined, to make preparations for District No. 1 games. Each of the four Western Maryland counties will be represented at this session.

Best Floors Sought

The association proposes to stage tournament games on standard sized floors only. The foremost floors in the district are Frederick High School, Fort Hill High School and Beall High School.

Both boys and girls championships will be decided this year.

TELEGRAPHIC BOWLING MATCHES ARE APPROVED BY STATE ASSOCIATION

Approval of bowling as a competitive sport for senior and junior high school boys and girls is announced by the Health and Physical Education Association of Maryland and plans will be released shortly relative to the method of determining district, sectional and state championships.

Full details of the state organization will be sent to each high school principal by Thomas G. Ferguson, of Baltimore, secretary-treasurer of the state association.

Games in Maryland will be conducted under the rules of the American High School Bowling Congress.

Preliminary plans call for a telegraphic bowling tournament about March 10 or 15 to determine the state championship teams. Maryland winners will likely compete in the national tournament.

Penna And Ward Lead Los Angeles Open Tournament

Pro And Amateur Post 69s For One Stroke Edge In Opening Round

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3 (AP)—Professionals and amateurs divided top honors today in the first round of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament, with former national amateur king Bud Ward and professional Tony Penna of Toledo tied for the lead with two-under par scores of 69.

The crack Spokane amateur and Penna turned in identical nine-hole cards of 35-34—69 for the par 35-36—71 Riviera Country Club course as an estimated 5,900 spectators turned out for the opening of the 21st annual mid-winter event.

Darkness overtook the closing threesomes, and the last one off the tee, National Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum, Dick Metz and National Public Links Champion Smiley Quick, all playing over par, will finish the 18th hole tomorrow.

Three Trail By Stroke

One stroke back of the two leaders were Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ben Hogan, the tournament favorite, and Ed (Pork-Chops) Oliver, all of whom shot 35-35-70.

Mangrum, gunning for his first major hometown title, and Chicago's Dick Metz were three over par at the end of 17 holes, and Los Angeles' Quick, after a bad first nine, was seven strokes over regulation figures at the same point.

Still in the running for the next 18 holes tomorrow, at even par, were five players; Amateur Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles; Detroit's Chick Harbert; George Fazio, Los Angeles; Eddie Joseph of Oakland, and Ted Rhodes, Negro entry from Nashville, and New York.

Two British stars, Dai Rees, of London, with 34-39—73, and Charles Ward, Birmingham, with 36-38—74, trailed today but hoped to get into the forefront.

Get Off To Bad Starts

Two gallery favorites, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret, got off to bad starts. Snead, 1945 winner, finishing with 38-36—74, and Texas' Demaret with 38-37—75. The latter won the event in 1939.

Ward, playing virtually unnoticed, as two over on the first three holes, but steadied, turned the corner all even and picked up two birdies on the way in. Penna, also playing in comparative obscurity, bogied the second hole, birdied No. three and ten, went one over on thirteen and birdied the next two.

Thomas High Tops Terra Alta, 44-43

Tucker Countians Overcome 11-Point Lead To Win In Final Quarter

THOMAS, W. Va., Jan. 3 —Thomas High School staged a sensational fourth quarter rally to come from behind and nose out Terra Alta High School here tonight by the score of 44 to 43.

Trailing by 11 points, 36-25, going into the final period, Coach Emil Suder's outfit racked up 19 points to 7 for the visitors to put the game on ice. Two fielders each by Johnny Gennantonio and "Sonny" Totedo put Thomas one point in the rear and then Ralph Greco heaved in the winning basket. Thomas "froze" the ball for 2½ minutes before time ran out.

The victory was Thomas' fourth against one defeat.

High scoring honors were captured by Berghdorf, Terra Alta center, who garnered 22 points on eleven field goals. Gennantonio and Totedo with 16 and 10 tallies paced the Thomas offensive.

ALTOONA INDIES WILL PLAY AMVETS TOMORROW NIGHT

Cumberland's Amvets will be shooting for their fifth victory of the season when they do battle with the Altoona (Pa.) Indies Sunday night at 9 o'clock at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium.

It will be the 13th start of the season for the locals who have won four and lost eight. The home record of Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's club is three wins and six losses.

Altoona is coached by Jack Apple, one-time star of the Detroit National Professional League.

The Indies' personnel includes Harry Felty and Bill Curran, former St. Francis College (Loretto, Pa.) athletes; "Bugs" and "Chink" Miller, formerly of Mississippi State; Freddie King, Lou Fahr and Don Ford, who starred with the classy Hollidaysburg Fire Chiefs of several years ago; Bill Lightner, who played pro ball in Philadelphia, and Eddie Russell and Johnny Robinson, both of whom had pro basketball experience with Pittsburgh teams.

There will be a preliminary game at 8 o'clock.

Police Boys Club Show Set For State Armory At 8 O'Clock

Matchmaker John Henry Stitcher, of the Cumberland Police Boys Club, announced last night that he will present an all local amateur fistic program on Monday night at 8 o'clock at the state armory.

Efforts to bring a Johnstown or Lewistown, Pa., team here failed and Stitcher immediately started working on a home talent show.

Bill Mann, the hard-hitting welterweight of the Rocket Athletic Club, has been paired with Joe Niland, the lanky American Legion 147-pounder, who has won six out of eight matches in the past year, for the main go.

Jake Koelker, the Tiger A. C., 135-pounder, is slated to swap punches with Melvin "Keed" Washington, in another three-rounder.

Paul Lepley, the crowd-pleasing 135-pounder of the Tiger Athletic Club, will be given another opportunity to slug it out with Jack Jones, the South End Athletic Club belter, who suffered a bad cut near his eye and lost the first engagement when claret began spouting from the gash like a geyser. "Red" Mauk, Jones' manager is still debating the question: "Was Jack hit or was there a collision?"

Matchmaker Stitcher expects a number of new faces to appear on Monday's card in addition to the always ready group such as Jack Klosterman, Bobby Goss, Jimmie Catanese, Pat Murphy, Jim Klosterman, Edgar Tucker, Bill Frazier, Jimmie Deetz, Maurice Darr and Francis "Bud" Richards.

Monday's fistic program will be the eighth of the season here and the third to be sponsored by the Police Boys' Club.

Cobb Sets 400 MPH As His Speed Goal

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 3 (AP)—John Cobb fixed 400 miles per hour today as his goal for a new assault on the world's land speed record and said he'd try again in the same car he used to set the present mark.

The London fur broker conferred with Gus P. Backman, executive secretary of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce, on plans for a new speed run on the Bonneville Salt Flats, 120 miles west of Salt Lake City.

The trial has been set tentatively for next August.

Cobb set the present record of 369.74 miles per hour for a measured kilometer on the salt flats in August, 1939.

Illinois Players Agree UCLA Line Was Poor

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 3 (AP)—Left Tackle John Genis of the University of Illinois football team, homeward bound from victory in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, said here today that "in the 22 minutes I was in the game I never was touched."

"The UCLA line was basically poor," Genis said. "The Bruins were standing up most of the time."

See's Field Goal Decides Thriller At Keyser, 38-36

Winners Hoop 12 Out Of 18 Foul Shots; 1,000 See Close Battle

KEYSER, W. Va., Jan. 3—Keyser packed its scoring punch into the first and final quarters tonight to edge Allegany High School, of Cumberland, 38 to 36, before a capacity crowd of 1,000 persons.

It was the first game of the annual series between the teams and the victory was Keyser's fifth straight of the season. The setback was Allegany's second in four starts.

Keyser started off with a bang and ran up a 14-4 lead in the first period. Allegany found the range in the second quarter and trailed by only four points at the halfway mark, 20-16. The Campers continued their spurt and when the third quarter ended they held a six-point advantage at 31-25. Regaining its first quarter shooting accuracy, Keyser rang up 13 markers to Allegany's five in the final stanza.

The score was tied three times during the game at 24, 31 and finally at 36 with seconds left to play. Then Kenny See whose three goals enabled the Golden Tornado to pass AHS at 33-31, connected for the fielder that broke the deadlock and settled the issue.

A final checkup showed that superior foul pitching won the game for the locals. Outscored 14 to 13 in fielders, the Clarkmen converted 12 of 18 charity tosses while the Blue and White hooped 8 of 16 free shots. In the first half, Keyser meshed eight of nine shots at the 15-foot line.

Twenty-eight personal fouls were plastered on the teams—13 on Keyser and 15 on the Cumberland team. No players were ejected but Blamer and Cline, of Keyser, and Shaw and Powers, of AHS, were charged with four personal fouls each.

See exploded for 14 points, including six fielders, to head the Keyser attack while Fred Blamer and Tommy Powers shared runner-up honors with nine tallies each.

In the preliminary game, Allegany's Reserves won over the Keyser Reserves, 32 to 19. Lineups:

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The Great American secretary

Since the girls on the radio are so singularly and, to us city dwellers, surprisingly devoted to small towns, it is with a sense of relief, recognition and kinship that many of us metropolitan radio listeners turn to Maisie (CBS 10:30 p. m. EST Fridays). Maisie is anything but a small town girl. She's a babe from the big cities with all the faults and virtues of that incredibly tough breed of cat.

Ann Sothern

In fact, to digress a little, the American metropolis requires of its women a toughness and adaptability as great as that of our pioneer forebears. The large American city is particularly demanding of its bachelor women. She must be independent, tough, wise, cynical and sentimental—all at once. She should possess nerves of iron and the constitution of a longshoreman. It also helps considerably if she is stunning to look at, dresses like Mrs. Harrison Williams on $30 a week, and has at her disposal a ready fund of small talk, jokes, and, if possible, the latest ball scores. She will find it convenient to have a speaking acquaintance with the best after-dark resorts, a stable of gentlemen friends to pick up the checks at these spots and a stable of girl friends in whom to confide what went on in the taxicab afterwards. And, of course, she should also know shorthand and typing, be able to get along on two or three hours sleep, subsist entirely on lettuce sandwiches and malted milks, handle middle-aged drunks in bars, have a working knowledge of streetcar, bus and subway schedules and sufficient stamina to get on and off of them in rush hours. The large American city is no place for tender vines with shallow roots. You have to be sturdy to survive.

In various degrees Maisie possesses all these qualities. She's a very well-developed character and, after all these years, she ought to be. Maisie's personality has been gradually developing and expanding in the movies and on the radio for so many years that her origins are shrouded by antiquity. Ann Sothern has been playing the part for almost as many years as William Gillette played Sherlock Holmes and, of course, after all those years of experience, she's become an awfully practised hand. She sounds as if she could play Maisie in her sleep.

Maisie is the Great American Secretary and she talks, to swipe a phrase from George S. Kaufman, pure Spearmint. Her highly specialized dialogue, which is as American as hot apple pie, deserves some special comment. "The same to you, I'm sure, Mr. Doolittle," she is likely to say in response to a compliment of whose meaning she's not entirely sure.

She also employs one irreplaceable phrase which anyone who has ever done business by telephone in a large American city must have heard hundreds of times. "Just what is it in reference to?" she will say guardedly to any voice she doesn't recognize over the phone. The phrase, to summarize it only briefly, means: who are you, does the boss know you, are you important enough to be polite to, will this cost the boss money or will it, conversely, earn him some, and don't for a moment think you're going to get the boss on the phone until I know all the answers.

Maisie's conversation is stilted in just the wrong places and frequently breaks down into absurdity at the wrong moments. In explaining a Christmas present to a friend, for instance, Maisie blithely asserts: "It's something always used by smart hostesses when they serve olives. No olive should be without it."

When she is backed into a corner, where logic and prior experience desert her, she'll resort without any qualms to that all-feminine argument: "Terry, I'm a woman and a woman doesn't need a reason."

When her girl friend does something unusully nice for which she is wholly unprepared to reciprocate, she will wail in despair: "Oh, Ethel, you shouldn't have done it." And, at the same time, will wonder just what ulterior motive Ethel had in mind since Ethel, much as Maisie is devoted to her, never does anything without expecting something in return.

Maisie, in other words, is the soul of gentility at all times. "Gentlemen, gentlemen," she will say to a couple of dubious characters who are contesting for her favors. "Don't lose your temperatures." The words may not be exactly right but they are always indubitably ladylike. Like Don Marquis Mehitabel, Maisie is always a lady even when her prose slips out from under her.

Maisie is pretty much the whole show but there are an assortment of other city characters on this program, helping Maisie in and out of her big city tribulations. One of them is a dreamboat named Bill, who plays it straight, and consequently is no match for his girl friend Maisie.

RADIO IN REVIEW

The Great American secretary

Since the girls on the radio are so singularly and, to us city dwellers, surprisingly devoted to small towns, it is with a sense of relief, recognition and kinship that many of us metropolitan radio listeners turn to Maisie (CBS 10:30 p. m. EST Fridays). Maisie is anything but a small town girl. She's a babe from the big cities with all the faults and virtues of that incredibly tough breed of cat.

Ann Sothern

In fact, to digress a little, the American metropolis requires of its women a toughness and adaptability as great as that of our pioneer forebears. The large American city is particularly demanding of its bachelor women. She must be independent, tough, wise, cynical and sentimental—all at once. She should possess nerves of iron and the constitution of a longshoreman. It also helps considerably if she is stunning to look at, dresses like Mrs. Harrison Williams on $30 a week, and has at her disposal a ready fund of small talk, jokes, and, if possible, the latest ball scores. She will find it convenient to have a speaking acquaintance with the best after-dark resorts, a stable of gentlemen friends to pick up the checks at these spots and a stable of girl friends in whom to confide what went on in the taxicab afterwards. And, of course, she should also know shorthand and typing, be able to get along on two or three hours sleep, subsist entirely on lettuce sandwiches and malted milks, handle middle-aged drunks in bars, have a working knowledge of streetcar, bus and subway schedules and sufficient stamina to get on and off of them in rush hours. The large American city is no place for tender vines with shallow roots. You have to be sturdy to survive.

In various degrees Maisie possesses all these qualities. She's a very well-developed character and, after all these years, she ought to be. Maisie's personality has been gradually developing and expanding in the movies and on the radio for so many years that her origins are shrouded by antiquity. Ann Sothern has been playing the part for almost as many years as William Gillette played Sherlock Holmes and, of course, after all those years of experience, she's become an awfully practised hand. She sounds as if she could play Maisie in her sleep.

Maisie is the Great American Secretary and she talks, to swipe a phrase from George S. Kaufman, pure Spearmint. Her highly specialized dialogue, which is as American as hot apple pie, deserves some special comment. "The same to you, I'm sure, Mr. Doolittle," she is likely to say in response to a compliment of whose meaning she's not entirely sure.

She also employs one irreplaceable phrase which anyone who has ever done business by telephone in a large American city must have heard hundreds of times. "Just what is it in reference to?" she will say guardedly to any voice she doesn't recognize over the phone. The phrase, to summarize it only briefly, means: who are you, does the boss know you, are you important enough to be polite to, will this cost the boss money or will it, conversely, earn him some, and don't for a moment think you're going to get the boss on the phone until I know all the answers.

Maisie's conversation is stilted in just the wrong places and frequently breaks down into absurdity at the wrong moments. In explaining a Christmas present to a friend, for instance, Maisie blithely asserts: "It's something always used by smart hostesses when they serve olives. No olive should be without it."

When she is backed into a corner, where logic and prior experience desert her, she'll resort without any qualms to that all-feminine argument: "Terry, I'm a woman and a woman doesn't need a reason."

When her girl friend does something unusully nice for which she is wholly unprepared to reciprocate, she will wail in despair: "Oh, Ethel, you shouldn't have done it." And, at the same time, will wonder just what ulterior motive Ethel had in mind since Ethel, much as Maisie is devoted to her, never does anything without expecting something in return.

Maisie, in other words, is the soul of gentility at all times. "Gentlemen, gentlemen," she will say to a couple of dubious characters who are contesting for her favors. "Don't lose your temperatures." The words may not be exactly right but they are always indubitably ladylike. Like Don Marquis Mehitabel, Maisie is always a lady even when her prose slips out from under her.

Maisie is pretty much the whole show but there are an assortment of other city characters on this program, helping Maisie in and out of her big city tribulations. One of them is a dreamboat named Bill, who plays it straight, and consequently is no match for his girl friend Maisie.

Celanese And Union Will Resume Wage Talks Soon

Local 1874, TWUA, Empowers Negotiating Committee To Call Strike If Necessary

Tentative arrangements were completed yesterday by the United States Department of Labor for a conference early next week between the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO.

The announcement of the continuance of negotiations for an 18 cent wage increase at the Amcelle plant followed the reported unanimous action of the union in empowering its officers to call a strike whenever they feel further discussions on the wage boost are useless.

Edward R. Allan, personnel manager of the plant, who announced plans for the wage meeting, said Conciliation Commissioner James Crockett called by phone yesterday and made the tentative arrangements for the meeting.

Union officials confirmed plans for the conference which they said they hope can be held Tuesday.

William Boyd Coleman, president of the union, said the union and company tentatively agreed to meet again Monday with Commissioner Crockett but that the conference was postponed after they learned that Herbert W. Payne, director of the TWUA's rayon division, was busy in the Viscose Corporation negotiations in Philadelphia and could not attend on that day.

Payne May Attend

He added that the local is making every effort to get Payne here for the session. The New York TWUA official has attended two of the last three sessions held here on the request for the wage boost.

Local 1874, on November 21, formally presented its request for an 18-cent hourly wage increase for production workers at the Amcelle plant under the reopening clause in its contract of May, 1945, and the company, early in December, offered five cents, asserting the sum, added to the increase granted last May, more than compensated for the rise in the cost of living.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, asserted the average increase at the plant since January 1, 1941, averaged 53.3 per cent compared to the national average of 39.5 increase in the cost of living for the same period.

The five-cent offer was rejected by the committee and was not presented to the membership for action since union officials deemed it too small for consideration.

There has been no reported change in that situation since Monday's meeting.

Coleman, in a formal statement yesterday revealed that the negotiation committee of the 9,000 member TWUA union had been authorized, at meetings Wednesday and Thursday, to call a strike at the Amcelle plant when it feels further discussion on the union's proposal for an 18-cent wage increase are useless.

Statement Issued

"At overflow memberships of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, last night and this morning, the negotiating committee was authorized by a unanimous vote to call a work stoppage at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America when it feels that further negotiations on the union's demand for an 18-cent an hour wage increase are useless.

"The negotiating committee is composed of 16 shop chairmen of the main departments at the local plant along with the union's president and business manager.

"When the union invited all of the companies in the rayon industry to attend a joint meeting in New York to negotiate the union's proposal for an 18-cent an hour increase, we offered the companies to arbitrate any disputes that might have come about during the discussions. This offer of the union was rejected by the Celanese Corporation of America and by most of the other firms in the industry.

"At last Monday's wage negotiation meeting with company representatives, Commissioner James Crockett of the United States Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor proposed arbitration as a method of settling the union's dispute with Celanese. Union spokesmen stated they would consider arbitration, but the company flatly rejected the arbitration suggestion.

"The officers of Local 1874 are contacting Commissioner Crockett to notify him of the action taken by the membership last night and today."

5,000 File Claims

Union officials reported that more than 5,000 members have filed for portal-to-portal pay and that all claims submitted last week have been entered in a suit brought by Lester M. Levin, former Baltimore NRLB officer now representing the union, in the Southern District Court of New York.

Claims may be filed today from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from now on during union business hours but union officials warned that persons who hold back may be left "holding the bag" if Congress should pass legislation which would prohibit further claims.

Union meetings have been called for next Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. and Thursday at 10 a. m. to nominate officers and select an election committee for the annual election to be held January 27, 28 and 29.

Kelly Springfield Refuses To Reopen Wage Talks

A request that wage negotiations be reopened between the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and Local No. 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO was rejected yesterday on the grounds that the present contract would not permit it, a union spokesman said.

The request was made at the weekly grievance meeting, but company officials said to do so would mean scrapping the present contract recently agreed to by both the company and union officials.

No indications were given whether the union would abide by the company's decision, but the spokesman said no further meetings were scheduled for such a discussion.

Crippled League Planning Program For Cardiac Cases

Services Of Specialist May Be Secured To Conduct Clinics Here

Plans are being considered to begin a program to aid rheumatic fever and cardiac cases among county school children, according to the annual report of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, released yesterday by Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary.

Mrs. Annan said that she has conferred with Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, regarding the possibility of holding clinics at League headquarters for such cases.

Schools conduct regular physical examinations for students, and data on rhemuatic fever and cardiac cases could also be collected from Health Department files, Mrs. Annan said. It is hoped that a physician who specializes in such cases can be secured to come to Cumberland for the clinics.

Speech Program Planned

Mrs. Annan also announced that Dr. Richard Hutcheson, Washington, D. C., speech pathologist who conducted the first speech clinic to be sponsored by the League last October, is interviewing applicants to secure a resident speech teacher for the county, and that he will recommend one within a short time.

Mrs. Annan quoted Dr. Hutcheson as stating after the clinic that a speech correction program in Allegany county is "entirely feasible."

The number of clinical examinations given during 1946 was 857, according to the report. Two cerebral palsy clinics, three orthopedic clinics, one plastic surgery clinic and one speech correction clinic were held. The total active case load as of November 30, 1946, was 560.

New children admitted to service numbered 152, while 19 were discharged. New shoes were supplied to 334 children, and 353 repairs to shoes and adjustments to appliances were made.

Children in hospitals as of November 30 numbered 12, while 57 were admitted to and 52 were discharged from hospitals during the year.

2,000 Treatments Given

Miss Elma Georg, state physical therapist, gave 2,000 treatments at League headquarters, and there were 1,665 conference, reference and nursing visits in the field and 2,500 in the office.

Mrs. Annan gave 12 lectures to student nurses and to various community organizations regarding the League's program, and 18 committee meetings were held. Other services were as follows:

Eighty-five children were supplied with appliances other than shoes; 40 received X-rays; 25 received special medicines; 38 were recommended for examination at special clinics; 60 were recommended for corrective shoes, and 28 were recommended for new braces.

Mrs. Annan announced that Dr. George O. Eaton, Baltimore, will conduct an orthopedic clinic at League headquarters on Friday, January 10. Examination will be by appointment only.

February Class Of Local School Of Nursing Has Been Cancelled

Insufficient Applications Cited As Cause By Memorial Hospital

Following an announcement by the nursing information bureau of the American Nurses' Association that there was a sharp decrease in the number of new students admitted to schools of nursing in 1946 as compared to 1945, Miss Frances L. Loftus, director of nurses at Memorial Hospital, said yesterday that the February class in the hospital's school of nursing has been cancelled because of insufficient applications.

Miss Loftus explained that only four young women have applied for admission to the school in the February class, as compared to a necessary quota of 15. The deadline for applications for that class has passed, since processing work takes several weeks before an applicant can be qualified.

119 Are In Training

Because of the large enrollment of 34 students in the class entering last September, however, the hospital's quota of student nurses is only about 10 short, Miss Loftus added. The quota is based on the hospital's bed capacity and clinical facilities. Approximately 119 student nurses are in training at the present time, only a few less than last year. The next class will enter in September, 1947.

At Allegany Hospital, there are only 77 student nurses, as compared to 107 in January, 1945, according to Sister Fidelis, director of the hospital's school of nursing. Thirty-five students were graduated from January, 1945, to January, 1946, and the majority are on duty at the hospital, while the remainder are serving in veterans' hospitals and on private duty nursing.

National Decrease Cited

Fewer than 31,000 new students were admitted to the nation's 1,300 schools of nursing during 1946, or 25,000 less than the total of more than 56,000 new students admitted during 1945.

War-inspired patriotism and government scholarships combined to increase enrollment in schools of nursing during the war, according to the report from the American Nurses' Association.

Greater demand for nurses today is caused in part by the growth of group hospitalization and health insurance plans, advances in medical science, growth of public school and industrial health programs, and expanding hospital building programs.

The report cited that there are at least a dozen fields of nursing open to young nurses upon graduation from an accredited school of nursing.

Leslie Will Get Hearing Monday On Theft Charge

Police Say Circumstantial Evidence Is Against Former Boxer

Michael Leslie, local amateur boxer, who has been held in City Jail for the past five days will be given a preliminary hearing Monday in People's Court on charges of the armed robbery of George Ruhl November 6, 1946, Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber said.

Leslie, who has been questioned several times by police and county officials, since his apprehension, has denied any knowledge of the crime, but Chief Treiber said the circumstantial evidence against the former boxer is strong.

Witnesses Summoned

Three witnesses, now at large and Curtis Portmess, who was being held in the county jail will be summoned to appear at the hearing Monday Chief Treiber said. The witnesses were identified as William Simpson, Frederick street; Mary Lou Kessler, 15, Pioneer place, and Edna Hartsock, 15, Green Ridge.

Leslie, and Lloyd Mauk, who is now being held in Frederick County on a liquor theft charge, were identified as the two men who were seen n Firemen' Hall, Ridgeley W. Va., planning the holdup the night Ruhl, manager of the Workers Social and Athletic Club, was robbed of $10, Treiber declared.

Portmess, according to Treiber, admitted that he was invited by the two men to take part in the holdup, but declared that he refused. The other two witnesses informed police that they were associating with Leslie and Mauk at the Firemen' hall, and overheard them planning the robbery, Treiber added.

Leslie and Portmess were arrested after a North End resident reported they were in his home creating a disturbance, police said, adding that they had been searching for Leslie for some time.

The accused man was recently released by Frederick County authorities because of insufficient evidence, after he was questioned in connection with the liquor theft for which Mauk is being held along with James Hite, also of Cumberland.

The two men are also believed to have stolen the automobile of P. E. Meyers, McCrory store manager, and used it to transport the liquor from Frederick to Baltimore, where they were arrested. The stolen liquor was valued at $2,500, police said.

Leslie Refuses To Talk

Since his arrest by local police, Leslie has steadfastly refused to talk, police said, but on the evidence presented by the four witnesses, police said they are confident that Leslie knows something about the Ruhl holdup.

Quartet Is Held For Grand Jury In Legion Slot Machine Theft

Bond Set At $1,000 Each; Steward Forfeits $100 On Gaming Charge

Charged with feloniously breaking and entering the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, the morning of December 31, four young men who have admitted the theft of seven slot machines from the home, were committed to the county jail for grand jury action in default of bond of $1,000 each in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday morning, Joseph Fradiska, steward and liquor licensee of Fort Cumberland Post, forfeited bond of $100 in Police Court when he failed to appear for trial on a gaming charge. Fradiska was arrested Thursday afternoon on a charge of maintaining slot machines at the Legion home but was in no way involved in the theft of the machines.

The quartet of men, ranging in age from 18 to 24, waived hearings and stood by their confessions to County Investigator Terrance J. Boyle when they were arraigned before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., yesterday afternoon.

Concur In Adams' Statement

The statement to Boyle was made by William P. Adams, 24, Fort Ashby, W. Va., and was concurred in "in every particular" by Alva A. Jackson, 18, and his brother, Harry C. Jackson, 20, both of Necessity street, and Virgil Paul Glass, 23, Gay street.

According to the statement, the quartet admitted breaking into the Legion home and carrying away seven slot machines, valued at about $3,000, and then destroying them and looting them of their contents three miles from Fort Ashby, W. Va.

Adams declared in his statement, in which the others concurred, that Glass got an automobile in which the four rode to the Legion home about 2 a. m. December 31, entering the building through a coal chute.

After loading the machines into the car the quartet drove to the vicinity of Fort Ashby where they broke open the devices and took

County Board May Ask Court Order On Tax Collector

A new order, seeking to eject County Tax Collector Lucian C. Radcliffe, Assistant Tax Collector Alban Thompson, and personnel from the tax office in the court house was issued yesterday ordering Lewis M. Wilson, board attorney, to take action "in the courts or elsewhere to enforce the ejection."

Commissioner William Lemmert made the motion to eject the officials, and Board Chairman C. N. "Jerry" Wilkinson, seconded it, but the third member, James Holmes, dissented when the vote was taken.

After passing the motion, Commissioner Wilkinson instructed Board Clerk James Stevenson to summon Radcliffe, and inform him that the board desired that the tax collectors turn the keys over.

"I refuse to do so on the advice of my attorneys," Radcliffe replied, and walked out of the meeting.

Wilson said the next move to enforce the ejection will probably be in the nature of a restraining order. The attorney said that the county is a corporation with the theory being that the commissioners have charge of the Court House property.

Radcliffe announced that he would not quit his office which he said is provided for him by law the same as the state's attorney's and the county treasurers. He also refused to move to the basement of the Court House.

Board Clerk Stevenson and Chairman Wilkinson clashed during yesterday's meeting when both Wilkinson and Lemmert rejected a $5 mileage report submitted by the clerk which Stevenson then grabbed and tore up.

Stevenson declared "I'm not going to drive my car for nothing." Lemmert remarked "the rest of us do and we consider it our duty." At this point the dispute centered around a statement made by Stevenson that he would not pick the mail up. "I don't have to," Stevenson said.

The matter terminated on a somewhat unsettled basis with the board chairman stating that Stevenson would pick up the mail and Stevenson declaring he wouldn't.

Hyndman Youth Fatally Injured By Coal Truck

Inquest Deemed Unnecessary; Driver Is Released For Present Time

Somerset County, Pa., Coroner A. M. Uphouse last night deemed unnecessary an inquest into the death of Walter Shaffer 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Shaffer, Hyndman, Pa., who was fatally injured about noon yesterday when a truck loaded with six tons of coal ran over him after he fell from the cab.

The driver of the truck, Earl Clites, 23, Hyndman, was released from custody for the present time, but Pfc. P. G. Marenna, of the Pennsylvania State Police, said he is continuing his investigation.

Clites told a reporter last night that he was driving the truck toward Cumberland from Berlin, Pa., where it yas loaded with coal, and was ascending Wellersburg Mountain, five miles north of Wellersburg, at about eight miles on hour when Shaffer fell from the vehicle.

Heard Door Click

Shaffer had remarked he felt hot, Clites related, opened his door and continued to ride with his head resting on the open widow frame. Clites said he heard the door click, looked over and saw that Shaffer had disappeared.

He said he stopped immediately, looked out of the door and saw Shaffer, his hands on the running board and his body extending toward the rear of the truck.

Clites said he believes the right

Dundon Will Be Transferred To Dallas, Texas

Regional Director For Textile Workers To Leave Late This Month

James A. Dundon, 714 Shriver avenue, regional director for the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, in Maryland and West Virginia since 1944, will leave here in about three weeks to direct the TWUA's activities in the Dallas, Tex., area.

Dundon, the first permanent president of Local 1874, TWUA, served as head of the Celanese local in 1937, 1939 and 1940 and has been closely affiliated with the local since its beginning 10 years ago.

In 1941 he was apointed TWUA field representative in Virginia and during 1942 and 1943 was managing director of the Utica, N. Y., Joint Board and supervised the activities of the 15 locals in 20 textile plants of that area.

He was recalled to Cumberland in 1944 as TWUA representative for Local 1874 and in the fall of that year was appointed regional director for the international union in Maryland and West Virginia.

During the past two years he directed organization work in textile mills in the Baltimore and Martinsburg area and outside of Western Maryland, which was already organized, practically tripled the strength of the union in his jurisdiction.

Appeal For Picket Withdrawal Refused

Officials of the union and company met yesterday afternoon in an effort to settle the dispute which was described by the company as jurisdictional. C. E. Stutzman, business agent for Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeur's union said a contract is being sought with the company.

Heskett, said he could not refuse or reject the permits since the disagreement falls under the broad term of labor dispute for which permits are issued. He explained that the city is not interested in the nature of the dispute but only in keeping peace.

William S. Deaton, Baltimore business agent for the AFL operating engineers union is here to attend meetings. He said the dispute is of a minor nature and will be settled quickly.

Delegation Prefers That Hearings Be Held Before March 1 If Possible

Whitworth Says Hearing Will Be Given To All Who Request It

The Allegany County Delegation to the State Legislature last night requested through its chairman, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., that any one who has legislation in mind or wishes a hearing contact the chairman before March 1, if possible.

Whitworth, along with other members of the delegation returned home last night from Annapolis, and said that the delegation would give a hearing to anyone who requests it. He added that the only way members of the delegation know what type of legislation is wanted is for such matters to be presented to them.

The earlier proposals are submitted, the better chance the delegation will have to study them, get bills in shape for introduction, have them passed and avoid the "mad scramble" in the closing days of the session, Whitworth pointed out.

Will Hold Later Hearings

While the delegation requested that all matters be placed before them by March 1, if possible, Whitworth pointed out that hearings will be held until the time the Legislature adjourns and every effort will be made to have bills passed up to that time.

No formal hearings will be held except in Annapolis under present plans.

Whitworth, as chairman of the county delegation, has been named to the minority party Steering Committee which crystalized primarily for the purpose of getting better committee representation The steering committee will meet with the minority floor leader, Delegate Jacob Ramsburg, Frederick County, the speaker of the House and the governor, if necessary, to get better representation.

Expect Better Representation

Better committee representation than in the past is expected at this Legislature, Whitworth said, inasmuch as Republicans are united — a solid bloc while there appears to be a number of factions among the Democrats.

As yet no locals bills have been presented, and no bills introduced by other delegations have been printed, Whitworth said, but the latter bills will be placed in the hands of the legislators Tuesday when the General Assembly convenes at 1 p. m.

Whitworth said Miss Alice Parks, Cumberland, has been engaged as secretary for the minority party and will have her headquarters in Carvel Hall.

New Corporation Will Begin Operation Monday; Consideration Reported To Be About $75,000

Purchase of the Cumberland Laundry Company of Cumberland, Md., from J. Frank Eyman, its operator for more than 50 years, by Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Friedland and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Friedland, operators of the City Furniture Company, was announced yesterday.

The consideration was reported to be in the neighborhood of $75,000.

Clarence Lippel, attorney for the purchasers, said the transfer will be effected without any interruption to business, the new owners taking over operation of the laundry Monday morning.

The Friedlands purchased the real estate while the business, trucks, equipment and supplies were purchased by a corporation to be known as the Cumberland Laundry Company. Maurice Friedland is president of the new corporation and his brother, Robert Friedland, is secretary. Another brother, Nathan Friedland, Philadelphia, has arrived in Cumberland and will operate the laundry for the corporation.

Will Retain Present Employes

Negotiations for the purchase of the property and business have been underway for more than a month, but Lippel said a deed to the real estate—the property and land — and a bill of sale for the chattels—equipment, trucks, supplies, etc. — have now been prepared and will be filed for record today or Monday in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

Maurice and Robert Friedland, who have operated the City Furniture Company here for the past 11 years, said present employes of the laundry will be retained under the new ownership. They added that W. H. Hobson, who came to Cumberland from Easton, Md., as superintendent of the laundry five years ago, will remain with the new corporation for an indefinite period.

Modernization of the plant is planned, according to the Friedlands, but when the work can begin depends on availability of materials. However, some painting is scheduled to begin today.

The property, which fronts 37¼ feet on North Mechanic street extends back to Wills Creek for an average distance of 165 feet. The building is a two-story brick structure.

In a brief statement, the Friedlands said they intend to continue the laundry business as it has been conducted in the past and that the dry cleaning business will be expanded. The only changes to be made, they said, will be to give the public more and better service.

Sole Owner Since 1914

Eyman, who is selling the property, has been sole owner since 1914 although he continued to operate it as a corporation after taking over the interests of J. R. Marshall and C. M. Wolff.

Eyman, Marshall and Wolff, all of Pittsburgh, purchased the laundry in 1892 from W. L. Woodruff when it was located in Butler's alley, adjoining the Allegany Furniture Works, the building now used by the Cumberland Improvement Company as a storage house.

W. L. Williamson, Cumberland, was manager of the plant in its first year, but because the laundry received its power from the furniture works, which had frequent shutdowns that also caused closing down of the laundry, its operation was not a success.

In the following year, 1893, Eyman came to Cumberland and moved the laundry to its present location. He recalled yesterday that the year he came to this city a number of business properties on Baltimore and North Mechanic streets were destroyed in a big fire.

Incorporated In 1907

The business was incorporated in 1907, and in 1910 Eyman took over Wolff's interest and in 1914 took over Marshall's interest.

Ending more than half a century in the laundry business at the close of business today, Eyman, who resides at the Windsor Hotel, has no immediate plans for the future.

William M. Somerville, attorney, represented Eyman in the negotiations for transfer of the real estate and business.

James Avirett May Succeed Dr. Koon In Planning Group

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney and former Army officer in World War II, has accepted an invitation to serve on the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, and an order appointing him as a member will be presented to the Mayor and Council Monday for approval, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Avirett, if he is appointed, will succeed Dr. Thomas W. Koon, who died December 5. Dr. Koon was named to the commission for a two-year term and was reappointed for five years in 1945. At the time of his death he was chairman of the commission.

According to the order which has been prepared for the council meeting Monday, Avirett's term would extend until June 1, 1950. Mayor Post said that if the local attorney is appointed, the commission would then elect its own chairman.

Other members of the group are H. W. Smith, secretary, representing business; Clarence H. Griggs, representing industry, and Benjamin W. O'Rourke, representing labor. Dr. Koon's successor must be a professional man, under the terms of the ordinance.

Avirett, who held the rank of major, was placed on an inactive status after four years in the army and resumed his law practice here last spring. He served as staff judge advocate at Camp Pickett, Va., for more than a year.

Celanese And Union Will Resume Wage Talks Soon

Local 1874, TWUA, Empowers Negotiating Committee To Call Strike If Necessary

Tentative arrangements were completed yesterday by the United States Department of Labor for a conference early next week between the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO.

The announcement of the continuance of negotiations for an 18 cent wage increase at the Amcelle plant followed the reported unanimous action of the union in empowering its officers to call a strike whenever they feel further discussions on the wage boost are useless.

Edward R. Allan, personnel manager of the plant, who announced plans for the wage meeting, said Conciliation Commissioner James Crockett called by phone yesterday and made the tentative arrangements for the meeting.

Union officials confirmed plans for the conference which they said they hope can be held Tuesday.

William Boyd Coleman, president of the union, said the union and company tentatively agreed to meet again Monday with Commissioner Crockett but that the conference was postponed after they learned that Herbert W. Payne, director of the TWUA's rayon division, was busy in the Viscose Corporation negotiations in Philadelphia and could not attend on that day.

Payne May Attend

He added that the local is making every effort to get Payne here for the session. The New York TWUA official has attended two of the last three sessions held here on the request for the wage boost.

Local 1874, on November 21, formally presented its request for an 18-cent hourly wage increase for production workers at the Amcelle plant under the reopening clause in its contract of May, 1945, and the company, early in December, offered five cents, asserting the sum, added to the increase granted last May, more than compensated for the rise in the cost of living.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, asserted the average increase at the plant since January 1, 1941, averaged 53.3 per cent compared to the national average of 39.5 increase in the cost of living for the same period.

The five-cent offer was rejected by the committee and was not presented to the membership for action since union officials deemed it too small for consideration.

There has been no reported change in that situation since Monday's meeting.

Coleman, in a formal statement yesterday revealed that the negotiation committee of the 9,000 member TWUA union had been authorized, at meetings Wednesday and Thursday, to call a strike at the Amcelle plant when it feels further discussion on the union's proposal for an 18-cent wage increase are useless.

Statement Issued

Coleman's complete formal statement follows:

"At overflow memberships of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, last night and this morning, the negotiating committee was authorized by a unanimous vote to call a work stoppage at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America when it feels that further negotiations on the union's demand for an 18-cent an hour wage increase are useless.

"The negotiating committee is composed of 16 shop chairmen of the main departments at the local plant along with the union's president and business manager.

"When the union invited all of the companies in the rayon industry to attend a joint meeting in New York to negotiate the union's proposal for an 18-cent an hour increase, we offered the companies to arbitrate any disputes that might have come about during the discussions. This offer of the union was rejected by the Celanese Corporation of America and by most of the other firms in the industry.

"At last Monday's wage negotiation meeting with company representatives, Commissioner James Crockett of the United States Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor proposed arbitration as a method of settling the union's dispute with Celanese. Union spokesmen stated they would consider arbitration, but the company flatly rejected the arbitration suggestion.

"The officers of Local 1874 are contacting Commissioner Crockett to notify him of the action taken by the membership last night and today."

5,000 File Claims

Union officials reported that more than 5,000 members have filed for portal-to-portal pay and that all claims submitted last week have been entered in a suit brought by Lester M. Levin, former Baltimore NRLB officer now representing the union, in the Southern District Court of New York.

Claims may be filed today from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from now on during union business hours but union officials warned that persons who hold back may be left "holding the bag" if Congress should pass legislation which would prohibit further claims.

Union meetings have been called for next Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. and Thursday at 10 a. m. to nominate officers and select an election committee for the annual election to be held January 27, 28 and 29.

Kelly Springfield Refuses To Reopen Wage Talks

A request that wage negotiations be reopened between the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and Local No. 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO was rejected yesterday on the grounds that the present contract would not permit it, a union spokesman said.

The request was made at the weekly grievance meeting, but company officials said to do so would mean scrapping the present contract recently agreed to by both the company and union officials.

No indications were given whether the union would abide by the company's decision, but the spokesman said no further meetings were scheduled for such a discussion.

Crippled League Planning Program For Cardiac Cases

Services Of Specialist May Be Secured To Conduct Clinics Here

Plans are being considered to begin a program to aid rheumatic fever and cardiac cases among county school children, according to the annual report of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, released yesterday by Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary.

Mrs. Annan said that she has conferred with Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, regarding the possibility of holding clinics at League headquarters for such cases.

Schools conduct regular physical examinations for students, and data on rhemuatic fever and cardiac cases could also be collected from Health Department files, Mrs. Annan said. It is hoped that a physician who specializes in such cases can be secured to come to Cumberland for the clinics.

Speech Program Planned

Mrs. Annan also announced that Dr. Richard Hutcheson, Washington, D. C., speech pathologist who conducted the first speech clinic to be sponsored by the League last October, is interviewing applicants to secure a resident speech teacher for the county, and that he will recommend one within a short time.

Mrs. Annan quoted Dr. Hutcheson as stating after the clinic that a speech correction program in Allegany county is "entirely feasible."

The number of clinical examinations given during 1946 was 857, according to the report. Two cerebral palsy clinics, three orthopedic clinics, one plastic surgery clinic and one speech correction clinic were held. The total active case load as of November 30, 1946, was 560.

New children admitted to service numbered 152, while 19 were discharged. New shoes were supplied to 334 children, and 353 repairs to shoes and adjustments to appliances were made.

Children in hospitals as of November 30 numbered 12, while 57 were admitted to and 52 were discharged from hospitals during the year.

2,000 Treatments Given

Miss Elma Georg, state physical therapist, gave 2,000 treatments at League headquarters, and there were 1,665 conference, reference and nursing visits in the field and 2,500 in the office.

Mrs. Annan gave 12 lectures to student nurses and to various community organizations regarding the League's program, and 18 committee meetings were held. Other services were as follows:

Eighty-five children were supplied with appliances other than shoes; 40 received X-rays; 25 received special medicines; 38 were recommended for examination at special clinics; 60 were recommended for corrective shoes, and 28 were recommended for new braces.

Mrs. Annan announced that Dr. George O. Eaton, Baltimore, will conduct an orthopedic clinic at League headquarters on Friday, January 10. Examination will be by appointment only.

February Class Of Local School Of Nursing Has Been Cancelled

Insufficient Applications Cited As Cause By Memorial Hospital

Following an announcement by the nursing information bureau of the American Nurses' Association that there was a sharp decrease in the number of new students admitted to schools of nursing in 1946 as compared to 1945, Miss Frances L. Loftus, director of nurses at Memorial Hospital, said yesterday that the February class in the hospital's school of nursing has been cancelled because of insufficient applications.

Miss Loftus explained that only four young women have applied for admission to the school in the February class, as compared to a necessary quota of 15. The deadline for applications for that class has passed, since processing work takes several weeks before an applicant can be qualified.

119 Are In Training

Because of the large enrollment of 34 students in the class entering last September, however, the hospital's quota of student nurses is only about 10 short, Miss Loftus added. The quota is based on the hospital's bed capacity and clinical facilities. Approximately 119 student nurses are in training at the present time, only a few less than last year. The next class will enter in September, 1947.

At Allegany Hospital, there are only 77 student nurses, as compared to 107 in January, 1945, according to Sister Fidelis, director of the hospital's school of nursing. Thirty-five students were graduated from January, 1945, to January, 1946, and the majority are on duty at the hospital, while the remainder are serving in veterans' hospitals and on private duty nursing.

National Decrease Cited

Fewer than 31,000 new students were admitted to the nation's 1,300 schools of nursing during 1946, or 25,000 less than the total of more than 56,000 new students admitted during 1945.

War-inspired patriotism and government scholarships combined to increase enrollment in schools of nursing during the war, according to the report from the American Nurses' Association.

Greater demand for nurses today is caused in part by the growth of group hospitalization and health insurance plans, advances in medical science, growth of public school and industrial health programs, and expanding hospital building programs.

The report cited that there are at least a dozen fields of nursing open to young nurses upon graduation from an accredited school of nursing.

The number of new students entering schools of nursing dropped from 1,183 in 1945 to 555 in 1946 in Maryland.

Leslie Will Get Hearing Monday On Theft Charge

Police Say Circumstantial Evidence Is Against Former Boxer

Michael Leslie, local amateur boxer, who has been held in City Jail for the past five days will be given a preliminary hearing Monday in People's Court on charges of the armed robbery of George Ruhl November 6, 1946, Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber said.

Leslie, who has been questioned several times by police and county officials, since his apprehension, has denied any knowledge of the crime, but Chief Treiber said the circumstantial evidence against the former boxer is strong.

Witnesses Summoned

Three witnesses, now at large and Curtis Portmess, who was being held in the county jail will be summoned to appear at the hearing Monday Chief Treiber said. The witnesses were identified as William Simpson, Frederick street; Mary Lou Kessler, 15, Pioneer place, and Edna Hartsock, 15, Green Ridge.

Leslie, and Lloyd Mauk, who is now being held in Frederick County on a liquor theft charge, were identified as the two men who were seen n Firemen' Hall, Ridgeley W. Va., planning the holdup the night Ruhl, manager of the Workers Social and Athletic Club, was robbed of $10, Treiber declared.

Portmess, according to Treiber, admitted that he was invited by the two men to take part in the holdup, but declared that he refused. The other two witnesses informed police that they were associating with Leslie and Mauk at the Firemen' hall, and overheard them planning the robbery, Treiber added.

Leslie and Portmess were arrested after a North End resident reported they were in his home creating a disturbance, police said, adding that they had been searching for Leslie for some time.

The accused man was recently released by Frederick County authorities because of insufficient evidence, after he was questioned in connection with the liquor theft for which Mauk is being held along with James Hite, also of Cumberland.

The two men are also believed to have stolen the automobile of P. E. Meyers, McCrory store manager, and used it to transport the liquor from Frederick to Baltimore, where they were arrested. The stolen liquor was valued at $2,500, police said.

Leslie Refuses To Talk

Since his arrest by local police, Leslie has steadfastly refused to talk, police said, but on the evidence presented by the four witnesses, police said they are confident that Leslie knows something about the Ruhl holdup.

Quartet Is Held For Grand Jury In Legion Slot Machine Theft

Bond Set At $1,000 Each; Steward Forfeits $100 On Gaming Charge

Charged with feloniously breaking and entering the home of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, the morning of December 31, four young men who have admitted the theft of seven slot machines from the home, were committed to the county jail for grand jury action in default of bond of $1,000 each in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday morning, Joseph Fradiska, steward and liquor licensee of Fort Cumberland Post, forfeited bond of $100 in Police Court when he failed to appear for trial on a gaming charge. Fradiska was arrested Thursday afternoon on a charge of maintaining slot machines at the Legion home but was in no way involved in the theft of the machines.

The quartet of men, ranging in age from 18 to 24, waived hearings and stood by their confessions to County Investigator Terrance J. Boyle when they were arraigned before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., yesterday afternoon.

Concur In Adams' Statement

The statement to Boyle was made by William P. Adams, 24, Fort Ashby, W. Va., and was concurred in "in every particular" by Alva A. Jackson, 18, and his brother, Harry C. Jackson, 20, both of Necessity street, and Virgil Paul Glass, 23, Gay street.

According to the statement, the quartet admitted breaking into the Legion home and carrying away seven slot machines, valued at about $3,000, and then destroying them and looting them of their contents three miles from Fort Ashby, W. Va.

Adams declared in his statement, in which the others concurred, that Glass got an automobile in which the four rode to the Legion home about 2 a. m. December 31, entering the building through a coal chute.

After loading the machines into the car the quartet drove to the vicinity of Fort Ashby where they broke open the devices and took

County Board May Ask Court Order On Tax Collector

A new order, seeking to eject County Tax Collector Lucian C. Radcliffe, Assistant Tax Collector Alban Thompson, and personnel from the tax office in the court house was issued yesterday ordering Lewis M. Wilson, board attorney, to take action "in the courts or elsewhere to enforce the ejection."

Commissioner William Lemmert made the motion to eject the officials, and Board Chairman C. N. "Jerry" Wilkinson, seconded it, but the third member, James Holmes, dissented when the vote was taken.

After passing the motion, Commissioner Wilkinson instructed Board Clerk James Stevenson to summon Radcliffe, and inform him that the board desired that the tax collectors turn the keys over.

"I refuse to do so on the advice of my attorneys," Radcliffe replied, and walked out of the meeting.

Wilson said the next move to enforce the ejection will probably be in the nature of a restraining order. The attorney said that the county is a corporation with the theory being that the commissioners have charge of the Court House property.

Radcliffe announced that he would not quit his office which he said is provided for him by law the same as the state's attorney's and the county treasurers. He also refused to move to the basement of the Court House.

Board Clerk Stevenson and Chairman Wilkinson clashed during yesterday's meeting when both Wilkinson and Lemmert rejected a $5 mileage report submitted by the clerk which Stevenson then grabbed and tore up.

Stevenson declared "I'm not going to drive my car for nothing." Lemmert remarked "the rest of us do and we consider it our duty." At this point the dispute centered around a statement made by Stevenson that he would not pick the mail up. "I don't have to," Stevenson said.

The matter terminated on a somewhat unsettled basis with the board chairman stating that Stevenson would pick up the mail and Stevenson declaring he wouldn't.

Hyndman Youth Fatally Injured By Coal Truck

Inquest Deemed Unnecessary; Driver Is Released For Present Time

Somerset County, Pa., Coroner A. M. Uphouse last night deemed unnecessary an inquest into the death of Walter Shaffer 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Shaffer, Hyndman, Pa., who was fatally injured about noon yesterday when a truck loaded with six tons of coal ran over him after he fell from the cab.

The driver of the truck, Earl Clites, 23, Hyndman, was released from custody for the present time, but Pfc. P. G. Marenna, of the Pennsylvania State Police, said he is continuing his investigation.

Clites told a reporter last night that he was driving the truck toward Cumberland from Berlin, Pa., where it yas loaded with coal, and was ascending Wellersburg Mountain, five miles north of Wellersburg, at about eight miles on hour when Shaffer fell from the vehicle.

Heard Door Click

Shaffer had remarked he felt hot, Clites related, opened his door and continued to ride with his head resting on the open widow frame. Clites said he heard the door click, looked over and saw that Shaffer had disappeared.

He said he stopped immediately, looked out of the door and saw Shaffer, his hands on the running board and his body extending toward the rear of the truck.

Clites said he believes the right

Dundon Will Be Transferred To Dallas, Texas

Regional Director For Textile Workers To Leave Late This Month

James A. Dundon, 714 Shriver avenue, regional director for the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, in Maryland and West Virginia since 1944, will leave here in about three weeks to direct the TWUA's activities in the Dallas, Tex., area.

Dundon, the first permanent president of Local 1874, TWUA, served as head of the Celanese local in 1937, 1939 and 1940 and has been closely affiliated with the local since its beginning 10 years ago.

In 1941 he was apointed TWUA field representative in Virginia and during 1942 and 1943 was managing director of the Utica, N. Y., Joint Board and supervised the activities of the 15 locals in 20 textile plants of that area.

He was recalled to Cumberland in 1944 as TWUA representative for Local 1874 and in the fall of that year was appointed regional director for the international union in Maryland and West Virginia.

During the past two years he directed organization work in textile mills in the Baltimore and Martinsburg area and outside of Western Maryland, which was already organized, practically tripled the strength of the union in his jurisdiction.

Dundon reported he had asked for the transfer because of his health.

Appeal For Picket Withdrawal Refused

The Air Reduction Sales Company appeal to have picket permits withdrawn to prevent further displays at the Offutt street plant was denied yesterday by Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney.

Officials of the union and company met yesterday afternoon in an effort to settle the dispute which was described by the company as jurisdictional. C. E. Stutzman, business agent for Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeur's union said a contract is being sought with the company.

Heskett, said he could not refuse or reject the permits since the disagreement falls under the broad term of labor dispute for which permits are issued. He explained that the city is not interested in the nature of the dispute but only in keeping peace.

William S. Deaton, Baltimore business agent for the AFL operating engineers union is here to attend meetings. He said the dispute is of a minor nature and will be settled quickly.

Delegation Prefers That Hearings Be Held Before March 1 If Possible

Whitworth Says Hearing Will Be Given To All Who Request It

The Allegany County Delegation to the State Legislature last night requested through its chairman, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., that any one who has legislation in mind or wishes a hearing contact the chairman before March 1, if possible.

Whitworth, along with other members of the delegation returned home last night from Annapolis, and said that the delegation would give a hearing to anyone who requests it. He added that the only way members of the delegation know what type of legislation is wanted is for such matters to be presented to them.

The earlier proposals are submitted, the better chance the delegation will have to study them, get bills in shape for introduction, have them passed and avoid the "mad scramble" in the closing days of the session, Whitworth pointed out.

Will Hold Later Hearings

While the delegation requested that all matters be placed before them by March 1, if possible, Whitworth pointed out that hearings will be held until the time the Legislature adjourns and every effort will be made to have bills passed up to that time.

No formal hearings will be held except in Annapolis under present plans.

Whitworth, as chairman of the county delegation, has been named to the minority party Steering Committee which crystalized primarily for the purpose of getting better committee representation The steering committee will meet with the minority floor leader, Delegate Jacob Ramsburg, Frederick County, the speaker of the House and the governor, if necessary, to get better representation.

Expect Better Representation

Better committee representation than in the past is expected at this Legislature, Whitworth said, inasmuch as Republicans are united — a solid bloc while there appears to be a number of factions among the Democrats.

As yet no locals bills have been presented, and no bills introduced by other delegations have been printed, Whitworth said, but the latter bills will be placed in the hands of the legislators Tuesday when the General Assembly convenes at 1 p. m.

Whitworth said Miss Alice Parks, Cumberland, has been engaged as secretary for the minority party and will have her headquarters in Carvel Hall.

City Furniture Owners Buy Cumberland Laundry

New Corporation Will Begin Operation Monday; Consideration Reported To Be About $75,000

Purchase of the Cumberland Laundry Company of Cumberland, Md., from J. Frank Eyman, its operator for more than 50 years, by Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Friedland and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Friedland, operators of the City Furniture Company, was announced yesterday.

The consideration was reported to be in the neighborhood of $75,000.

Clarence Lippel, attorney for the purchasers, said the transfer will be effected without any interruption to business, the new owners taking over operation of the laundry Monday morning.

The Friedlands purchased the real estate while the business, trucks, equipment and supplies were purchased by a corporation to be known as the Cumberland Laundry Company. Maurice Friedland is president of the new corporation and his brother, Robert Friedland, is secretary. Another brother, Nathan Friedland, Philadelphia, has arrived in Cumberland and will operate the laundry for the corporation.

Will Retain Present Employes

Negotiations for the purchase of the property and business have been underway for more than a month, but Lippel said a deed to the real estate—the property and land — and a bill of sale for the chattels—equipment, trucks, supplies, etc. — have now been prepared and will be filed for record today or Monday in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

Maurice and Robert Friedland, who have operated the City Furniture Company here for the past 11 years, said present employes of the laundry will be retained under the new ownership. They added that W. H. Hobson, who came to Cumberland from Easton, Md., as superintendent of the laundry five years ago, will remain with the new corporation for an indefinite period.

Modernization of the plant is planned, according to the Friedlands, but when the work can begin depends on availability of materials. However, some painting is scheduled to begin today.

The property, which fronts 37½ feet on North Mechanic street extends back to Wills Creek for an average distance of 165 feet. The building is a two-story brick structure.

In a brief statement, the Friedlands said they intend to continue the laundry business as it has been conducted in the past and that the dry cleaning business will be expanded. The only changes to be made, they said, will be to give the public more and better service.

Sole Owner Since 1914

Eyman, who is selling the property, has been sole owner since 1914 although he continued to operate it as a corporation after taking over the interests of J. R. Marshall and C. M. Wolff.

Eyman, Marshall and Wolff, all of Pittsburgh, purchased the laundry in 1892 from W. L. Woodruff when it was located in Butler's alley, adjoining the Allegany Furniture Works, the building now used by the Cumberland Improvement Company as a storage house.

W. L. Williamson, Cumberland, was manager of the plant in its first year, but because the laundry received its power from the furniture works, which had frequent shutdowns that also caused closing down of the laundry, its operation was not a success.

In the following year, 1893, Eyman came to Cumberland and moved the laundry to its present location. He recalled yesterday that the year he came to this city a number of business properties on Baltimore and North Mechanic streets were destroyed in a big fire.

Incorporated In 1907

The business was incorporated in 1907, and in 1910 Eyman took over Wolff's interest and in 1914 took over Marshall's interest.

Ending more than half a century in the laundry business at the close of business today, Eyman, who resides at the Windsor Hotel, has no immediate plans for the future.

William M. Somerville, attorney, represented Eyman in the negotiations for transfer of the real estate and business.

James Avirett May Succeed Dr. Koon In Planning Group

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney and former Army officer in World War II, has accepted an invitation to serve on the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission, and an order appointing him as a member will be presented to the Mayor and Council Monday for approval, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Avirett, if he is appointed, will succeed Dr. Thomas W. Koon, who died December 5. Dr. Koon was named to the commission for a two-year term and was reappointed for five years in 1945. At the time of his death he was chairman of the commission.

According to the order which has been prepared for the council meeting Monday, Avirett's term would extend until June 1, 1950. Mayor Post said that if the local attorney is appointed, the commission would then elect its own chairman.

Other members of the group are H. W. Smith, secretary, representing business; Clarence H. Griggs, representing industry, and Benjamin W. O'Rourke, representing labor. Dr. Koon's successor must be a professional man, under the terms of the ordinance.

The monthly meeting of the commission is scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Avirett, who held the rank of major, was placed on an inactive status after four years in the army and resumed his law practice here last spring. He served as staff judge advocate at Camp Pickett, Va., for more than a year.
